Women's Chorus Shows Ability To Sing Well Church Music Numbers

Demonstrating in an able manner what may be done by a well-trained group in the singing of liturgical music, the Catholic Women's Club chorus in the annual concert, May 23 at the Normandie followed with a program that was pleasing throughout and gave evidence of conscientious rehearsing.

Under the direction of Raymond J. Hasenauer, the chorus of thirty voices, well balanced, did especially effective work in an a capella rendition of Palestrina's 'O Bene Jesu.' In the group numbers by Rene Becker from the Mass in Honor of St. Catherine, the chorus revealed the beauty of this type of choral singing, admirably presenting the Kyrie Eleison, Sanctus and Benedictus.

Effective rendering of Luigi Arditi's 'Sparkling Sunlight,' came with the singing of Miss Lillian Moore in the gay soprano part, supported by Mrs. Frank Temmerman, second and Mrs. F. H. Kaiser, alto. The trio also did well with a lullaby in which Mrs. Temmerman took the solo part. In the brilliant piano piece, the Mendelssohn Concerto in G Minor for two pianos, Miss Mildred Ehmman and Miss Edna Hauser were heard and were given prolonged applause. The entire program was an intelligently selected one and the singers all possessed of good voices gave a program that impressed hearers greatly with their singing.
