

Camp Stella Maris

"Hey! What's the bugle for?" "For classes!" "Classes? at Camp? during a vacation?" Yes; but listen what kind of classes!

Life Saving Class is first. There are the Senior and Junior Red Cross Classes. How to approach a drowning person, how to grab him and not have him grab you; how to break those strange holds; and then how to bring in the victim and give him artificial respiration. You are taught how by an expert. How about going home with your Junior or Senior badge on your swimming suit? BOY! WON'T YOUR PALS STARE?

Over here for First Aid! What to do with cuts, bruises, and broken bones? They will happen, of course, in the best regulated families. Automobile accidents, mishaps at school, on the basketball courts, street, anywhere, could you step forward and take charge? Could you save the life, perhaps, of some one in your own family with a severed artery? Here is the place to learn how.

Perhaps you like dramatics? Perhaps you would like to entertain at Camp? You will be shown how.

Then there is the Craft Lodge. Would you like to make leather pocketbooks, bookends, etc? Or work in wood? Make aeroplanes? Name your poison.

Or perhaps you are a biologist. You like to hunt for snakes, toads, skunks, woodchucks, and all those crawly things that live in the meadows. Then go on the nature hike and bring back to the Bug House whatever you capture. Last summer we had anything from a baby hawk to a lamb. (We paid for the lamb).

Lastly, there is a baseball class. Here, the rules are reviewed, especially those that seldom happen. Then you are told how to knock-slide, how to relay the ball, how to take throws to draw men from the bases, how to look innocent when you are "laid out" but the umpire calls you safe! That's an art, and no "maybes" about it!

After an hour of classes (if you can call them such), the bugle blows again. This time it is for the games in which battling averages and standings are carefully kept. Now for the "Babe Ruths" and Lou Gehrigs!

True confidence does not consist in the sentiment, but in the will. Do you wish to trust in God? Then have confidence.

CARMODY URGES KNIGHTS FIGHT SOCIAL EVILS

prehensiveness, clear and eloquent discourse on the Knights of Columbus as an international order of Catholic laymen and a summary of the achievements and service of the Knights. "Our record of past service, however," Supreme Knight Carmody said, "cannot satisfy the future. Neither the young man nor the old will be content to bask in the sunshine of the glories of the past. Yet the men of today who now enjoy the benefits of five decades of organized endeavor by the Knights of Columbus have the challenge of that past before them. Each must ask himself, and conscientiously answer, what is my contribution to organized Catholic Service? What is my response to the call of the Holy Father for Catholic Action?"

Supreme Knight Carmody recalled a personal audience given him and Mrs. Carmody by the present reigning Supreme Pontiff, he said, during the last twenty minutes and during which His Holiness commented on all Knights of Columbus works, citing instances of service in various parts of the country, with highest praise. "The Holy Father," Carmody said, "expressed his commendation with the expression that in all these works and services to God, country and church and their fellowmen, the Knights of Columbus have expressed and are expressing the principles and the spirit of Catholic Action," the Supreme Knight stated.

"What more glorious page was written by the Knights of old in caring for the poor, the unfortunate and the oppressed than has been written by this modern knighthood in its work of relief for suffering humanity from the appropriation of $100,000 for the San Francisco earthquake and fire sufferers, the flood sufferers of Colorado, Texas and for other national calamities where peoples were left destitute because of the devastation caused by fire, flood and tornado."

The Supreme Knight declared that the Order has no less left its impress in its chapter of education and he cited the work of the K. of C. in promotion of education, establishing a chair at the Catholic University, and in providing scholarships and free evening schools. He recalled the service rendered by the Knights in directing opposition to the enactment of legislation adverse to the parochial schools. He compared the work of the Knights during the World War to that of the noble sisterhoods in the Civil War. "Clearly in all this service," said the Supreme Knight, "we find the highest expression of Catholic Action. It is sufficient to say that in all its teachings and programs of activities, the Order of the Knights of Columbus strives to promote the cause of God, country and fellowmen by inculcating the spirit of love, charity and good will as taught by the Master."

Children Honor Fr. Rawlinson On 35th Anniversary

Corning—Children of St. Patrick's School, here, on Friday honored their pastor, the Rev. E. A. Rawlinson, with an entertainment directed by the Sisters of St. Joseph in commemoration of his ordination to the Holy Priesthood, 35 years ago. Before coming here, Father Rawlinson served many years as Vice Chancellor of the diocese, in Rochester.

The many numbers were beautifully presented by the little actors and actresses. Father Rawlinson addressed the audience which overflowed the Assembly Hall and treated all to motion pictures showing the first Communion class in procession to the church, at their breakfast in the hall, and the many members of the congregation as they left the church. This meal was followed by another showing the procession and the clergy who took part in the ceremonies on the occasion of the first Mass of the Rev. W. Sutherlin of the Buffalo diocese who sang his first Mass in St. Patrick's Church, Sunday, June 4.

"The Queen's Promise," a dramatic piece in three scenes was presented by the following: Ann Patrick, Catherine Henry, Betty Roth, Jane Hotchkiss, Margaret O'Neill, Margaret Elphink, Rosemary Haughey, Jane Dunham, Anna Telehan and a chorus of girls in the seventh and eighth grades. Roses and a spiritual bouquet were presented to the pastor by Betty Woods and Barbara Pond. Others taking part in the program were: Florence Down, Marjon Winder, Charles English, McMahon Brothers, Mary Catherine Flynn, John Hotchkiss, Anna Stack, Tails D'Alia, Marjorie Donath, Rosie D'Alia, Mary Louisa Gunnison, Agnes Kouty, Lucille O'Neill, and Mary Oragan and children of the various grades in the school.

1831—Rochester's Oldest Financial Institution—1933 IN 1877 CITY STREETS WERE LIGHTED FOR THE FIRST TIME

On both sides of the Atlantic scientific research had been carried on for years in attempts to develop the Electric Arc Light. It remained for an American, Charles J. Brush, to achieve the first notable commercial success. Brush's invention was an ingenious device which automatically controlled the position of the positive and negative carbons and made possible long hours of incandescence. The Arc Light brought a revolutionary change to our city streets: the gas light began to disappear when in 1877 the streets of New York City were really lighted for the first time. It was the advent of the modern "White Way."

In 1877 the Rochester Savings Bank was forty-six years old. By that time, the "Old Bank" had already given nearly five decades of service to this community. For 102 years the Bank has offered its facilities—has lighted the way for thousands who seek financial security. Why not open an account today?
