AT THE PAPAL SUMMER ESTATE

View of the terraces of the papal summer villa at Castelgandolfo, overlooking the Lake of Albano, 15 miles from Rome. Pope Pius XI (inset) in moving his residence to the summer palace, August 1, has broken a precedent that has stood since 1870. It is the first time since that date that a Pope has remained outside the Vatican overnight. His holiness proposes to carry on the duties of his office while here.

Brochure Stresses Nationalistic Aims of Reich 'Nordic Religion'

London.—(N. C. W. C.)—The purely nationalistic aims of the new "Nordic or Teutonic" religion which certain extremists among the Nazis of Germany desire to establish are emphasized in a pamphlet just issued by the Friends of Europe here on the subject of "Germany's National Religion."

The brochure, which includes a foreword by Gilbert K. Chesterton, carries excerpts from two books written by outstanding Nazi leaders which have been placed on the Index Expurgatorius by the Catholic Church.

The excerpts tend to show the intention of these extremists to bring about the abandonment of Christianity and to establish a new religion based on the deification of the German State as the foundation of the Nordic or Teutonic civilization, which, writers aver, has been responsible for everything noble in, and beneficial to, humanity.

The brochure also carries the texts of the decrees of the Sacred Congregation of the Holy Office condemning to the Index the books in question. They are: "The Myth of the Twentieth Century," by Dr. Rosenberg, and "The German National Church," by Professor Bergmann.

Mr. Chesterton, in his foreword, declares that "the myth of the modern Germans, especially in its relation to the ancient Germans, was made quite recently and quite artificially." It was "invented by professor and imposed by schoolmaster, and it has not even the remotest connection with any historical truth whatever," he says. "Today," he adds, "no well informed person has any right to be ignorant of the part really played, not by the Germanic chaos, but by the Roman order and the Catholic faith, in the making of everything civilized or half-civilized, including Germany."

In replying to the claim made by Rosenberg and Bergmann that the "idea of honor" is "specially German," Mr. Chesterton asks his readers to "imagine the Prussian professor slowly and carefully reading Horace's version of the story of Regulus and duly noting the fact that no Latins or men of the Mediterranean have had any idea of honor." "To call it a German idea," he writes, "is about as sensible as to call it a Finnish idea or an Icelandic idea. Since all men, even the rudest, have some rude forms of conscience, it did doubtless exist more or less in various Teutons, as in various Celts and Slavs and Semitic Arabs. But the most powerful examples of it, the clearest praises of it, the longest traditions of it,

PRIESTS GIVE REAL SERVICE IN CCC CAMPS

Washington:—(N.C.W.C.)—Letters from members of the Hierarchy received by the Very Rev. Dr. John J. Burke, C. S. P., General Secretary of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, reveal that in all parts of the country priests acting as spiritual directors are performing invaluable service in the Civilian Conservation Camps set up in connection with the Government's reforestation project.

The religious ministrations given by these priests include the offering of Holy Mass and the administration of the Sacraments, but they also extend into almost every field of immediately helpful service. The reports evidence both the zeal of the priest and the faith of the Catholic youth in the camps. In many instances also, the work of the priest has a special providential aspect. For example, boys who, having lost their religious and social moorings and become wanderers during the years of unemployment, have been brought to a new sense of responsibility and a new will to obtain work and settle down to useful citizenship.

In numerous cases the aid which the Government has decided to give to this work of spiritual and social rehabilitation will be of the highest value. Particularly is this true in the poorer dioceses, where the expense of attending the spiritual needs of the youths in the camps has been great. And it is precisely in the less populous dioceses that most of the camps are situated.

Often the camp that a priest must serve is 50 or more miles from his parish church. Time and expense are required of pastors whose parochial duties were great before the coming of the reforestation camps. Both diocesan clergy and members of religious Orders have given time and effort to the task, visiting the camps to celebrate Mass, administer Sacraments and give instruction. In some camps missions have been conducted for the Catholic youths quartered there. These missions have been the means of bringing many boys back to the practice of their religion. In one camp, 28 boys have returned to the Church.

Papal Delegate Lauds Five-Year's Labors of Medical Mission Board

New York.—(N.C.W.C.)—Gratification over the work of the Catholic Medical Mission Board in the last five years and praise of the Board's activity as "a work of mercy that should appeal to all who are followers of Him Who healed the sick, the lame, the deaf and the blind" are expressed by His Excellency the Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, Apostolic Delegate to the United States, in a letter to the Rev. Edward F. Garesche, S. J., president and director of the Board, made public here by Father Garesche.

The Apostolic Delegate's letter was evoked by a perusal of the Medical Mission Board's report of activities for the past five years, which includes the numerous good works offered for the benefactors.

The report of the Board discloses that 5,748,682 good works have been offered for benefactors in the course of the past five years. It further shows that the Board has sent to the missions in the same period 6,511,683 articles ranging from printed matter to bandages and dressings. A total of 276 missions, conducted by 95 religious communities, have been aided with medical and other supplies.

TROOPS OF CATHOLIC BOY SCOUTS IN AMERICA REACH TOTAL OF 1859

New York.—(N.C.W.C.)—There are in the United States and its insular possessions 1,859 Boy Scout troops organized under Catholic leadership. It is revealed in the report submitted to the Bishops' Committee by the Rev. Dr. Edward Roberts Moore, national director of the Catholic Committee on Scouting of the Boy Scouts of America.

The report, together with a letter from the Most Rev. Francis C. Kelly, Bishop of Oklahoma City, and Tulsa and Chairman of the Bishops' Committee on Scouting, has been sent to all members of the Hierarchy. Dr. Moore was appointed national director of Catholic Work in the Boy Scouts of America last March, after the Bishops' Committee, in meeting at Washington, had requested His Eminence Patrick Cardinal Hayes, Archbishop of New York, to designate him for that important post.
