NATIVE CLERGY INCREASING
Rome.—(NCWC-Fides)—The consecration by Pope Pius XI of five new Bishops for Asia draws attention to the fact that 20 per cent of the Catholics of Asia will be soon under native Bishops while it is estimated that 60 per cent of the Catholics are now cared for by native clergy.

In India this indigenous clergy numbers 2,000 while foreign priests are 1,500. Of the 3,500,000 Catholics, 30 per cent or over a million, are under Indian Bishops while approximately another million faithful are cared for by Indian priests in territories with clergy of mixed nationality.

In Indo-China, native priests total 1,100 and Western priests 360. Phnom, of which Bishop Tong will be Coadjutor, counts but 8 per cent of the 1,300,000 Catholics of the country but it is estimated that 800,000 of these Catholics are cared for by Annamese clergy.

China has 1,420 native priests and 1,880 foreign priests. In the 19 ecclesiastical divisions under Chinese Ordinaries the Catholics approach 450,000 while it is estimated that another million of the 2,500,000 faithful of the country are in stations manned by Chinese clergy.

Japan, with 42 native priests and 232 foreign, has a single diocese, Nagasaki, under a Japanese Bishop containing two-thirds of the 100,000 Catholics of the country. Korea has 64 native priests and 81 foreign. It the chief mark of this year's graduation exercises.

Called Great Citizen
High tributes were paid to Mr. Smith at the exercises. Judge James M. Morton, Jr., president of the Harvard alumni, who introduced Mr. Smith at the annual exercises referred to him as "a great American citizen, in victory and defeat." "You have won our admiration, our respect, and our affection," Judge Morton added.

A salute from the senior class to Mr. Smith was delivered in Latin by Robert Fitzgerald, of Springfield, Mass., who referred to him as the "Happy Warrior." Translated the salute was as follows:

"Most illustrious Alfred, thou happy warrior, although we cannot sing songs of the sidewalks of New York, as thou hast merited well of our country, it is no less a pleasure to greet thee."

Outline Program

Mr. Smith, in his address before the exercises of the Harvard Alumni, evoked frequent outbursts of laughter before falling serious and giving assurances that "we have nothing to fear in this country from a dictatorship" and outlining "a short program that will insure a safe return to democratic, representative, constitutional government." This program included the rule of the majority "at all hazards," close adherence to the Constitution, and the continuance of opportunities in the United States for education, "without reference to race, creed, or religion."

Mr. Smith shared Harvard's honors with such distinguished persons besides Governor Ely and Sir Ronald Lindsay, as Governor Wilbur Cross of Connecticut; Ambassador Andre de Laboulaye, of France; and Lewis W. Douglas, Director of the Federal Budget.

In his address at the alumni exercises, former Governor Smith recalled his early legislative activities and recalled that political opponents called him a Socialist. "But, in the light of our present-day legislation," he added, "I claim I am one of the ultra-conservatives."

Do Not Desire Dictatorship

Dictatorship, he said, however, cannot live in the United States, because "we are not organized to carry it on," and have "no desire for it." "Great as may be the grant of temporary power in an emergency, that Congress may by Congressional enactment put into the hands of a President," he declared, "the thing we have to fear in this country, to my way of thinking, is the influence of the organized minorities, because somehow or other the great majority does not seem to organize."

Continuing, Mr. Smith urged the Government "to get its house in order economically for the time when we come out of the financial crisis," warning the people that brought us to where it was necessary to take the drastic action that we are now taking in order to preserve our financial structure."

PRESS GROUP HAS MEETING IN CHICAGO

The ecclesiastical authorities for such cooperation and assistance as they may be willing to give to carry forward the high ideals of a clean Catholic Press for which the Vigilance Committee has been working these eight years."

The Association offered "its sincere homage to members of the Hierarchy composing the Administrative Committee of the N. C. W. C. for their recent statement on the present crisis" and particularly noted, with gratitude, "the flattering and comforting words addressed to our Catholic people concerning the struggles and aims of the Catholic Press."

Literature Report Adopted

The report of the literature bureau, presented by Father Parsons, was adopted, and the bureau was empowered to proceed to the organization of a prize contest with the cooperation of the Catholic newspapers and magazines, the contest of the coming year to be for the best manuscripts containing original stories which may be suitable for adaptation as moving picture plays.

Another resolution taking cognizance of the provisions of the National Recovery Act, relating to the organization of trades associations in their own fields, empowered the Executive Board of the C. P. A. "to ascertain if the Catholic Press Association is a trade association under the act, and in the event that it is, that it be empowered to proceed to compile existing codes adopted by us, to offer them for approval to the National Recovery Board, and to appoint a coordinator who may, with the cooperation of the local Ordinaries, move to suppress such activities as are detrimental to the Press and hinder its complete recovery."

His Eminence George Cardinal Mundelein, Archbishop of Chicago, on behalf of the Association, conveyed a message of fraternal homage to His Holiness Pope Pius XI. The Association also dispatched greetings to His Excellency the Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, Apostolic Delegate to the United States, offering him "the free cooperation of the Catholic Press in the task of promoting the Faith through Catholic Action."

The Rev. Francis P. Le Ruffe, S. J., Business Manager of America, was honored by the convention in a resolution lauding his "tireless and unselfish labors" as member and chairman of the Circulation Vigilance Committee for the last five years. The Advertising Bureau was empowered by the meeting to appoint regional committees composed of one or more representatives of the Catholic Press, which will bring to the attention of Catholic buyers the important assistance they can lend the Catholic Press by patronizing those advertising in Catholic publications.

Cardinal's Message

In his message of greeting to the convention Cardinal Mundelein said: "In this year of Our Lord 1933, when Chicago, both as a city, and as a Church, is celebrating a centennial, many conventions are being held here. None, however, deserves a more hearty welcome from us than that of the Catholic Press Association. Its delegates, priests and laymen, are teachers of Catholic truth, are defenders of the Faith and champions of the Church and her good name. More often has criticism been the lot than praise. But, rather than an empty word of welcome let me say that I have watched the progress of Catholic Journalism for more than a quarter century and congratulate them on the progress they have made and the Catholic press of the country has made through them."

"We need not apologize for our Catholic weeklies and monthlies. Where secular newspapers have lost in influence, as is evidenced by their shrinking numbers, Catholic newspapers have gained. The day of forced circulation is passed; the Catholic weekly circulates and sells on its merits and usually has more genuine news printed on a few pages than is contained in a daily four and five times its size. I want the delegates to this Convention to feel at home in Chicago and I hope their deliberations will be helpful and fruitful, and that they will bring away from here new incentive, new courage and new ideas into their work in the promising field of Catholic Journalism."

Bishop Boyle Heard

In an address given on Friday, the Most Rev. Hugh C. Boyle, Bishop of Pittsburgh and Episcopal Chairman of the Press Department, National Catholic Welfare Conference said: "I should, I think, be an ingrate if I did not in some public manner express my satisfaction and the satisfaction of the active personnel of the

Immediately after the church services the L. C. B. A. members will go to Columbus Civic Center for the opening session. This organization has $29,000.000 invested in municipal and church bonds and its activities are conducted in a strictly business manner. The L. C. B. A. is a fraternal benefit society and has paid out $12,000,000 in death claims since organized 43 years ago.

A program of sightseeing and entertainment is being worked out by the committee of the Rochester Advisory Senate headed by Mrs. McParlin. Supreme Officers of the Association will be tendered a reception by the Rochester members on Monday evening, July 10, in Columbus Civic Center. Tuesday evening the Western Pennsylvania Section will hold a reception on Wednesday evening a trip will be made to Ontario Beach Park.

in the cooperation of Catholic editors all over the country.

"I want to speak in the highest terms of the cooperation we have met with on every side from those Catholic laymen and priests who are in charge of Catholic papers, magazines and publications all over the United States."

In a paper entitled "Making Advertisers Catholic Press Minded," prepared by Gordon O'Neill, editor of The Monitor, it was stated that "no publication, Catholic or otherwise, is entitled to be supported for reasons of duty." "The right of a paper to exist," the paper said, "is contingent upon its ability to interest its readers."

Most Interest Readers

"The Catholic Press, if it is to grow, or even survive," the paper continued, "must of necessity meet its competitors on even terms." It must interest its readers and become business-like in its methods. It will have to stand on its own feet and draw its first strength from those who are interested in its development."

Presenting a report of the association's advertising bureau which was prepared in conjunction with Mr. O'Neill's paper, the Rev. William H. Taaffe, Assistant Editor of The Evangelist, Albany, said that $100,000.00 is spent annually on national advertising, but that Catholic papers get none of it. To obtain national advertising accounts, the report offered the following two suggestions that first the reader file be prepared—that the Catholic people be informed of the importance of patronizing advertisers in Catholic publications and of making this fact known at the time of their purchases—

Second, the field having been prepared, to reach the national conventions of advertising agencies.

"The reader to develop among our people the desired 'reader interest,'" the Rev. William Schaefer, Editor of The Catholic Advance, Wichita, said in a paper on this subject, "we ought not to begin by attempting to force them into it, giving up what actually does interest them. In this we could never succeed. 'Reader interest' of our people cannot be radically changed. But it most certainly can be developed and directed towards higher and better interests. What should interest our people is Christ and His Cause. There is perhaps no subject on which the secular press is so shy as upon the Cause of Jesus Christ, the most important of all."

The Rev. Harold Purcell, C. P., Editor of The Sign, Union City, N. J., leading the discussion of this paper urged the importance of reports dealing with interpretations rather than merely with facts. Patrick F. Scanlon, Managing Editor of The Brooklyn Tablet, expressed the conviction that the papers would be made more interesting by exhibiting more personality and individuality, and by the editors exhibiting more aggressiveness and vigor.

The Rev. James M. Gims, C. S. P., Editor of The Catholic World, New York, said he was convinced that the problem of "reader interest" lay not so much in the fault of the editor as in the people. "The Catholic mind," he said, "has become secularized."

"Catholics," he added, "are hereditary lovers of arts and real culture," but today are "completely surrounded by pagan civilization," and are immersed in it. He said that the problem should be thrown back to our educators, and if they are unable to cope with the many destructive forces, then it should go back farther to the family, working in conjunction with the parish priest.

Catholic Secondary Schools Graduate Large Classes

of the Vigilance Institute Sunday night by the Very Rev. Joseph M. Noonan, C. M., S. T. D., P. L. S. J., of the University.

Director Noonan spoke at the third annual commencement of the school to a class of 125 graduates, and an audience of relatives and friends which overflowed the auditorium into the adjoining halls and corridors. The Most Rev. Thomas F. Hickey, titular archbishop of Vincennes, presented the diplomas and awards. On the platform were the Rt. Rev. Msgr. William M. Hart, vicar capitular of the diocese; the Rt. Rev. Msgr. George V. Burns, and the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Joseph S. Cameron.

The class was presented by the Rev. Joseph E. Grady, principal of the school. Student speakers included John J. Narca, who gave the senior oration, and Richard V. Inseick. A musical program by the Aquinas Little Symphony Orchestra preceded the commencement program.

A tribute to the Most Rev. John Francis O'Hern, late president of the Institute and of its board of trustees, was printed on the program, over the names of officers of the school. The memorial described Bishop O'Hern as the "bishop of charity and brotherliness, radiant with friendliness and kindness, full of comfort and sympathy for the troubled, helper of the distressed, vibrant with the joy of living and doing, rejoicing in his fellow-men."

De Sales Institute

Geneva.—Fidelity to the principles of religion taught them during their scholastic careers was urged today upon graduates of De Sales High School by the Most Rev. Thomas F. Hickey of Rochester, archbishop of Vincennes, at the annual commencement in St. Stephen's Church, Sunday.

Archbishop Hickey took as his theme "Son, Give Me Thy Heart." He made reference to the octave of the Feast of the Sacred Heart, now being observed, and pointed out to the class the multitude of graces obtainable through observance of the feast. He warned the graduates not to follow too closely the worldly paths at the expense of the spiritual lessons taught them.

Diplomas were presented 25 seniors by Archbishop Hickey during exercises following solemn high Mass. A crowded church of relatives and friends of the class and school witnessed the occasion.

The Rev. Edward K. Ball, principal of the De Sales High School presented the graduates.

Honor students announced their record. Academic Joseph R. Kearney, 95.6 per cent, and Vera Gilly, 85.7 per cent, commercial. Liza Polanska, 99.2 per cent, and Nan Quatley, 94 per cent.

The Rev. William McPadden, rector of St. Stephen's Church, was celebrant of the Mass. The Rev. Thomas Tuohy, vicar deacon, the Rev. William Davis, subdeacon, and the Rev. John Guss, master of ceremonies, in the sanctuary were the following: Archbishop Hickey, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. William Hart, vicar capitular of the Diocese of Rochester; the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Walter J. Lee, rector of St. Francis de Sales Church; the Rev. James O'Brien, Clifton Springs; the Rev. Edward Simpson, Phelps; the Rev. Bernard Hanna, Geneva; the Rev. Charles Reynolds, Rochester; the Rev. Wilfred Craub, Rochester; and the Rev. Raymond Lynd, Nunda.

In his sermon, Archbishop Hickey paid tribute to the late Bishop John Francis O'Hern who a few days prior to his sudden death had consented to be present at the exercises. He also congratulated Father McPadden upon the observance recently of the 25th anniversary of his ordination.

Nazareth Academy

Traditions of Nazareth Academy as a great Catholic high school during the last 67 years were recalled Monday night by the Most Rev. Thomas F. Hickey, titular archbishop of Vincennes, in his address at the annual commencement of the school.

A class of 161 graduates received diplomas from Archbishop Hickey. The Rev. John W. Keefe presented the class. The graduate speakers included Gertrude L. Sreen, salutatorian; Marjorie E. Taggart, valedictorian; and Louise M. Schaefer, who read an original poem in tribute to Bishop John Francis O'Hern.

A representative audience of clergymen and relatives and friends of the graduates filled the school auditorium to capacity and overflowed into the adjoining halls and corridors.

Washington.—(NCWC)—The Vigilance Committee of Kilmara-Njaro, Africa, is now in the care of the Holy Ghost Fathers' third national group to be put in charge of the area. The Most Rev. Joseph J. Byrne, Vicar Apostolic, emphasized in the course of an interview with the N. C. W. C. News Service this week. Bishop Byrne, who is visiting in the United States, is an American citizen.

of Education, the Friends of Education, the Catholic Association, the Youth Association, and organizations of women, girls, boys and physicians. The last named group was particularly interested in this matter because of their professional contact with the sick, the aged and the mentally afflicted who are cared for by the Religions. As the physicians stressed in their protest besides the million of children who attend the schools of the Religions, 2,000,000 sick, 15,000 insane, 15,000 idiots and 48,000 epileptics, who are cared for by Religions, not to mention the families and the acts of charity and the donations given by which they derive a livelihood.

The Law on Conscience does not prohibit the Religions from performing acts of beneficence, but its aim is to stifle the Religions' efforts, no matter what their activities.

The bishops fulfill their sacred obligation, have forbidden Catholics to send their children to the government schools, and have given orders to construct parochial schools for the children of Catholic parents.

When, or if, the legislation is put into effect, more than 100,000 will be left in the condition of those of the Jesuits, few of which are being used by the Government. This is a terrible law, which is owned by the family of St. Francis Xavier but where the Jesuits had an institution of higher learning, stand vacant today as if it were a ruin, and the equipment are deteriorating, covered with dust.

David Goldstein Ends Two-Year Apostolate 'To Man In the Street'

(N. C. W. C. News Service)

Boston.—Completing a two-year campaign to "carry the Catholic message to the man in the street," David Goldstein, prominent Catholic layman of this city, has returned to Boston after traversing 45,000 miles, during which 450 open-air meetings were addressed. In addition indoor addresses were delivered at Communions, breakfast gatherings, at seminaries, churches, schools and hospitals. Much of the time was spent in the Southern States of Alabama and Georgia.

Of particular note, Mr. Goldstein said, was the amount of space which the newspapers in the South devoted to accounts of the meetings.
