Text of Public Reception Address
Given by Archbishop Mooney

My second remark is merely the expression of an obvious but by no means negligible truth.

It is that in planning supplementary organizations for any particular phase of Catholic work, we should not lose sight of the constitutional organization of the Church which is divided into ecclesiastical provinces, dioceses and parishes.

These are the essential working units of Church administration. In a particular way the strength of the parish unit has been a noteworthy feature of the growth and prosperity of the Church in this country, and it behooves us ever to guard against weakening its practical working force.

We all know, of course, that there are approved societies and movements which transcend parochial and diocesan lines, but they have specifically defined objectives which must ever be kept in view and pursued with due regard to the essential interests of the parish and the diocese.

Parish, a Unit

The individual Catholic's immediate church affiliation is membership in his parish and the obligations of that membership constitute, in a very true sense, his first duty of corporate church activity. It is one thing, however, to say that his duty begins with the parish and quite another to assert that it ends there.

Prophetic voices are raised from time to time among us to decry the evils of exaggerated and exclusive parochialism, and it is easy to admit that in given instances these evils may be real. But in applying the remedy, it seems to me, we should beware lest, in attempting to pull out the cockle, we uproot the wheat.

The ideal, it strikes me, would rather be for the pastor and his parishioners to realize that their parish forms part of a larger unit with larger duties and responsibilities which they should share and for the Bishop with his priests and people to realize that the diocese forms part of a larger unit with larger duties and responsibilities which they, too, should share.

For my own part, I am confident that the pastors of this diocese and their people will support me in discharging the responsibilities of the diocese as a part of this ecclesiastical province, as part of the Church in America and as a part of the church universal.

In turn I assure you that in seeking to enlist your co-operation for what may be termed diocesan projects.

I shall consider that the parish unit is the proper and at the same time the most effective agency through which to reach you.

Work Together

In conclusion let me repeat here what I said in the Cathedral this morning, that I am here simply to take up and carry on the manifold activities which engaged the fine powers and wide sympathies of your beloved Bishop O'Hern when he was so suddenly and, humanly speaking so prematurely, stricken by the hand of death. It shall be my duty to cultivate with tender care what he planted and to study with ready sympathy what he planned.

I cannot, of course, presume to fill the place which almost lifelong familiarity with the varied interests of this community in so far as they touch the work of the Catholic Church had gained for him; but I can assure you of a ready willingness to serve and a deepfelt consciousness of the responsibilities of the office I have today assumed.

And may God bless us and help us all to work together not only effectively but with sympathetic understanding and mutual goodwill.

PROCESSION IS WATCHED WITH REVERENCE

Rochester united in doing honor to the Most Rev. Edward Mooney, D.D., upon his installation as Bishop of the Rochester Diocese, last Thursday.

As the processional wended its way slowly from the Rectory to the portals of St. Patrick's Cathedral, it was greeted with intermittent applause and utterances of good wishes from the hundreds of spectators who lined the walks.

Men, women, and children grouped along the pathway to the Cathedral, represented every walk of life in the Diocese—young and old, rich and poor alike greeted the new Bishop from the bottom of their hearts.

Police, under the capable direction of Inspector James Collins, and Capt. George V. Heisel were on duty long before the actual ceremonies began. They were assisted in maintaining order by members of the detective bureau and uniformed patrolmen as they circled about the Church, the rectory, the Chancery Office, and St. Andrews' Seminary. However their arduous task was lightened by the attitude of the crowd. The assembled people were noticeably quiet, with none of the jostling, pushing or hysteria, which often times marks a gathering of over 1,000. There was little attempt to break through the ropes; the crowd in an orderly manner watched the solemn procession as it proceeded along the cleared streets.

Everyone entered into the spirit which hovered about this church ceremonial. A spirit of simplicity mingled with devotion was felt as the people reverently made the Sign of the Cross as Cardinal Patrick Hayes, and Archbishop-Bishop Mooney raised their hands in blessing.

Must Be Thirty

A Bishop must be at least thirty years of age, at least six months a priest, without stain of birth, of unblemished mind, body and reputation, learned, pious, pure, with training equivalent to that of a Doctor of Divinity or Doctor of Canon Law.—The Brooklyn Tablet.

Papal Marquis

"Marquis, Papal. The third in rank of pontifical titles of nobility. It is held by six subjects of the Holy Crown, one of whom is a papal prince and two of them dukes as well." George McDonald of New York who accompanied Cardinal Hayes to the installation holds this rank.

Archbishop Mooney
Names Msgr. Hart
As Vicar General

Announcement of the appointment by His Excellency, Archbishop Edward Mooney, D.D., of the Rt. Rev. Msgr. William M. Hart, S.T.L., as vicar general of the Diocese of Rochester was made Saturday.

Monsignor Hart who is also pastor of Corpus Christi Church, Rochester, served as vicar general under the late Bishop John Francis O'Hern from March 1929 until May, 1933. From May until Archbishop Mooney's installation, Monsignor Hart served as vicar capitular or administrator of the diocese.

The vicar general to Archbishop-Bishop Mooney was educated in St.

Bridget's School, St. Andrews and St. Bernard's Seminary and was ordained in St. Patrick's Cathedral, New York. After serving at St. Patrick's Church, Seneca Falls, he was transferred to assistant pastor, Corpus Christi Church.

Receiving the appointment as vice-chancellor of the diocese and secretary to Bishop Hickey, January 1922, he became familiar with the duties of the Chancery office and on March 19, 1923 after the elevation of Bishop O'Hern became vicar general and pastor of Corpus Christi Church. In August of the same year he was elevated to the rank of Domestic Prelate by Pope Pius XI with the title of Monsignor.
