New Chinese Seminary

The Maryknoll Preparatory Seminary for native vocations to the priesthood, at Kaying, South China, is a replica of the sentinary at Clarks Summit, Pennsylvania. Without other aid, the Chinese architeet designed the building from a photograph submitted to him by Monsigner Francis X Ford of Brooklyn, N. Y. Prefect Apostolic of the Maryknott Kaytas mission field. The seminary, located smid the rice fields of South China, was constructed by twenty masons and Afty Chinese women, and the most skilled laborets received fifty cents a day. At the present rate of exchange the structure cost about $19.000 gold.

School days—shorter days are here. There's a fouch of frost in the air—and these cooler nights all serve to remind us that the good old Sausage sare home made. Year after year—more and more people serve these delicious Sausages. Their wholesome flavor adds to their popularity wherever they are served. Zweigle Brothers make 35 varieties of sausage. Their factory consists of one of the largest—makes of silent meat cutters equipped with a twenty-five horse power motor, cutting over 3,000 pounds of meat por hour; also one of the largest air stuffers; built in bollers, inside smoke houses, ice ccushers, metal henches, overhead trolley enges; ground floor sanitary sausage Rothers are famous for the water supply on those sections where the fire was spreading large refrigerating plants, coolers and ice making equipment.
