literary merit. That he has succeeded in that high aspiration is now matter of history known to every person who has at least a bowing acquaintance with "The Sign". But the most remarkable thing about the magazine as embodying the aims and ideals of Father Harold is that it treats of our every day concerns in language readily understood by the man in the plain jacket, all the while sustaining a high literary tone.

"The Sign" is Father Harold. It reveals him as the priest, zealous for the Lord of Hosts; the literary man satisfied only with the best; the practical man who never allows his presentation of religious truth to become unintelligible to the layman; the crusader, championing every down-trodden soul and fighting any, even a forlorn cause, if only it be for the right.

Distinguished Layman
Judge Cohalan is one of the best known members of the Catholic laity. A descendant of one of the pioneer Irish families, Judge Cohalan is prominent as a leader in Catholic lay activities and is known both in this country and abroad. Serving in a diplomatic position, he was chairman of the commission which appeared before the Foreign Relations Committee of the U. S. Senate and the Foreign Affairs Committee of the House of Representatives in 1919 and 1920 in behalf of the independence of Ireland. In 1923 he made a tour of Ireland with President Cochrane advocating acceptance of the Free State.

As a militant opponent of the World Court and League of Nations, he appeared before Congressional committees on several occasions in his fight against these two movements. Taking a strong stand against disarmament by the United States unless it was coincident with disarmament by the European powers, he has also opposed reduction of the European war debts on the ground that reducing these debts would merely cast an extra burden on the American taxpayers.

Irish Ancestry
Judge Cohalan, whose grandfather, John Cohalan, was the first Irish and Catholic settler of Middletown, was born in that little village in the early 70's. At the first Mass celebrated in Middletown, of the 11 who were present, six belonged to the immediate family of John Cohalan. From that beginning the Catholic population of Middletown has grown to be one-third of the people of that city.

One of the 12 children of Timothy and Ellen O'Leary Cohalan, Judge Cohalan, through his forbears and the relations of his wife, the late Hanna O'Leary, is related to and connected with people of Catholic stock in nearly every country to which the Irish have gone.

His name-ake, close friend and distant cousin, is the Most Rev. Dr. Cohalan, the present Bishop of Cork. One of his great-grand-uncles was the Most Rev. David Walsh, Bishop of the diocese of Cloyne and Ross, and president of the Irish College at Louvain in Belgium, as had been his predecessor and uncle, the elder Bishop Walsh.

He has had relatives prominent in the Jesuit and Franciscan Orders and many of the older and present generation among the secular clergy. One of his grand-uncles, the Rev. John McCarthy, in the 50's of the last century, had charge of all the territory from Greenpoint to Greenport on Long Island, out of which territory more than 150 parishes have since been carved. A cousin, who died recently, the Rev. Francis McCarthy, S. J., was at the time of his death, the oldest member of the Society in New York.

Manhattan College Trustee
A graduate of Manhattan College, Judge Cohalan was admitted to the bar in 1888. He practiced law in New York until 1911 when he was appointed to the Supreme Court bench. At the following election, he was named for a full term, but resigned in 1924 to resume practice, pointing out the necessity of larger salaries for justices of first class men are to be retained or placed on the bench. His two oldest sons, Conn and Daniel F. Jr., are engaged in the practice of law with their father in New York.

Judge Cohalan is a student of American History and a member of many historical societies. He prepared an exhaustive paper on General John Sullivan which was read at the annual meeting of the American Irish Historical Society in 1932. Judge Cohalan is the oldest trustee in point of service of Manhattan College.

Meteor That Fell In South Africa Is Found by Missioner
Salisbury, South Africa.—(N.W.C. Files)—A meteor which fell in Southern Rhodesia has been located by the Rev. Francis Gita, S. J., of Muzani Mission.
A native led the missionary to the terrifying "maminimini" a "uza" which fell to the earth. Many of the natives were afraid to talk about it; some thought that it meant the end of the world, and a deputation went to the mission to ask for baptism because they believed that there would be no time for further instruction.

POPE IN FREQUENT PRONOUNCEMENTS STRESSES NEED FOR CATHOLIC PRESS

At the beginning and again at the close of 1933, writes Mr. Enrico Pucci, Rome Correspondent for the N.G.W.C. News Service. His Holiness Pope Pius XI took occasion to make pronouncements which emphasized not only the importance, but also the necessity of the Catholic Press.

Current Movies That Violate Producers' Code (The Queen's Work—Sedately Service)

"LAUGHING BOY." Produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. From every angle, stupid and terrible. The critics have deservedly "boycotted" it. Once the producers of Paramount Navarre in a picture guaranteed it as clean. Now his presence almost assures an audience it will be soiled and unpleasant. This time he plays an Indian in a stupid, unwholesome, repellent plot opposite Lupe Velez who is disgusting. Protest to Metro Goldwyn-Mayer, Culver City, California. Protest to James Navarre, Culver City, California.

"HE WAS HER MAN." A crazy effort on the part of Warner Brothers to recapture some of Cagney's slipping popularity. The film shoots holes in the Code. No one but a devotee of Cagney's rough, uncouth, gangster parts could tolerate this film of crime, crime, hell, hell, love, deception of trusting, decent people. Joan Blondall plays a woman of the streets. The whole thing is ridiculous and thoroughly boring. Protest to Warner Brothers, Hollywood, California. Protest to James Cagney and to Joan Blondall, Hollywood, California.

"MURDER AT THE VANITIES." Produced by Paramount. A blend of musical show and mystery thrill which turns out to be neither. The notorious Earl Carroll has for years soiled Broadway with his productions. Now Hollywood has adopted him. When this play appeared on the Broadway stage, the critics thought it terrible. In the film version it is vulgar, loud, as suggestive—disagreeable—concerned with the murder of a young woman, and is often tiresomely dragging.

"DR. MONICA." Warner Brothers have played hob with the Code this month. No young person could possibly enjoy this dreary, unwhimsical, tearful, depressing, clinical study of an illegitimate baby. The old, stale triangle plot reappears, and this time is solved by the deliberate and romanticized suicide of a young woman. Kay Francis and Warren Williams play what is a ridiculous travesty on life. Protest to Warner Brothers, Hollywood, California. Protest to Kay Francis, Hollywood, California.

VERGIE WINTERS'. Ann Harding once promised to be our finest film actress. We remember her gratefully in "Holiday". But she has been miscast in a succession of "tar-jerkers", playing the misunderstood, misled, unhappy, sinful woman, until she and her films have grown insufferably wearisome. This is one of her worst. It is another triangle yarn climaxing in the murder of the man in the case by his wife. It parodies life and will not please anyone who does not go to the theater for "a good cry". Protest to RKO Radio Pictures, Hollywood, California. Protest to Ann Harding, Hollywood, California.

In the mind of His Holiness, support of the Catholic Press is more than a manifestation of good works; it is a form of the Christian apostolate, and the Catholic Press itself is an instrument for the diffusion of the fruits of the Redemption.

Worthy Apostolic Field
In the month of January, 1933, in addressing a group of Italian university students whom he had received in audience, Pope Pius XI said of the Catholic Press: "Here is a field of apostolate truly worthy of the solicitude and interest of all good Catholics, and especially of members of Catholic Action."

At the close of the year, when L'Avvenire d'Italia, an old and established newspaper of Bologna was inaugurating a Rome edition, His Eminence Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, Papal Secretary of State, telegraphing to the management of the paper in the name of Pope Pius, said that the Holy Father "hopes that the Catholic newspaper, a necessary means for the apostolate, may find great sympathy and aid from the people and may bring a valid contribution to the Christian education of the family."

And while these pronouncements stressed the Catholic Press as a necessary means for the apostolate, we know what manner the apostolate itself is regarded by His Holiness, namely, not as the work only of the Bishops and the clergy, but also of the laity, who place themselves beside their pastors and priests to offer their cooperation in that part of the work which cannot be reached by the direct and personal activities of the priests.

Faithful Divine Mandate
Therefore, in the mind of the Holy Father, the work of Catholics in support and development of the Catholic Press is one of the forms of the Christian apostolate, one of the means of complying with the Divine Mandate to spread throughout the world the teachings of Jesus Christ and to cooperate in the development of that Christian life which is the aim of the Redemption. And this is a thought which His Holiness has developed many times in the course of the Holy Year of Jubilee commemorating the sixtieth anniversary of the Redemption. The object of Our Lord in accomplishing His Redemption, the Holy Father has told the various pilgrimages, has been that of bringing Catholic life, His life, into the world and of bringing with it the greatest abundance. All those who wish to work for Christ must direct their efforts to the development and intensification of this Christian life, he also has said.

Then the work of the Catholic Press, considered in the development of Catholic Action, namely in the collaboration of the laity in the hierarchical apostolate of the Church, is a help to the spreading of Christian life, a cooperation in the development of that life, in the diffusion of the fruits of the Redemption.

Index of Catholic Life
This is why the Holy Father, on more than one occasion, when speaking with those near him, has been happy to be able to verify the fact that in some countries the Catholics have numerous newspapers that are well managed and are of wide influence. His Holiness has always considered this element of the press as one of the most eloquent indices of the flourishing of Catholic life in a country and has been saddened to hear that the Catholic Press in this or that place is deficient.
In the United States, where the Bishops have established an agency such as the N.G.W.C. News Service to serve the Catholic Press, Catholics have reason to be proud that they are fulfilling the Holy Father's desires in this field, and must take from these sentiments the courage to exert even more intensive efforts in the support and development of the Catholic Press.
