

Society for the Propagation of the Faith

Foreign Missions Home Missions

Diocese of Rochester, N. Y. DIRECTOR
Rev. Leo C. Mooney

Stone 1492 Stone 1492

COLUMBUS CIVIC CENTER, 50 Chestnut Street

NEW ORDINARY IS WELL KNOWN IN YOUNGSTOWN

(Continued from Page 1)

high the qualities of the priest, but in keeping with a custom of his, never to urge a boy; he awaited the boy's first approach to him, on his desire to become a priest.

Another characteristic of Magr. Mooney was first to discourage the aspirant to the priesthood or religious life, in order to test the strength of this aspiration. But Magr. Mooney's discouragement only served to increase the pleadings of the future bishop of Rochester, that his pastor give his approval to his entering St. Charles College, Baltimore, Md. He enrolled in St. Charles in the September class of 1896 and again he distinguished himself, to such an extent that because of his ability to learn quickly much of his time was spent in the library absorbing more knowledge. Completing his work in St. Charles college, he enrolled in St. Mary's college at Baltimore, Md., and again he distinguished himself as a student and scholar. The late Ignatius F. Horstmann then bishop of Cleveland selected him to complete his theology studies in Rome, and thus he became the first Youngstown boy to be so privileged as to study in Europe.

and an honor to the Cleveland diocese.

Organizes Mission Unit

As spiritual director of the North American college in Rome, one of his first duties was to organize the Isaac Jogues Unit of the Catholic Student Mission Crusade, a fact referred to at the recent national convention of the Catholic Student Mission Crusade held in Cincinnati, Oct. 8 to 11. It is the largest unit of the society in the world.

His position in Rome brought him in close contact with Vatican officials and he was instrumental in bringing about negotiations for the purchase of a new site for the college, and as such was in almost daily contact with Vatican officials.

Called to High Office

The story is told that when negotiations were completed he was called to the office of the late Cardinal Van Rossum, director of the Society for the Propagation of the Faith. Believing that it was in connection with the purchase of the property, when asked by Cardinal Van Rossum, if he had any idea as to why he was sent for, he replied, "About the division of the grounds of Villa Gabrielle," I suppose.

"Well it has nothing to do with the division of the grounds," the Cardinal replied. "It is quite another thing. If the Holy Father had thought of making use of your services, what would you say?"

His astonishment overcome after a few minutes of silence, Archbishop Mooney replied, "What does your eminence wish in reply to such a question? I am as clay in the hands of the potter. I cannot do otherwise but to acquiesce to the wishes and commands of our Holy Father." "But I am surprised that they should have thought of me," he continued, "and I am afraid that I shall not be able to fulfill their expectations."

"You must not think so," the Cardinal continued. Then he told him that it was the desire of the Holy Father to entrust to Archbishop Mooney the post of Apostolic Delegate to India.

And with this appointment of Archbishop Mooney to India as the personal representative to the Holy Father in a foreign country, it marked the first time that an American was ever assigned to such a position of distinction. Cardinal O'Connell represented the pope on a temporary mission to Japan. The first answer of Archbishop Mooney to Cardinal Van Rossum is typical of the man who is to head the diocese of Rochester. When asked only recently upon his visit in this country from Japan, whether he preferred Japan to India, or either of these countries to America, with a wave of his hand he said, "What difference does it make whether I work in India or Japan, Rome or America, it is God's work wherever it may be done."

APOSTOLIC DELEGATE TO JAPAN NAMED ORDINARY BY POPE PIUS

(Continued from Page 1)

tion in St. Patrick's Cathedral, Rochester, as early as possible.

Credentials Awaited

It is believed by diocesan officials that the installation will not take place for a month or six weeks, pending the surmise on the provision of canon law that the bishop of a diocese must await receipt of credentials from the Vatican before undertaking his duties.

Archbishop Mooney, formerly a priest of the Diocese of Cleveland, and the first United States priest to be named as Apostolic Delegate, has had an unusual and fruitful career.

The N.C.W.C. News Service this week released the following facts covering the activities and accomplishments of our new Bishop:

Archbishop Mooney was born at Mount Savage, Md., on May 9, 1882, but when he was still a child his family moved to Youngstown, O., and that has been regarded as his home city. He returned to Maryland, however, to spend six years of study at St. Charles College, Ellicott City, Md., and at St. Mary's Seminary, Baltimore. At both institutions he displayed exceptional brilliancy in study, and made an outstanding record for scholarship.

Distinguishes Self

In 1905 the Bishop-designate of Rochester entered the North American College at Rome, and here again he distinguished himself by his scholastic attainments. He was graduated in 1909, receiving the degrees Doctor of Divinity and Doctor of Philosophy. He was appointed to be parish priest at Rome on April 10 of that year. Returning to the United States, he became a professor in St. Mary's Seminary, Cleveland, and later headed the Cathedral Latin School.

After serving for some time as pastor of St. Patrick's Church, Youngstown, the priest who was to become the first American to receive a permanent appointment to the diplomatic service of the Holy See was selected to become Spiritual Director of the North American College in Rome. The Most Rev. Joseph Schrembs, Bishop of Cleveland, released Father Mooney from his pastoral duties to accept this new appointment, and he took up his office in the Eternal City in 1923.

In 1926, while still the Spiritual Director of the North American College and while only 43 years of age, Father Mooney was named Apostolic Delegate to India and was consecrated titular Archbishop of Irenopolis by Cardinal Van Rossum, then Prefect of the Sacred Congregation for the Propagation of the Faith.

During the five years that he held the very important post of Apostolic Delegate to India, Archbishop Mooney endeared himself to the hearts of Indian Catholics and there was genuine sorrow among them when, in 1931, he was transferred to be Apostolic Delegate to Japan. While Archbishop Mooney was Apostolic Delegate to India, eleven new mission territories were erected and three more were entrusted to the direction of native Indian Bishops.

One of the most outstanding accomplishments while Archbishop Mooney was Apostolic Delegate to India was the settlement of the so-called "double jurisdiction" question which was effected through an accord between the Holy See and Portugal. The question of "double jurisdiction" involved scattered parishes then knelt for his episcopal blessing.

Sought by Reporters

In his visits to this country from India and Japan, newspaper reporters have always sought him out. It so happened that upon one visit there was chaos in India and upon his last visit there was chaos in Japan, but to all queries he would say, "I am there as the personal representative of the Holy Father, to work for the spiritual welfare of my people. The Catholic Church is not in politics."

In the summer of 1930 he came home to fulfill a promise that he had made to his mother when he first went to India, that he would come back. As he had her farewell at that time he knew that he was bidding her farewell for the last time, for age was creeping up upon her and she was slowly declining. She died several months later and at that time he called his family this simple message, "I am with you all in spirit."

In February of 1931 he was assigned to Japan after five years in India. Upon that last visit to Youngstown before returning to India for a second time, he was queried as to whether he would return to India, as it was rumored that the one particular task to which he had been assigned to India was done to the complete satisfaction of the Holy Father and that another task would be assigned to him. His reply to this was, "I can only say, 'I have just come from Rome on my way from India, I expect to return again to India by way of Rome.'"

Even upon the occasion of his most recent visit to his home town, when asked if he would return again to Japan, he said, "Why of course, I have been to Rome, I have given my report and so far as I know I am to return to Japan."

His installation date in all probability will be deferred until the Archbishop receives his credentials from the Vatican. His secretary the Rev. Joseph Hurley, a native Cleveland, remained in Japan during the Archbishop's residence in that country since last February.

Weekly Calendar of Feast Days

(N. C. W. C. News Service)

Sunday, September 3.—St. Seraphim.

Monday, September 4.—St. Rose.

Tuesday, September 5.—St. Lawrence, Justinian.

Wednesday, September 6.—St. Eleutherius.

Thursday, September 7.—St. Cloud.

Friday, September 8.—The Nativity of the Blessed Virgin.

Saturday, September 9.—St. Omer.

LOCAL COLOR IN CHINA

In the September FIELD AFAR the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Francis X. Ford, M.M., of Brooklyn, N. Y., Prefect Apostolic of the Maryknoll Kaying mission in South China, advises readers of Dickens to "Come to China for local color." The following quotation is from his article:

"The view down one of our mission alleys in South China is like a page from 'Barnaby Rudge.' America is too brand-new to figure in such a story. Old China has the garbled trees, and crooked lanes, and ruins at every turn, where foundation bricks have been eaten away by saltpeter and doorless arches are choked with tropical weeds. The very newest dwelling looks ago-old when built, for paint is a stranger in inland China, and the heavy rains soon coat the bricks with moss.

"But it is at night that China is most like England of Dickens' time. As Barnaby Rudge would gallop through the London streets, 'long stands of hackney-chairs, and groups of chairmen obstructed the way.' America has not seen that since the days of Martha Washington; while in many sections of China, it is still the sole mode of travel, unless one has a pony.

"Then, too, in Barnaby's time, shops still adhered to the old practice of hanging out a sign. Indeed, Dickens would be at a loss for a word to introduce his chapters, if there were to be no comments on the swinging signboards. The main street of any town in China looks like a lumber yard on strike. The streets are none too wide at best, and yet are narrowed by two rows of jostling signboards that threaten to hurt themselves from rusty hinges, the better to catch your eye."

Nazareth Hall For Boys Adds Two New Courses

Nazareth Hall for boys, Raines Park, will reopen Tuesday, September 5, for its 49th season.

All standard courses for the registration of 300 will be continued for the eight grades, with the inauguration of a new course in oral expression and one in orchestral work.

Sisters of St. Joseph are in charge of the school. There are three special instructors in the fine arts, and one layman is employed in gymnasium and scout work, which includes indoor as well as outdoor sports and activities of a recreational character.

British Firm To Share Its 1933 Profits With 'Short Time' Workers

London—Acting in the spirit of the Holy Father's Encyclicals on labor problems, the stockholders of John Hardman and Company, a Birmingham firm of stained glass and ecclesiastical artists, have decided to distribute the profits of the year among the employees who have been obliged to work short time.

In fixing the amount the men should receive the stockholders decided that each man's responsibilities as well as his loss of wages, should be taken into consideration. Thus a man with a wife and children will receive more than a single man. John Hardman, managing director, was asked to interview each man and distribute the funds on these lines.

The firm is a company owned wholly by John Hardman, Dunstan Powell, Elphege Pipet and their staff. The articles of association provide that shares can be held only by those working for the company.

B. O'REILLY'S SONS

FUNERAL DIRECTORS

For nearly 50 years

100 STATE ST. MAIN 144

The House With Nobody In It

Millions might have written this of thousands of churches throughout the mission world. These churches are without the Blessed Sacrament because funds are wanting to maintain a resident priest there.

You can help make these churches centers of Eucharistic fervor and missionary zeal by donations (stringless or conditional gifts), bequests or membership contributions to

Society for the Propagation of the Faith

Inquiries cheerfully answered by REV. LEO C. MOONEY Diocesan Director

Columbus Civic Center
50 Chestnut Street
Stone 1492

JOS. J. BUCKLEY

FUNERAL DIRECTOR

796 DEWEY AVE. Phone—GLENWOOD 4906

2 OPPORTUNITIES IN

THE GREAT WORLD'S FAIR A CENTURY-PROGRESS

This magnificent exposition—surpassing all previous world's fairs in originality of conception, and in the many unique and marvelous features of interest, is an event so one can afford to miss. Go to Chicago this year by all means, but best of all visit the great fair on the great ship SEANDREE, which will be your floating hotel during two full days in Chicago.

6 DAY ALL EXPENSE LAKE CRUISE

Starting from Buffalo or Cleveland these special all-expense cruises on the SEANDREE, the largest and finest passenger ship on the great lakes, give you happy, care-free, restful days, with music, dancing, entertainment, games and sports. The scenic beauty of the Detroit River, the St. Clair River, and a four hour stop at Historic Mackinac Island will help make the trip memorable.

(MAIL THIS COUPON)

THE CLEVELAND AND BUFFALO TRAMWAY COMPANY
Foot of Erie Street Buffalo, N. Y.

Conditions—Send me folder giving rates, schedule and full information about your ALL EXPENSE World's Fair Cruises on the great ship SEANDREE.

Name _____

Address _____

Enclosed (check) — $5.00

Send me a ticket for $65.00

The late Bishop John A. Farrelly who preceded Bishop Joseph Schrembs as bishop of the Cleveland diocese was then spiritual director of the North American college in Rome. He, too, saw in the future bishop qualities of priestly virtue and leadership, and watched closely with interest the progress of this brilliant son of humble parents.

Bishop Farrelly, however little dreamed that his contact would be any more than as spiritual director, but some years later when he was appointed Bishop of the Cleveland diocese, his mind turned to the Rome student, a native of his new diocese and immediately a place was planned for him.

Recalled to Diocese

At his ordination in Rome in April 1909, authorities at the North American college, wrote Bishop Farrelly for permission to have the newly ordained priest remain in Rome, but Bishop Farrelly insisted that he be returned to the Cleveland diocese, where an equally important task as Rome had for him, awaited him. The task that Bishop Farrelly had in mind was to organize a central Catholic high school for boys.

Until the time was ripe for this, however, the future bishop was assigned to the faculty of old St. Mary's seminary in Cleveland as professor of theology, serving six years.

Head of Boys' High School

The new high school known as the Cathedral Latin high school of Cleveland was opened in September of 1915 and Archbishop Mooney continued its head for seven years, retiring at that time to become pastor of St. Patrick's parish in Youngstown. The school was turned over to the Brothers of Mary by Bishop Joseph Schrembs who needed the 13 priests that made up the faculty of Cathedral Latin for parish duties in the diocese.

Archbishop Mooney remained only a short time as pastor of his first and only parish, for Rome had not given up hope of having Bishop Mooney as part of the faculty of the North American College. Thirteen years later after his ordination in Rome in 1909, just three months after his appointment as pastor of St. Patrick's in Youngstown, Rome again called him and on this occasion, his new superior, Bishop Schrembs, was just as reluctant to have him leave the diocese, but finally acquiesced and in doing so said, "Considering the great need of priests in the diocese and the eminent qualities of mind and heart of Dr. Mooney, I was at first inclined to refuse the request of the North American college. However, considering the great possibilities the position offers for the education and spiritual formation of students from all dioceses of the United States, I consented. His appointment is a splendid tribute to the great character and scholarship of Dr. Mooney."

Granted Special Privilege

Upon his consecration as bishop in Rome, a special privilege was granted to him in permitting the ceremony to take place in the chapel of his alma mater, the North American college.

Although the announcement of his appointment to India came as a distinct surprise to his friends in America and his consecration date followed closely after his appointment, this did not deter his friends from making a hurried trip to Rome to take part in the ceremonies. He was consecrated Bishop Jan. 31, 1926.

Mother's Sacrifice

This same spirit of resignation must have been inherited from his mother, whose death occurred only four years ago. When he was first assigned to Rome, and it was realized that it meant perhaps a residence for the rest of his mother's life in Rome, a friend said to her, "How can you be so calm, in allowing your son to go so far away from you. How can you give him up so readily?"

"He is not mine to give," she said, "he belongs to God. I gave him back to God, whence he came, many years ago."

One of his first acts following his consecration was to cable his episcopal blessings to his aged mother and shortly afterwards he sailed for America to visit his mother before taking up his new duties in India.

Given Demonstration

Upon his arrival in Youngstown, a demonstration never before given to any Youngstown citizen was tendered the Archbishop as he alighted from an Erie R.R. train. Business was suspended for several hours, traffic was tied up and thousands lined the streets as a procession of clergy and citizenry wended its way from the railroad station to the quiet simple home of Colonial architecture occupied by his mother, his sister, Miss Margaret Mooney and his brother Charles B. Mooney.

The quiet dignity and composure that is the new bishop's is another characteristic that he has inherited from his mother. Although it had been four years since she had seen her son, and although the Holy Father had conferred one of the highest honors of the church upon him, she patiently sat in the living room of her home with her back to the window, outside of which crowds had gathered on the lawn to get a look at the new archbishop. For fully 20 minutes he was detained outdoors by newspaper photographers and reporters for interviews and pictures, and it was not until all this was over and until the newly consecrated Bishop had crossed the threshold of his home and had gone to the side of his mother, that she stood to receive his welcome and

E. H. Knapp & Son

ROOFING

HEATING—VENTILATING
SHEET METAL

384 South Ave. Stone 157

Hedges & Hoffman

FUNERAL DIRECTORS

John M. Hedges

141 Scio St. Main 620

RYAN & McINTEE

SERVICE

IS THE BEST AND COSTS NO MORE

CALL STONE 1464

B. LEO McINTEE

THE FUNERAL HOME

NON-EXECUTARIAN
507 CHESTNUT ST.

and an honor to the Cleveland diocese.

Organizes Mission Unit

As spiritual director of the North American college in Rome, one of his first duties was to organize the Isaac Jogues Unit of the Catholic Student Mission Crusade, a fact referred to at the recent national convention of the Catholic Student Mission Crusade held in Cincinnati, Oct. 8 to 11. It is the largest unit of the society in the world.

His position in Rome brought him in close contact with Vatican officials and he was instrumental in bringing about negotiations for the purchase of a new site for the college, and as such was in almost daily contact with Vatican officials.

Called to High Office

The story is told that when negotiations were completed he was called to the office of the late Cardinal Van Rossum, director of the Society for the Propagation of the Faith. Believing that it was in connection with the purchase of the property, when asked by Cardinal Van Rossum, if he had any idea as to why he was sent for, he replied, "About the division of the grounds of Villa Gabrielle," I suppose.

"Well it has nothing to do with the division of the grounds," the Cardinal replied. "It is quite another thing. If the Holy Father had thought of making use of your services, what would you say?"

His astonishment overcome after a few minutes of silence, Archbishop Mooney replied, "What does your eminence wish in reply to such a question? I am as clay in the hands of the potter. I cannot do otherwise but to acquiesce to the wishes and commands of our Holy Father." "But I am surprised that they should have thought of me," he continued, "and I am afraid that I shall not be able to fulfill their expectations."

"You must not think so," the Cardinal continued. Then he told him that it was the desire of the Holy Father to entrust to Archbishop Mooney the post of Apostolic Delegate to India.

And with this appointment of Archbishop Mooney to India as the personal representative to the Holy Father in a foreign country, it marked the first time that an American was ever assigned to such a position of distinction. Cardinal O'Connell represented the pope on a temporary mission to Japan. The first answer of Archbishop Mooney to Cardinal Van Rossum is typical of the man who is to head the diocese of Rochester. When asked only recently upon his visit in this country from Japan, whether he preferred Japan to India, or either of these countries to America, with a wave of his hand he said, "What difference does it make whether I work in India or Japan, Rome or America, it is God's work wherever it may be done."

Recalled to Diocese

At his ordination in Rome in April 1909, authorities at the North American college, wrote Bishop Farrelly for permission to have the newly ordained priest remain in Rome, but Bishop Farrelly insisted that he be returned to the Cleveland diocese, where an equally important task as Rome had for him, awaited him. The task that Bishop Farrelly had in mind was to organize a central Catholic high school for boys.

Granted Special Privilege

Upon his consecration as bishop in Rome, a special privilege was granted to him in permitting the ceremony to take place in the chapel of his alma mater, the North American college.

Although the announcement of his appointment to India came as a distinct surprise to his friends in America and his consecration date followed closely after his appointment, this did not deter his friends from making a hurried trip to Rome to take part in the ceremonies. He was consecrated Bishop Jan. 31, 1926.

Mother's Sacrifice

This same spirit of resignation must have been inherited from his mother, whose death occurred only four years ago. When he was first assigned to Rome, and it was realized that it meant perhaps a residence for the rest of his mother's life in Rome, a friend said to her, "How can you be so calm, in allowing your son to go so far away from you. How can you give him up so readily?"

"He is not mine to give," she said, "he belongs to God. I gave him back to God, whence he came, many years ago."

One of his first acts following his consecration was to cable his episcopal blessings to his aged mother and shortly afterwards he sailed for America to visit his mother before taking up his new duties in India.

Given Demonstration

Upon his arrival in Youngstown, a demonstration never before given to any Youngstown citizen was tendered the Archbishop as he alighted from an Erie R.R. train. Business was suspended for several hours, traffic was tied up and thousands lined the streets as a procession of clergy and citizenry wended its way from the railroad station to the quiet simple home of Colonial architecture occupied by his mother, his sister, Miss Margaret Mooney and his brother Charles B. Mooney.

The quiet dignity and composure that is the new bishop's is another characteristic that he has inherited from his mother. Although it had been four years since she had seen her son, and although the Holy Father had conferred one of the highest honors of the church upon him, she patiently sat in the living room of her home with her back to the window, outside of which crowds had gathered on the lawn to get a look at the new archbishop. For fully 20 minutes he was detained outdoors by newspaper photographers and reporters for interviews and pictures, and it was not until all this was over and until the newly consecrated Bishop had crossed the threshold of his home and had gone to the side of his mother, that she stood to receive his welcome and

Granted Special Privilege

Upon his consecration as bishop in Rome, a special privilege was granted to him in permitting the ceremony to take place in the chapel of his alma mater, the North American college.

Although the announcement of his appointment to India came as a distinct surprise to his friends in America and his consecration date followed closely after his appointment, this did not deter his friends from making a hurried trip to Rome to take part in the ceremonies. He was consecrated Bishop Jan. 31, 1926.

Mother's Sacrifice

This same spirit of resignation must have been inherited from his mother, whose death occurred only four years ago. When he was first assigned to Rome, and it was realized that it meant perhaps a residence for the rest of his mother's life in Rome, a friend said to her, "How can you be so calm, in allowing your son to go so far away from you. How can you give him up so readily?"

"He is not mine to give," she said, "he belongs to God. I gave him back to God, whence he came, many years ago."

One of his first acts following his consecration was to cable his episcopal blessings to his aged mother and shortly afterwards he sailed for America to visit his mother before taking up his new duties in India.

Given Demonstration

Upon his arrival in Youngstown, a demonstration never before given to any Youngstown citizen was tendered the Archbishop as he alighted from an Erie R.R. train. Business was suspended for several hours, traffic was tied up and thousands lined the streets as a procession of clergy and citizenry wended its way from the railroad station to the quiet simple home of Colonial architecture occupied by his mother, his sister, Miss Margaret Mooney and his brother Charles B. Mooney.

The quiet dignity and composure that is the new bishop's is another characteristic that he has inherited from his mother. Although it had been four years since she had seen her son, and although the Holy Father had conferred one of the highest honors of the church upon him, she patiently sat in the living room of her home with her back to the window, outside of which crowds had gathered on the lawn to get a look at the new archbishop. For fully 20 minutes he was detained outdoors by newspaper photographers and reporters for interviews and pictures, and it was not until all this was over and until the newly consecrated Bishop had crossed the threshold of his home and had gone to the side of his mother, that she stood to receive his welcome and

E. H. Knapp & Son

ROOFING

HEATING—VENTILATING
SHEET METAL

384 South Ave. Stone 157

Hedges & Hoffman

FUNERAL DIRECTORS

John M. Hedges

141 Scio St. Main 620

RYAN & McINTEE

SERVICE

IS THE BEST AND COSTS NO MORE

CALL STONE 1464

B. LEO McINTEE

THE FUNERAL HOME

NON-EXECUTARIAN
507 CHESTNUT ST.

and an honor to the Cleveland diocese.

Organizes Mission Unit

As spiritual director of the North American college in Rome, one of his first duties was to organize the Isaac Jogues Unit of the Catholic Student Mission Crusade, a fact referred to at the recent national convention of the Catholic Student Mission Crusade held in Cincinnati, Oct. 8 to 11. It is the largest unit of the society in the world.

His position in Rome brought him in close contact with Vatican officials and he was instrumental in bringing about negotiations for the purchase of a new site for the college, and as such was in almost daily contact with Vatican officials.

Called to High Office

The story is told that when negotiations were completed he was called to the office of the late Cardinal Van Rossum, director of the Society for the Propagation of the Faith. Believing that it was in connection with the purchase of the property, when asked by Cardinal Van Rossum, if he had any idea as to why he was sent for, he replied, "About the division of the grounds of Villa Gabrielle," I suppose.

"Well it has nothing to do with the division of the grounds," the Cardinal replied. "It is quite another thing. If the Holy Father had thought of making use of your services, what would you say?"

His astonishment overcome after a few minutes of silence, Archbishop Mooney replied, "What does your eminence wish in reply to such a question? I am as clay in the hands of the potter. I cannot do otherwise but to acquiesce to the wishes and commands of our Holy Father." "But I am surprised that they should have thought of me," he continued, "and I am afraid that I shall not be able to fulfill their expectations."

"You must not think so," the Cardinal continued. Then he told him that it was the desire of the Holy Father to entrust to Archbishop Mooney the post of Apostolic Delegate to India.

And with this appointment of Archbishop Mooney to India as the personal representative to the Holy Father in a foreign country, it marked the first time that an American was ever assigned to such a position of distinction. Cardinal O'Connell represented the pope on a temporary mission to Japan. The first answer of Archbishop Mooney to Cardinal Van Rossum is typical of the man who is to head the diocese of Rochester. When asked only recently upon his visit in this country from Japan, whether he preferred Japan to India, or either of these countries to America, with a wave of his hand he said, "What difference does it make whether I work in India or Japan, Rome or America, it is God's work wherever it may be done."

Recalled to Diocese

At his ordination in Rome in April 1909, authorities at the North American college, wrote Bishop Farrelly for permission to have the newly ordained priest remain in Rome, but Bishop Farrelly insisted that he be returned to the Cleveland diocese, where an equally important task as Rome had for him, awaited him. The task that Bishop Farrelly had in mind was to organize a central Catholic high school for boys.

Granted Special Privilege

Upon his consecration as bishop in Rome, a special privilege was granted to him in permitting the ceremony to take place in the chapel of his alma mater, the North American college.

Although the announcement of his appointment to India came as a distinct surprise to his friends in America and his consecration date followed closely after his appointment, this did not deter his friends from making a hurried trip to Rome to take part in the ceremonies. He was consecrated Bishop Jan. 31, 1926.

Mother's Sacrifice

This same spirit of resignation must have been inherited from his mother, whose death occurred only four years ago. When he was first assigned to Rome, and it was realized that it meant perhaps a residence for the rest of his mother's life in Rome, a friend said to her, "How can you be so calm, in allowing your son to go so far away from you. How can you give him up so readily?"

"He is not mine to give," she said, "he belongs to God. I gave him back to God, whence he came, many years ago."

One of his first acts following his consecration was to cable his episcopal blessings to his aged mother and shortly afterwards he sailed for America to visit his mother before taking up his new duties in India.

Given Demonstration

Upon his arrival in Youngstown, a demonstration never before given to any Youngstown citizen was tendered the Archbishop as he alighted from an Erie R.R. train. Business was suspended for several hours, traffic was tied up and thousands lined the streets as a procession of clergy and citizenry wended its way from the railroad station to the quiet simple home of Colonial architecture occupied by his mother, his sister, Miss Margaret Mooney and his brother Charles B. Mooney.

The quiet dignity and composure that is the new bishop's is another characteristic that he has inherited from his mother. Although it had been four years since she had seen her son, and although the Holy Father had conferred one of the highest honors of the church upon him, she patiently sat in the living room of her home with her back to the window, outside of which crowds had gathered on the lawn to get a look at the new archbishop. For fully 20 minutes he was detained outdoors by newspaper photographers and reporters for interviews and pictures, and it was not until all this was over and until the newly consecrated Bishop had crossed the threshold of his home and had gone to the side of his mother, that she stood to receive his welcome and

Granted Special Privilege

Upon his consecration as bishop in Rome, a special privilege was granted to him in permitting the ceremony to take place in the chapel of his alma mater, the North American college.

Although the announcement of his appointment to India came as a distinct surprise to his friends in America and his consecration date followed closely after his appointment, this did not deter his friends from making a hurried trip to Rome to take part in the ceremonies. He was consecrated Bishop Jan. 31, 1926.

Mother's Sacrifice

This same spirit of resignation must have been inherited from his mother, whose death occurred only four years ago. When he was first assigned to Rome, and it was realized that it meant perhaps a residence for the rest of his mother's life in Rome, a friend said to her, "How can you be so calm, in allowing your son to go so far away from you. How can you give him up so readily?"

"He is not mine to give," she said, "he belongs to God. I gave him back to God, whence he came, many years ago."

One of his first acts following his consecration was to cable his episcopal blessings to his aged mother and shortly afterwards he sailed for America to visit his mother before taking up his new duties in India.

Given Demonstration

Upon his arrival in Youngstown, a demonstration never before given to any Youngstown citizen was tendered the Archbishop as he alighted from an Erie R.R. train. Business was suspended for several hours, traffic was tied up and thousands lined the streets as a procession of clergy and citizenry wended its way from the railroad station to the quiet simple home of Colonial architecture occupied by his mother, his sister, Miss Margaret Mooney and his brother Charles B. Mooney.

The quiet dignity and composure that is the new bishop's is another characteristic that he has inherited from his mother. Although it had been four years since she had seen her son, and although the Holy Father had conferred one of the highest honors of the church upon him, she patiently sat in the living room of her home with her back to the window, outside of which crowds had gathered on the lawn to get a look at the new archbishop. For fully 20 minutes he was detained outdoors by newspaper photographers and reporters for interviews and pictures, and it was not until all this was over and until the newly consecrated Bishop had crossed the threshold of his home and had gone to the side of his mother, that she stood to receive his welcome and

E. H. Knapp & Son

ROOFING

HEATING—VENTILATING
SHEET METAL

384 South Ave. Stone 157

Hedges & Hoffman

FUNERAL DIRECTORS

John M. Hedges

141 Scio St. Main 620

RYAN & McINTEE

SERVICE

IS THE BEST AND COSTS NO MORE

CALL STONE 1464

B. LEO McINTEE

THE FUNERAL HOME

NON-EXECUTARIAN
507 CHESTNUT ST.

DE VISSER BROS.

HARDWARE

"DuPONT PAINTS"

Flower City Pk. Cor. Dewey
Rochester, N. Y.
Glenwood 361

Clancy Carting Co.

AND STORAGE CO., INC.

Service Since 1885

Res. Office:
111 Park Ave. 9 Grand Ave.
Calver 2014 Calver 1714

For TAXI Call

MAIN 1100

25c

Genesee Cabs, Inc., 195 St. Paul St.

Laundry

A New Thrift SERVICE

12 pounds 96c

Flat work ironed and apparel returned ready for ironing.

Shirts custom finished if desired at 12c EACH

HAFNER

Home Laundry
Incorporated
595 Clinton Ave. N.
MAIN 2978

Remember This?

FOR centuries large glass bottles or globes filled with colored fluid were shown in the windows of reputable druggists. In the time of the Great London Plague of 1665 they served as beacons of help and protection.

We no longer show colored bottles in our window—but their significance as a symbol of health protection is still remembered whenever we carefully fill a prescription for you.

The Paine Drug Company

Established 1820 24-26 MAIN ST. EAST Rochester, N. Y.

1831—Rochester's Oldest Financial Institution—1933

Money deposited on or before Tuesday, September 5th will receive dividends (interest) from September 1st.

THERE IS NO SUBSTITUTE FOR A SAVINGS ACCOUNT

Rochester Savings Bank

47 Main St. W. —Two Offices— 40 Franklin St.

Open after July 1st, Monday afternoon—3 to 6
For New Accounts and Deposits Only

Resources Over $68,000,000.00

STRENGTH AND SECURITY FOR OVER 100 YEARS—1933