What About Sterilization?

NO. 2—STERILIZATION AND MENTAL DEFECTIVES

By
James J. Walsh, M.D., Ph.D.

This is the second of a series of eight articles. There are to be three more by Dr. Walsh treating of Sterilization from the scientific point of view, followed by three articles by the Rev. Ignatius W. Cox, S. J., of Fordham University, dealing with the subject from the moral standpoint.

A few years ago the English people, and particularly those interested in science, became very much alarmed over the prospects of such a rapid increase of mental defectives in their population that they would surely become a very serious burden, for the state in the next generation. There was actually a sort of panic with regard to this, and some echoes of that reached this country and were dwelt upon by those who felt that we must at once have laws passed for the sterilization of the unfit in order to prevent what seemed to be almost impending catastrophe of the English-speaking intellectual classes.

About a dozen years ago a book was written in England with the title, "The Yellow Peril," which attracted wide attention. By that title the author did not mean the threat of the Mongolian races against white civilization, but the occurrence, among people of pure white blood, of the births of what were called Mongolian idiots. These were children born with certain Mongolian features, slant eyes, high cheek bones, somewhat flat noses, and above all with a high palate which apparently encroached on the brain space and which perhaps was one factor in the production of distinct mental backwardness in these children.

What the author of the book called "the Mongol in our midst," added to the fears among certain susceptible-minded people and led to an investigation of the whole subject of the feeble-minded. This investigation formulated the conclusion that while perhaps mental deficiency was increasing in England, it was certainly not increasing rapidly. There was even some doubt whether the attention now paid to the subject did not lead to the disclosure of more of these feeble-minded than before—that there were actually not more of them, but that more of them were reported to the public.

When Mr. Joseph Choate returned to this country after having been Ambassador to England, he said in his own inimitable way, when asked to talk at a dinner for the benefit of mental defectives, that "this subject of the feeble-minded is ever so much more interesting than it was a short time ago because there are so many of us."

The result of the investigation in England allayed the panic fears, but led to the determination to investigate the subject more fully, and above all to investigate what had been accomplished in this country by our sterilization laws and other efforts in that direction.

The Brock Committee, as it was called in England, after looking into the question rather carefully, declared that while they found no evidence of harm being done by sterilization (meaning thereby physical harm), nothing practical was accomplished by it. Above all, the parole rate for defectives was not increased. Let me explain this: One of the great objections to permitting the mentally deficient to be

Mission Apathy Sign of Decadence, Says Spain Catholic Daily

Madrid—(N. G. W. C.—Fides)—An editorial in El Debate, whose owner and editor, Senor Herrera, is one of Spain's most distinguished Catholics, issues a clarion call to mission action. The complete life of faith must include labor to extend the faith, says the daily.

The editorial was occasioned by the Course in Missiology held at the Catholic University of Santander at which Senor Herrera gave an important address, embodying the same sentiments expressed in the paper. It begins by citing the message of Archbishop Salotti, Secretary of the Propaganda, which exalted "the golden pages of missionary conquests during the centuries of discovery which continue still as the brightest glory of the Iberian Peninsula."

Unfortunately, says the editorial, Spain suffers now from much lack of interest in this Catholic cause.

CATHOLICS IN GERMANY FEAR VOTE IN SAAR

Alarm Based On Danger of Further Curb In Liberty After Plebiscite

Amsterdam, Holland—(NCWC)—Growing alarm is being felt by German Catholics, according to latest reports, lest their freedom be impaired to an even greater degree than heretofore under the Nazi regime as soon as the plebiscite in the Saar Territory, which is to be held in January, is over. It is emphasized that the majority of the Saar population is Catholic, and in view of this it is believed that the Nazi officials are still using a certain amount of restraint when dealing with Catholic matters. At the same time, however, indications within Germany itself seem to justify the fear as often expressed by German Catholics that basic tendencies within the Nazi party are anything but favorable toward the Catholic Church, and that the party ultimately intends to establish a National German Church which would be independent of Rome. The leading Catholic paper of Holland, Maasbode, stated recently after quoting Chancellor Hitler's own words in his speech at the Hindenburg funeral, "Dead March, enter now into Walhall," that these "dissonant, provocative" sentences denote the struggle now proceeding in Germany "between Christ and Satan."

Brings Suppression Only recently August Hoppe, a member of the Hitler Youth organization, published an article in the magazine Nordland, which contained such sentences as these: "The age of Christianity has definitely come to a close. The idea of uniting all peoples under the Jewish God Jehovah is dying out. May the representatives that the church with its Middle-Age dogmas is out of mode. The German younger generation is proud to live without the conceptions of sin and grace." The periodical was suppressed for one month after these disclosures, and the editor was punished, while the author himself was expelled from the Hitler Youth.

On the other hand, various measures which have caused serious apprehensions among Catholics, have become known. The "Association of German Catholics," which was established some time ago by former Vice-Chancellor von Papen to promote a better understanding between Catholics and the Nazi party, has been dissolved. The majority of German Catholics did not support the organization, and of late even its timid protests against injustices committed against Catholic priests and laity were not relished by Nazi officials. An official organ of the Nazi Labor Front published an article containing most vicious attacks against the Jesuits, calling them "the scourge of Europe and of the New World." The chairman of the Catholic Youth groups of the State of Baden, M. Adam, was arrested and confined to a concentration camp on the alleged ground that he had shown hostility to the government. All the properties of the former Volksverein, leading organization of German Catholics in the field of social action, were confiscated.

COLUMBUS AND EARTH'S SHAPE
PRIESTS, FRIENDS OF COLUMBUS
ENGLISH, IRISH WITH COLUMBUS

As Discovery Day is approaching we may drop Mr. Brisbane for a week or two. In the meantime he will, without doubt, have something more to tell us about how the new "science" has done away with our belief in God, in Heaven and Hell, and in our own importance on this speck of matter called the Earth. This article is respectfully dedicated to the K. of C.

Only three days after Columbus believe it. Neither in the days of Galileo, nor in the days of Copernicus did anybody doubt of the sphericity of the earth. The proofs for that we will see on another occasion. But there is another falsehood about the roundness of the earth which you may have possibly believed when you were a child. My memory of those distant days is not very clear; but it now seems to me that I got a wrong impression from pictures I used to see of "Columbus at the Spanish Court," and from what I read of him in school books, and elsewhere.

Columbus, as you will remember, had wandered much around Europe trying to get a hearing for his proposal: that by sailing westward he could reach the outposts of Asia. He

SEMINARY IN MEXICO SHUT -- EXPEL BISHOP

Zacates Ordinary Takes Refuge In Capital; His Priests Driven Out

By CHARLES BETICO
(Mexico City Correspondent, N. G. W. C. News Service)

Mexico City—It is settled that the Catholic Seminary of Puebla is to be closed, and there are rumors that other seminaries also will be closed, through action of the Ministry of Gobernacion.

The closing of the seminaries will only serve to add fuel to the fires of indignation against the Government's educational policy which have been ignited all over the country.

Bishop Is Expelled
Meanwhile, the Most Rev. Ignacio Plasencia y Moreira, Bishop of Zacatecas, has been expelled from his diocese by the civil authorities and has taken refuge in the Capital, where it is assumed that he will be allowed to remain. Every priest has been expelled from the city and diocese of Zacatecas.

In the city of Colima, capital of that State, not a child has attended the official schools since September 15 and parents are adamant in their determination to continue the school strike until the Government withdraws its anti-Constitutional decree.

At Monterrey, following a strike called by university students and disturbances in the streets when socialists were implanted in the state University, a large group of parents went to the Governor's residence to protest against socialist education. A committee was selected to present a petition to the Governor, but the committee succeeded in seeing only his secretary. The latter informed the committee that no action could be taken regarding the petition since the Federal Congress has not yet amended the Constitution.

Students Issue Protest
Students of the state college at Puebla have issued the following manifesto:

"The doctrine which it is being attempted to impose upon us by violence and force, would destroy the fruits of the Revolution, and, moreover, would pave the way for the destruction of the very independence of the country."

"Mexicans, if you would remove the tricolor from our country and substitute another standard to be substituted for it, permit this pseudo-scientific socialism to be implanted. Scientific socialism recognizes no frontiers, seeks to destroy the independence of all countries, and tries to force all Mexicans to join hands in ready comradeship with the enemies of our country."

Fr. Nieuwland, Home, Says U. S. Keeping Pace With Science In Europe

Notre Dame, Ind., (NCWC)—The Rev. Julius A. Nieuwland, C.S.C., professor of Chemistry at the University of Notre Dame and discoverer of a method for the production of synthetic rubber, returning after four months in Europe, declared today that America is easily keeping pace with discoveries of European scientists.

Father Nieuwland went abroad as an American delegate to the convention of the International Acetylene Association.

Father Nieuwland, who is president of the Indiana Academy of Science, recalls as the highlight of his trip, a half-hour audience with Pope Pius XI, whom he found extremely interested in the developments of American science and able to discuss expertly the most technical problems.

He presented the Holy Father with the first fountain pen in which synthetic rubber was used and on his return to Notre Dame made a similar gift to the Rev. John F. O'Hara, C.S.C., president of the university.

He declared that he found no original work being done in the development of synthetic rubber and that any practical experimentation in their field was along lines already patented in the United States.

German Catholic Clergy Chiefly From Country

Munich, (NCWC)—Only one-third of the Catholic clergy of Germany originates from rural districts, according to Father F. X. Hartmann, of Augsburg, who made a special study of this problem in his district and has now published the results of his investigations. He thinks that the figures established for Augsburg are largely indicative for the whole country.

DEVOTION TO CHRISTIAN HOME UNITED CATHOLIC ACTION AID URGED ON NCCW BY PRELATES

POPE PRAISES CATHOLIC ACTION PROGRAM CARRIED OUT BY N.C.C.W.

Washington—(NCWC)—The efforts for Catholic Action started by the National Council of Catholic Women are praised by His Holiness Pope Pius XI in a message conveying the Apostolic Blessing read by the Most Rev. John F. Noll, Bishop of Fort Wayne, at the National Council of Catholic Women's fourteenth annual convention held here Sunday morning.

The cablegram, signed by Archbishop Joseph Pissardi, of the Papal Secretariate of State, is as follows:

"The Holy Father, very grateful for the homage, love and wholehearted loyalty of the National Council of Catholic Women at their annual convention, and mindful of the praiseworthy efforts made under the guidance of the zealous Episcopal Chairman for carrying out a program of Catholic Action, most willingly bestows the Apostolic Blessing on them and their deliberations."

Rochester Diocese Represented At NCCW Convention; Miss Doran, Mrs. O'Donnell, Mrs. May, Heard

Delegates from Rochester Diocesan Council, National Council of Catholic Women, took active part in the fourteenth annual Convention of the N.C.C.W. held in Washington, September 29 to October 3, with three Rochester representatives on the program of speakers.

Miss Carolyn Ruth Doran, Elmira, spoke on "Moral Recovery" at the evening session, October 1, in the ballroom, Hotel Mayflower. On the same program with Miss Doran were: Miss Elizabeth Morrissey, Notre Dame College, Maryland; "Economic Recovery," and the Very Rev. Magr. Fulton J. Sheen, The Catholic University of America; "Spiritual Recovery."

Mrs. Emily O'Donnell, Rochester, talked on the CATHOLIC ACTION magazine during a morning session devoted to "How to Use to Advantage the Official Organ of the 'NOWO and NCWC.'" During an afternoon panel discussion on "Parent Education for Character Training," Mrs. Henry G. May, Rochester, presented "The Home—A Workshop for Character Training."

Other Council members who attended from the diocese are: Sister Katherine Doerhoefer, Mrs. Teresa Ganster, Miss Mary Buell, Mrs. Joseph Flannery, Mrs. George Otto, Mrs. Elizabeth Dean, Miss Gertrude Kellerson, Miss M. A. Burke, Rochester; the Misses Claire Brophy, and Mary T. Ryan, Elmira.

In her address on "Moral Recovery," Miss Doran said in part: "I maintain, therefore, as my principal thesis that we must return to old established ideas of morality to old reverence to the ideals of Catholic womanhood of a better and gentler time to that seeming paradox of true greatness in utter humility at the foot of Faith—the Church of God before the world at large can be made to realize complete co-ordination of the human with the Divine Will—before complete morality in economic, moral or spiritual endeavor can be established on this earth."

Archbishop Shaw reported that in the course of his ad limina visit with the Holy Father, he called attention to the official organ of the archdiocese and that of his own accord the Holy Father bestowed his benediction upon it.
