

Library Institute—Congratulations

By Ernest W. Veigel Jr.
President, Rochester Business Institute

The school library movement, in my estimation, is still another evidence of the enterprise of the Diocese of Rochester in its forward-looking program of education.

The word "study" is here used as a disadvantage. Too often its meaning implies hard work with little immediate recompense.

The library movement in Rochester, Diocese should have its mark for the entire country. Other schools in other sections look to it as an example in building equipment, courses of study, and selection of personnel.

It may be interesting that libraries are gaining popularity elsewhere. The creation of a four thousand publication unit at Rochester Business Institute as already under way.

Once more to the Library Institute, its management, and the leaders of the education division of this diocese—congratulations!

MOONLIGHT MANOR

A Romantic Story
With Scenes Laid in the Genesee Valley

By AGNES HORSCH HOFMASTER

Whoever he is, he's as nimble as the wind. Jack himself, thought Oren Kenney. There's nothing wrong with him now, that I can see. And I ought to know. If he had forgotten her name, how could he account for it? But he hasn't. He very plainly states that he is Pete Smith. But I can't feature Andy being under any influence of us. She's too in love. Questions do happen however, as I can prove. And poor little Andy in her reaching for the moon and getting it may have reached for a lesser star, too. I just prime Pete myself. Doctor's ways of finding out things.

Owen and Larry were hanging about the gates and chattering. Maryanna baked innumerable cakes and Andy and Mom made salad and Boston beans.

Well, I like that wonderful little lady. Alanna. Hope she'll be my sister some day. And listen, boy, right now I am pretending to be that already. So if she's had any affair of any kind with you, about your trap you boob! She wouldn't look at my kind twice except out of pity.

What is your game then? What do you want from her that you are making her keep a secret? That's not what I guess but Oren saw the thrust go home.
Darn you, Kenney. You'd drag her in to get me. Well I'm no piker if I am a dud. I did it all over than you did. I never set my lamps on her till Saturday morning. The secret she's keeping for me is this I haven't the faintest glimmer of what my name is and she knows it. I asked her to keep still. Yes, how do I know what happened to me before I smashed when I don't even know who I am? I do know that car don't belong to me. I wouldn't own it. Mr. Fellek is snappy. But how the heck can a guy without a name or place to home or wherever it is he roasts? There now, to hell with you. That's all.

CHAPTER XXII
Pete—Comes Home
Eileen had forgotten her "Lit" book at the library and though she was nearly half way home from school that Thursday evening, she began retracing her steps.

She had gone only a few rods. Last night when a "mooning" drove up at the side of the road, beside her, and a gray-headed man leaned out of the window.
"Pardon me, young lady, but do you by chance know how we can find Moonlight Manor?" he spoke courteously and Eileen had the absurd desire to say "Alice Munton! Munton—Alice!" after the manner of the White Queen. Restraining herself, however, she directed the four distinguished occupants of the car how to reach their destination.

Each boy, from the lowest in standing up still can—with a little effort—make good for himself. This is not "cut throat" fair. We guarantee that the winners can not buck each other until the later rounds. At which time they have already secured themselves good earnings. The hardest workers in the consolation rounds will "cash in" too. Weigh the possibilities and judge for yourself.

What About Your Will?

Is your last will and testament an evidence of your spiritual allegiance? When making your will you should not forget your soul nor that the goods of this earth are to be used and not abused to be employed among other things, for God's honor and glory and the welfare of your less fortunate brethren.

There is no better way of disposing of earthly possessions, after other obligations, personal, parochial, diocesan, have been fulfilled than by making them serve the cause of the Propagation of the Faith in the Holy See, as established for the support of all missions.

1831—Rochester's Oldest Financial Institution—1935
19—Do You Remember—15
On May 7, 1915, the entire world was shocked at the startling news that the Lusitania had been sunk without warning just off the Irish Coast by a German submarine with appalling loss of life.
This ruthless catastrophe which staggered the world, was one of the saddest chapters in the history of the World War. The ghostly deed was condemned by all.
The world throughout its history has suffered countless shocks, many of which have been of a financial nature. The individual, too, experiences financial shocks. The best shock absorber is a savings account, built up by making regular deposits every pay day.
During a period as short as five years, $3.00 deposited every week will amount to nearly $900.00. It is surprising how fast small deposits, made regularly, mount up.
