Spiritual Thoughts (In the "Irish Catholic") To despise the world is to be truly rich and contented, though men think just the contrary.

The love of God is a very precious thing, it is not given to those who seek God through interest or for the sake of spiritual consolations.

The diversions and amusements of the world, its enjoyments and pleasures are but vanity compared to the treasures which we are to enjoy in heaven.

What can a true and fervent charity refuse to pay for the safety of those souls who have been redeemed with the blood of Jesus Christ?

God does not send us trials to lose our souls, but to save them; if we do not know how to profit by them, it is our own fault.

Next to grace time is the most precious gift of God. Yet how much of both we waste! Time is full of eternity; as we use it so shall we be.—Cardinal Wiseman.

When we begin to practice mortification everything naturally seems hard and difficult to us; but God works such a change in us and grants us so many graces, that all that we can do in this life seems very little.

If you are joyful, consider Our Lord in His Resurrection. If your heart is cast down by labor and sadness, contemplate Him in the garden of Gethsemane, and thus you will profit by sadness.

Would that pious men, in the place of those fears and terrors which the devil uses in endeavoring to deter them from the service of God, would substitute the fear they ought to feel of their Creator in case they should chance to give up what they began for Him.

Man is created for this end, to adore and praise his Sovereign Lord here below and hereafter to enjoy Him in His eternal kingdom.—St. Ignatius Loyola.
