GOVERNOR RITCHIE PRAISES TOLERANCE PRINCIPLES OF CALVERTS AT CROSS DEDICATION MARKING TRICENTENNIAL OF MARYLAND'S FOUNDING

N.C.C.M. HAS NO PART IN BARRING RADIO SPEAKERS SAYS N.B.C. PRESIDENT

Catholic Men's Council Is in Charge Only of 'Catholic Hour,' M. H. Aylesworth Makes Clear; Discusses Father Coughlin Incident

Washington, March 24.—(NCWC).—That the National Council of Catholic Men has any responsibility for any Catholic radio broadcast other than the "Catholic Hour," and that the N.C.C.M. "Catholic Hour" Committee barred the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, noted radio speaker, from the use of the National Broadcasting Company's facilities, is emphatically denied in a letter from Merlin H. Aylesworth, president of NBC, made public here today.

The letter is addressed to the Rev. Michael J. Ready, Assistant General Secretary of the National Catholic Welfare Conference here. Father Ready is also Director of Speakers for the "Catholic Hour," which is sponsored by the National Council of Catholic Men.

Mr. Aylesworth states that he has been embarrassed by erroneous interpretations placed upon testimony he gave before the House of Representatives Committee on Merchant Marine, Radio, and Fisheries in Washington this week. His letter to Father Ready follows:

Aylesworth Letter Text

"Since my testimony before the House Committee this week, I have been embarrassed by the interpretations placed upon my statements.

"The impression has been created that the National Council of Catholic Men is responsible for all Catholic programs broadcast over the networks of the National Broadcasting Company. This is not true.

"The National Council of Catholic Men is responsible for the Catholic Hour on Sunday nights from 6:00 to 6:30. We selected the Council as a great representative Catholic group to sponsor our regular Catholic period, which we feel has been of great benefit to a better understanding of Catholic principles in our country. Outside of this one period, the Council has no responsibility for any additional time which may be allotted by the National Broadcasting Company for Catholic programs.

N.C.C.M. Did Not Bar Fr. Coughlin
"The impression also has been created that the National Council of Catholic Men barred Father Coughlin from speaking over the National Broadcasting Company networks. This is not the case. Some time ago Father Coughlin asked to purchase time from the National Broadcasting Company for broadcast of his regular Sunday afternoon program. I informed him that we did not sell time for religious broadcasts.

"In the course of my testimony I was asked about Father Coughlin. In answering the question, it was my desire to state our company's general religious policy.

"We have had numerous requests from many individuals in the field of religion, including Father Coughlin, to give them regular programs on our networks. We would like to comply with many of these requests, but the limitation of time makes it impossible to do so.

"Under our plan of religious broadcasting, which I have always felt to be sound, we invite without

Deny Naming Cardinal As Papal Legate

Berlin.—(NCWC).—Reports in the secular press to the effect that His Eminence Michael Cardinal von Faulhaber, of Munich, would be appointed Papal Delegate in the near future are incorrect.

Since both the Apostolic Nuncio to Bavaria, and the Bavarian Minister to the Holy See will soon be recalled, Bavaria having ceased to exist as an independent federal state, the thought to appoint Cardinal Faulhaber Papal Delegate, thereby securing the rights of extraterritoriality for him, had been suggested, but given a papain. It is being recalled that the Cardinal Archbishop of Cologne has always been Legatus natus of the Holy See in Germany and no change is expected to be made in his status.

Leading United States papers, and a leading news service for secular papers, have stated not only that Cardinal Faulhaber would be appointed a Papal Legate, but that he had actually been so appointed. This led to much speculation. The above despatch, showing these stories to be erroneous, definitely puts at rest these guesses.

DOLLFUSS USES ENCYCLICAL TO REVISE LABOR

Guided by 'Quadragesimo Anno' in Movement To Establish Christian State

By DR. FREDERIC FUNDER (Vienna Correspondent, N. C. W. C. News Service)
Vienna.—The reforms through which Chancellor Dollfuss is striving to effect, in the sense of the Encyclical Quadragesimo Anno, the transition to a Christian corporate state are producing changes of the greatest consequence. As these reforms aim at creating a true Christian commonwealth, bringing about the solidarity of all honestly working groups, the program radically removed all former forms of public life and dissolves the old parties including the Christian Social Party, which for 40 years had been the champion of Christian principles.

Just as this reform program seeks to eliminate class warfare as preached by Socialism, it does away with all organizations that sprang up under the era of class antagonism. It attempts to unite employers and employees in a community of which all its members are conscious. For this reason the reform would scrap all the old trade unions and unite the workers in one single union divided into five groups of trades and professions, which would be brought into an organic co-operation with the employers.

Following this procedure, the Christian trade unions of Austria decided in favor of their voluntary dissolution on the condition that Christian leadership would be secured in the future unions.

Led War on Socialism

For almost half a century the Christian trade unions, being the militant organizations of the Catholic workers, led the struggle against Socialism. Their history is one of heroically borne sufferings and persecutions in their struggle with all-powerful adversaries who excluded them from the workshops of every workman who admitted preference for a Christian trade union. So enormous was the power of the Social-Democratic trade unions that even Catholic employers were unable in their own undertakings to obtain recognition of the Christian trade unions. All the means of boycott and force were used against them by the Socialistic trade unions.

It so happened that even printing offices belonging to Bishops, and all the undertakings of Catholic papers had to operate with staffs organized on Social-Democratic principles. Only in recent years have Catholic printing offices and papers succeeded in freeing themselves from this coercion.

Countless persons have been ruined financially in this struggle of the Catholic laborers for their freedom to combine, and memorable is the martyrdom undergone by poor workers who were unwilling to sacrifice their Catholic conviction. Driven from workshop to workshop, expelled like outlaws from every job they had secured, they and their families were exposed to starvation and scorn.

Christian Unions Grow

When the power of Socialism in Austria began to wane, the Christian trade unions gained some liberty of action. In 1927, they numbered throughout Austria only 78,000 members and 910 local groups, while the Socialistic unions had 772,762 members in 3,268 groups. In 1931, the Christian trade unions had increased the number of their local branches

Mission Vocations In Ireland Praised

Dublin.—(NCWC).—Addressing the month branch of St. Joseph's Young Priest's Society in the Convoy of Mercy, on the subject of the Chinese Missions, the Rev. T. McGovern, of the Waymouth Mission to China, said a wave of enthusiasm was spreading over Ireland and boys and girls were rushing to the standard of Christ the King to go out on the foreign mission. Describing the hostility of some people towards those who left their country in order to convert pagans he said he had heard people say "Why leave their fathers and mothers broken-hearted? Why not stay in Ireland to save souls? We're there not pagans in Dublin, Cork and Belfast!" and his reply to such people was to admit the fact that the missionaries were "fools." So was St. Patrick a "fool" for coming to Ireland. Because St. Patrick was a fool we are today enjoying the fruits of Christ's Redemption and basking in the sunshine of God's blessings.

Father McGovern stressed the need for more volunteer to help to save the souls of countless millions of pagans.

2,000 ATTEND CEREMONIES ON MARYLAND ISLAND WHERE CATHOLIC PIONEERS LANDED

Jesuit Provincial Recalls Colony as Haven for Persecuted; Inscription on Cross Marks Beginning of Religious Liberty in State

St. Clement's Island, Md.—(NCWC).—With Governor Albert C. Ritchie, of Maryland, calling upon the people of his state to rededicate themselves to the principles laid down by Sir George Calvert, the first Lord Baltimore and carried out by his sons, Cecil and Leonard Calvert, and with the Very Rev. Edward G. Phillips, S. J., Provincial of the Maryland-New York Province of the Society of Jesus, as a spiritual descendant of Father Andrew White, S. J., thanking God for the blessings conferred on Maryland in the past 300 years, the three hundredth anniversary of the founding of Maryland was celebrated last Sunday at St. Clement's Island, by the dedication of a great memorial cross "on" or "near the spot" on which Leonard Calvert, Father White, Father Altham-Graves, Sr. J., and the other Maryland Pilgrims erected another cross to the honor and glory of God on March 29, 1634.

Two thousand pilgrims from Baltimore, Washington and Southern Maryland, together with a few from more distant points, attended the tricenennial ceremonies.

Calverts' Give World Vision, Example for Religious Liberty Says Gov. Ritchie

St. Clement's Island, Md.—(NCWC).—The Catholic Calverts gave to the world "the vision and the example which, once implanted in the human heart, will quench the dangerous consequences of religious antagonism and prejudice, whose embers and smoldering fires unhappily still abound," declared Governor Albert C. Ritchie, of Maryland, speaking at the dedication of the memorial cross Sunday in commemoration of the tricenennial of the founding of Maryland.

The Governor formally accepted the cross on behalf of the State of Maryland at the dedicatory rites, which were attended by 2,000 persons. The cross was presented to the State by the Maryland Tercentenary Commission.

"I know it is inspiring to you, free citizens of this sovereign State to stand here on St. Clement's Island where the pioneer settlers of the Province of Maryland first disembarked, and where three hundred years ago they gathered and worshipped. And it is a high and inspiring honor to me, as Chief Executive of the State of Maryland at the close of these three centuries, to stand reverently before yonder cross, and accept it, on behalf of the State, in commemoration of the Cross before which, on this same spot, the first Governor of the Province of Maryland stood at the beginning of this span of three hundred years.

Obstacles Overcome
"Here at last, on this little Island, all obstacles which the settlers encountered had been overcome. The great adventure itself—the promise of a land where religious freedom should prevail and a self-governing people should live—was, of course, still for the future; but the difficulties which for so long had beset the undertaking, and delayed the voyage to this Land of Promise, were all behind the intrepid travellers who had finally embarked upon the adventure.

"The powerful opposition in England had failed. After the departure from Cowes, the last spark of this opposition flickered for a moment at Yarmouth, where some conspiring sailors were expecting orders to turn back. Then it died out altogether before the evening gale which caused the Dove, in order to avoid collision with a French cutter, to set sail without further delay, and the Ark followed.

"They had reached Virginia, where Leonard Calvert learned that through unfriendly sources the Indians had been inspired with fear that the colonists were Spaniards

The new windows represent a series of incidents in the Life of St. Elizabeth.

Following the blessing of the windows, Benediction was given. The Apostolic Delegate was then seated at the Very Rev. Thomas Walsh, S. J., Superior of Georgetown University.
