Rare Columbus Print

In the Library of Congress in Washington, D. C., is this engraving said to be the oldest likeness of Christopher Columbus. It appears in the Eulogia Virorum Illustrium, published in 1575 by Poulus Jovius This wood cut is thought to have been copied from a portrait in the gallery of notable persons which Jovius collected in his villa at Lake Comes. The book is one of 10 books relating to the discovery of America included in the Voltbehr collection of 3 000 incunabula, which were purchased in 1950 for a million and a half
