Perpetual Leases Granted Catholic Missions of China

Rome.-(N. C. W. C.-Fides) Catholic missions of China have been granted the right of leasing property in perpetuity, according to a Fides telegram from Shang-

This decision, issued by the Executive Department of the Nanking Government, restores, part, freedom of action to the missions and brings to an end a long and distressing controversy. One of the major difficulties faced by China missions in recent years has been the prohibition, placed on them by the government, of acquiring immovable property. Permission could be had only to rent buildings or land for a certain limited period, ordinarily not extending beyond ten years. Hence. the almost absolute impossibility of building new churches, schools, r other structures.

Even in the case of land already owned, documents first had to be resented proving the ownership, he validity of these focuments ofen depending upon the caprice of he local authoraties.

This estimate is based on the enof Catholic colleges and schools. Due allowance was made for the effects W. C. Department of Education showed the closing of Catholic schools due to the industrial situation had affected only one-eighth of one per cent of the total Catholic school population, consideration was given to the possibility that further losses may be sustained before the schools have fully recovered from the effects of the depression.

It is confidently expected, however, that the new school term will show the following approximate enrollments in Catholic educational institutions: 2,193,000 pupils in 7,942 Catholic elementary schools: 250,000 dents in 46 normal schools; 110,000 students in 174 colleges, and 20,000 students in 182 Catholic seminaries.
