The lids on a dozen or more leagues in Catholic bowling circles will be popping off within the next firthight for the 1934-35 season.

Right now circuit officials are busy mapping out schedules which will carry them into next spring, selecting team personnels and ironing out the thousand and one details incidental to the formation of such organizations.

Assisting Barney Cahill in the organization work are Vice-President of the stanish dent Ed Ford of Corpus Christi and Secretary-Treasurer Al Terharr of St.

Before the curtain was lifted on this year's pinning program, there was a strong hope of getting some action from the Catholic Bowling Association aimed at general supervision of the various leagues.

It is to be hoped that from the experiences of the coming year will come some real lessons which, in the future, will eliminate the spectacle of the president of the Catholic League casting around for a team entry within ten days of the scheduled start of the season.

Bowling parallels basketball in the winter sports cycle and hence why not lend a kindly car to the proposition. of Clem Bayer of the C.Y.M.A.?

Clem managed the C.Y. boys in the Catholic Baseball League but his real sport love has been basketball. He strongly urged the formation of a court league of some kind last year and this year he's just as anxious to get things started.

The question of the practicability of a Catholic Basketball League in Rochester has been debated pro and con for these many years and no one seems to have found the right answer. The boys don't think the Catholic circesses and hence they are of the opinion that an entirely new plan of some kind should be evolved. Now the formation of a basketball league is no easy task. Difficulties not encountered in a baseball circuit are found in the court game and upon the solution of these difficulties rests the ultimate fate of a league. The question of where to play the games and how to meet expenses is a poser for any manager or set of officers.

Then, of course, some critics point out that the public has developed a certain apathy toward basketball in recent years and there's nothing in sight to change that trend.

In my opinion there must be more interest in the game than the expressed opinion views of one man to warrant even thinking of a league. When an interested group can demon atrate a sound course to follow in the conduct of a league, then it will be time for action.

Again the International League hampions have lost out in the socalled league playoffs to determine the International's representative in the Little World Series with the American Association standard bearers. Last year Rochester eliminated the champion. Newark Bears and this year it fell to the lot of Toronto to force the champs out of the series. All of which brings up the question: How
