ANSWER MADE TO CRITIC OF FR. COUGHLIN

(Continued from Page One) ing to hitch-hike on the giant plane of Father Coughlin's popularity. A subtle, unknown cleric from Croton Falls, N. Y., presumes to take up the cudgels in behalf of the sanctity of Canon Law, although there are in this country more than 100 Bishops perfectly capable of doing this if they thought for a moment that the teachings of Pope Leo XIII and Pius XI were being distorted in a way to injure the Faith.

Defining Political Activity "This anti-Coughlinite," the editorial says, "claims the right to define political activity. Yet the action of federal courts shows that non-partisan activity is not confined to a political movement in the United States. The Anti-Saloon League exercised a greater influence on legislation than Father Coughlin has attempted to do. The Rev. Michael C. Wall, rector, presented the diplomas, and congratulated the graduates on having accomplished their work.

The Rev. Paul Gaffney of Rochester, chaplain of the State School at Industry, gave the graduation sermon, comparing the training in the parochial schools of the country to the bow and arrow. Father Gaffney said: "Tonight those arrows have been released in your graduation, sent out into the world in the hope that they will go in the direction—in which—they were pointed."

Members of the class are: Edith Anshah, Francis Bender, Shirley Bergin, Galsomina Brevetti, Elias Burr, Jane Casby, Marjorie Conroy, Mary Clawson, Ruth Cowan, Avis Creadon, Caroline Crudele, Virginia Cuppin, Clementine De Agostino, Laura Frances, Lucy Frances, Anne Lambert, Jane S. 2 African Princesses Invested as Scouts in Nun's Troop in Uganda

New York.—(NCWC)—Two African princesses, daughters of David Chwa, King of Uganda, have been invested as Girl Scouts, or Girl Guides, as the organization is known in British Africa, according to a report which has come from the national Girl Scout headquarters here, from Sister M. Anna, a Franciscan nun, who was formerly a Baltimore Girl Scout leader.

Sister Anna, formerly of the convent of Our Lady of St. Francis in Baltimore, introduced the program on her arrival at the convent of Our Lady of Peace at Nkokonero, Uganda. She had always been an enthusiast in the matter of Girl Scouting, and found that the British encouraged the program in the various schools. Four of Sister Anna's girls are studying in the Normal School and four in the Hospital—Training School for Nurses, which co-operates with her teaching. She also plans to help train the local school for wives in teaching the art of cooking.
