SCHOOL STRIKE CALL ISSUED DESPITE BAN

Government cannot expect this type of education "without failing its most rudimentary duties" as a parental organization, it is stated.

Because socialistic education destroys the family "by depriving parents of their children, by accepting free love and endorsing dangerous 'education', because it is 'atheistic and attacks all religious beliefs', and further, because it denies parents their right "freely to educate their children," the National Union of Fathers of Families calls upon all parents to defend their rights by calling a general school strike "so long as Article 3 of the Constitution as amended shall be in force."

Private schools in Mexico City, attended for the most part by foreign children, opened last Monday after having complied with the requirements of the law as to social education. They report, in general, a decrease in registrations accounted for the fact that Catholic children, foreign as well as Mexican, are to be educated within their homes.

Secularistic Doctrine

When asked by a group of reporters to define secularistic education Minister Garcia Tellez said that the educational program had been stated clearly in his statement of December 22, 1934. "The substance of this program," he said, "denies and disowns the absolute and unassailable right of private ownership in accord with the criterion of the Constitution of 1917 itself which impresses upon private ownership the condition that the public interest demands."

The Minister was asked whether an attempt is being made to train the young generation in a revolutionary spirit in the sense that young people would fight against the capitalist regime so that at a propitious moment the dictatorship of the proletariat could be established as a means of destroying the bourgeois regime. "Yes," he replied, "since the President of the Republic, in his tour of the country, in his speech at Campeche, has announced that he wishes the active participation of the proletariat in the composition of the Authority and there could be taken as an example his own political work accomplished in the State of Michoacan where the councils and the local legislature were made up of authentic representatives of organized labor."

When asked about the possible effect of the freedom of the universities upon the socialistic education outlined in preparatory schools Minister Garcia Tellez said: "I believe that the generation present in the schools is desirous of the Christian education based on the Christian faith and solidarity in the struggle for the emancipation of the proletariat will serve as the antidote against the imitation of Mexican youth with the doctrine and recidivism of the working class."

The Minister of Public Education has affirmed roundly that the Government intends "to form in the new generations a revolutionary spirit so that youth will fight the capitalist regime and at a propitious moment, establish the dictatorship of the proletariat and that President Cardenas advocated this in his electoral campaign. So far neither the President nor any representatives of his Government is modifying or qualified the affirmation, although such a policy directly abolishes the democratic representative or federal system of government which the Mexican people are supposed to have."

Need of Assured Annual Income for Workers Cited by Dr. Haas

Administration has already gone a long way in recognizing the justice of this principle of increased annual income. In the first place, it has increased yearly wages by raising workers from the necessity of hiding against one another, below minimum wage and above maximum hour levels. In addition, there are a few codes guaranteeing a weekly wage irrespective of the number of hours worked that the burden is placed squarely upon the employer to provide income for the workers who are ready and willing to work. It also a number of codes require the payment of wages during waiting time in a factory and NRA Administrative Order X-124 extends this to all codes. Even while a man is not working, he is entitled to a certain level of wages and it is attached to the employer and the industry, he is entitled to payment. Labor cannot too strongly urge the extension of this principle to include a recognized and supervised by government level of wages must be adequate, as the only real protection for the American worker.

Assured Annual Income

"But there are other methods available to the Administration in addition to the inclusion in codes of provisions that have just suggested," stated Dr. Haas. "The Recovery Act includes in its purposes the policy of Congress to induce and maintain the united action of labor and management under adequate governmental supervision and supervision. Labor is prepared to cooperate with management in the handling of the problem of adequate annual income. Indeed through a period of years a number of government departments have cooperatively with the employers in their industries have made substantial gains toward establishing higher annual earnings for their members. Such efforts have been made that appear to be excessively high hourly wages which, when stable employment is not practicable, are a form of, or at least a beginning toward an annual wage. Such cooperation has stimulated some extension of the production period through a longer period of the year, and in some instances resulted in guarantees of annual incomes in the form of lump sums or of unemployment insurance. Indeed the record of such accomplishments prove strikingly that such efforts have been far more important than those initiated alone by private individual employers. Labor strongly urges, therefore, that the Administration make it a part of its program to promote higher annual earnings by developing and fostering the mutual cooperation that comes from the shorter work week of workers with their employers."

"This is a program of social security which is fundamental, direct and sound. Other efforts looking toward social security, are to be undertaken and supported and labor does support them. But beyond all other schemes, big assured annual earnings to workers must come from the direct relationship between employer and employee, supervised by government, to the extent that such supervision is necessary."

The trouble is not that one-half of the world doesn't know how the other half lives, but that it doesn't give a darn. - Los Angeles Times.

STAMPS AND MISSIONS

Stamps make mighty little missionaries, with emphasis on both might and little. Our Stamp Bureau is enjoying increased patronage in receipts of good material and in orders from stamp buyers the money obtained therefrom is very helpful, as it enables us to help in emergencies for which no other means are available. We encourage therefore our mission friends to keep up their stamp activities. All cancelled stamps are useful, domestic and foreign, provided they are sound and whole. The best way of sending them is in a box by parcel post or in a metal-clasp envelope as fourth class mail.

MEXICAN EMBASSY DENIAL OF PERSECUTION BLASTED

Washington.—(NCWC)—A statement just issued by the Mexican Embassy to the United States here, that there is no religious persecution in Mexico, is "absolutely contrary to fact" and is "purposely worded to mislead the people of the United States and other nations," it is declared in a vigorous statement issued here Friday by the Very Rev. Dr. John Burke, C. S. P., General Secretary of the National Catholic Welfare Conference.

Sequence of the Embassy statement followed the introduction of the Senate Thursday a resolution by Senator Borah of Idaho calling upon the Senate to protect the anti-religious campaign by the Mexican Government, to condemn its cruel, and to authorize a Senate study of the religious situation in Mexico.

The Embassy statement denied the existence of such persecutions, and quoted a recent expression by President Cardenas of Mexico that citizens in that country were not molested in the practice of any religion, and also that ministers of religion complying with the laws "are exercising their ministry in Mexico City and throughout the Republic without being molested in the least."

Dr. Burke refutes the Embassy's statement directly by citing the very laws now enforced in Mexico. He marshals six categories of persecution, emphasizing that in each case the withholding of religious liberty is under legal enactments of Mexican governmental bodies.

of his "butcher-of-crochans and of shelter."

Striking out against the Federal Reserve Bank, which he characterized as the Gibraltar of the plutocrats, Fr. Coughlin said that it is the program of the National Union for Social Justice to put the Government into the banking business "insofar as it issues loans for small business at a reasonable rate of interest." He added that "it is not our purpose to put the individual banker out of business provided he wishes to loan real United States money instead of manufactured money."

The National Union, Fr. Coughlin said, advocates that the Government finance its public works and pay its employees out of the National Treasury. "The Nation and secured by the wealth of the Nation at no interest." He said that the Government should "take over the Government bonds now extant. As they become due," he said, "their holders should be paid off in redeemable currency which bears no interest. By this procedure almost one billion dollars a year could be saved in interest money to our Government."

It is the proposal of the National Union for Social Justice, the speaker said, "to nationalize this organization which exists under the name of the Federal Reserve Bank."
