

GRADUATES TO LIFE

By Ernest W. Veigel, Jr.

President of Rochester Business Institute

DURING this month the World pauses to do honor to some millions of youth who, having completed courses of study, are "graduating." The World smiles, as it does so, The World knows that many bitter lessons are still to be learned.

Many of these lessons will be unnecessarily bitter. Young men and women will find that life's answers are not in the lack of the book. Educators seeking effective instruction methods have set up standards having no parallel in the business or the professional world. They have too often mistaken the means for the goal. Only in a very few outstanding instances have they established this important fact: Education is life rather than preparation for life.

When education has "found itself" there will no longer be a great gulf between the graduate and life. The change will be both agreeable and natural. One of the most interesting statements I have ever heard came from a young girl busy in her first position after graduating from the Rochester Business Institute. She said enthusiastically: "Mr. Veigel, a day at the office is just like a day at R. B. I."

Please do not mistake me in my viewpoint. I do not say that education must always mean ultra-practical training. Theory has its place even in business. It is the need for a proper proportion in the four main avenues of education (social, physical, intelligence and character) that has led to a new standard called "Balanced Training." A realization of all factors in this connection only can result in education's goal.

Graduates of today are vastly better prepared than those of a decade past. The future will bring still greater improvements. Meanwhile, let us all add, in as far as is humanly possible, the graduates of 1934 to a happy solution of their immediate post graduation problems.—Adv.

Plans for the train and march to the ball park are in charge of a committee headed by John W. Driinger of Corpus Christi Society, Marshall of the Diocesan Union.

SODALTALK

Recording the Activities of Rochester Parish Sodality Union

Have you decided on your delegate to the Summer School of Catholic Action? A letter from the Central Office in part reads:

"We are most anxious for some ideas as to the number of students at each school. We hope you will let us know how many we can expect from Rochester, approximately. I really hope that besides the officers of the Union every active Sodality in your diocese will attend. In other words, I won't be at all surprised if about twenty-five Sodality directors show up. Rochester has long been outstanding in Sodality work."

SS. Peter and Paul's Sodality are planning a garden party next Saturday, June 9, in the rectory garden. Afternoon social and bridge has been arranged. Sodality and their friends are invited. On Monday, June 11, their regular meeting night, election of officers and installation of new members will take place.

General communion, Sodality reception, renewal of Act of Consecration, Mothers and Daughters' banquet, and an entertainment comprised the program of May Day celebrated by Our Lady of Perpetual Help Sodality, Trinity Sunday. The Rt. Rev. Msgr. John P. Schoborn was speaker at the banquet.

Impressive reception ceremony of 47 new members in St. Andrew's Sodality took place in the Church, last Sunday with a procession of 200 school children. The Rev. Joseph Vogt, director of St. Boniface Sodality was speaker for the occasion; the Rev. George W. Eckel, pastor of St. Andrew's presented the medals to the candidates, and the Rev. Francis X. Kleehammer, director of the Sodality, presented the diplomas of membership. Reception followed in the school hall.

The salvation of a single soul is of more value than all the riches in the world.
