LET'S GET DOWN TO "BRASS TACKS" ON THIS QUESTION The following editorial appeared in the New York Herald Tribune December 26, 1934

Whatever may be the merits of the controversy between the power industry on the one hand and those in and close to the Administration on the other, one point has stood out clearly in the several clashes that have occurred...

Three specific instances can be cited in support of the general observation. The first was the Pupelo incident on November 15...

Most people who believe in the achievement of justice through established processes must regard with great misgiving the un-American policy of the Administration in respect to the power industry...

If you believe that the issue should be squarely met and that it should be met before hundreds of millions of taxpayers' money is thrown into the whirlpool of wild experimentation...

How to Make Christmas More Joyful Next Year

The joy to those you love is one of the most beautiful Christmas experiences. It's a wonderful thing to contribute to the happiness of a dear friend or a beloved relative.

Hornell Briefs

Mrs. Frances O'Connor, 69, died at her home on State Street, Hornell, after a week's illness. She is survived by her husband Thomas O'Connor...

Charles J. Tanner R. is a patient in St. James Mercy Hospital where he was operated upon Monday. Mr. Tanner is a prominent layman interested in the diocesan Scout program...

Postmaster Francis J. Kelly is pleased to see all of Hornell's population that post office business increased 15 per cent over December 1933.

Boy Scouts of Troops 9 and 59, St. Ann's Church, delivered baskets, which they made up to several of the needy families of Hornell.

The new St. Ignatius Loyola Church is fast coming to look like a religious edifice. The people of the parish are greatly pleased at the prospect of a fitting environment for worship.

Mrs. J. Raymond Kelly was general chairman of the Charity Ball given in Hornell New Year's Eve, which netted the St. James and Bethesda Hospitals a generous addition to their funds.
