Film Life Of Bernadette

A biography of Bernadette Soubirous, showing her ascension from a humble shepherd girl of Lourdes to a Saint of the Universal Church, has just been filmed in France, with the approval of the Hierarchy, and contains authentic scenes. These views show St. Bernadette making a rustic altar in the fields near Lourdes, praying before the Grotto, taking the veil with her companions and during her illness in the convent at Nevers.

NATIONALIST CALENDAR IN MEXICO STRIVES TO 'PAGANIZE' FEAST DAYS

Nicholas the Christ Child or the Three Kings this great Christian custom of rewarding good children has a hold upon the people that could not be easily uprooted.

And so the Nationalist Calendar takes care of January 6. Mazatl according to the Aztec reckoning in this manner

"Day of the Mexican Kings and of the Law of Wasteland Dotation

The secular tradition, possibly one of the most beautiful that exists causes all children on this day to receive gifts of toys and sweets which, as a reward for good conduct, are found in their little boots on this morning.

"At dawn on this morning the warrior Zamna, founder of the Mayas, rides on a swift deer, the great Aztec commander, Tenoch, founder of the city of Anahuac, on the wings of a royal eagle, King Lautaro, Lord of the Yaquis, on a terrible jaguar, the great King Dzanhuitzandah, Lord of the Mixteens, on the shoulders of a ferocious puma, and, finally, Tariafuri, the mythical king of the Purhepecha, mounted on a great American lion, hurry through all sections of the Republic, carrying innumerable toys from Olinala, Puebla, Oaxaca, Michoacan, Jalisco and other States and great quantities of sweets to divide them among the children who the night before left their little boots near the open window."

Day of Sports Contests

This is also the anniversary of the "restitution of the land to the people" by Venustiano Carranza in 1915. "The day being Sunday throughout the day great sporting contests should be held in the country. Youths and men should be eager to devote themselves to vigorous exercises which at the same time will train muscles, form character and develop qualities of serenity and decision, and to dedicate themselves to practicing the well known game of 'Chueca' showing thereby the great advantages which these exercises give to our youth, and the attraction that is presented for the ladies who, dazzling in their beauty and finery, come to these spectacles which are tournaments of virility, strength and dexterity."

Children also are to receive one on December 25, the "feast of Quetzalcoatl" who places the gifts near their beds. Quetzalcoatl is the "man of all goodness, the dispenser of welfare and tranquility, who lavishes his gifts and fills the Mexican land with prosperity."

Palm Sunday is the "Day of the State of Tabasco." Ash Wednesday the "Day of Monetary Reform." Holy Thursday the "Day of the Baths of Tehuacan." Good Friday the "Day of the Environs of Mexico City" special visits to historic Coyoacan, the gardens of Villa Obregon, Zochimilco, Tlalpan, Ixtapalapa and Penon, but no mention is made of Guadalupe. Easter Sunday is the "Day of the State of Aguascalientes." Corpus Christi the "Feast of the National Typical Costumes," and the feast of Our Lady of Guadalupe, patroness of Latin America, is listed as the "Anniversary of the Founding of Mexico City."

Two days of special interest are August 15, the "Day of the Square and the Compass" which is to be dedicated to "rendering a homage of love and sympathy to Universal Masonry," and August 31, the "Day of the Socialist School." In eulogizing the socialist school, the Nationalist Calendar states that it is only natural that the "scientific and rational" methods used do not satisfy those who are interested in continuing the exploitation of man by man, fanaticism and ignorance. "For that reason," it is stated, "some gentlemen of the Government have seen the necessity for correcting the subversive misbehavior of certain clerics who forget their role and the Constitutional circumstances under which they must function, violently opposing the limits of the law."

Cardenas' Indorsement

In his indorsement of the calendar, President Cardenas says the institution of festivals for each profession will "banish from daily life the celebration of religious myths" and will be "a great step in the task of elevating the spiritual level of the masses." Rafael Melgar, the compiler of the calendar, gives as the secondary purpose of the book "the spiritual and mental liberation of our people, fettered for so many centuries by a fanaticism which actually excludes all reasoning, all thought and, above all, doubt, which is the only patrimony of talent."

In the "Declaration of Principles and Program of Action of the Nationalist Campaign of the National Revolutionary Party," a chapter preceding the actual calendar, it is stated that one feature of the campaign is "to efface from its (the people's) mind and spirit our fatal atavistic tendency which, as in all static and contemplative religions, creates fictitious miracles based on mere coincidences and has made of our people a mass of indolent contemplatives."

"This work of defanatization," it continues, "will be effected with all necessary tact by substituting for the religious festivals which are held periodically in every city, town and village of the Republic, feasts, fairs and expositions of the products of the region, autochthonic diversions, or artistic manifestations."

In the "Condensed History of Mexico," it is mentioned that President Calles, "a man of strong courage and will" brought the constructive work of the Revolution to its fullest realization despite the "bourgeoisie and the clergy, who, in the name of Cristo Rey, launched upon an armed struggle and decreed a ridiculous economic boycott against the Government. General Calles, without the least debility, continued carrying out his program while the Army of the Revolution destroyed the fanatical movement, dealing at that time the final blow to clerical reaction and thus cleansing the country so that peace, for the first time in its history, within the institutional period, might enter the country."

Catholics Urged To Cooperate In Peace Movement

Washington — (NCWC) — Catholics in the United States are urged to co-operate both by education and action in the cause of peace in a pamphlet that has been issued by the Catholic Association for International Peace.

The pamphlet is entitled "Catholics and the Peace Problem in the United States."

"The Association," the pamphlet says, "would have Catholics in the United States do more than their numerical part to prevent another world war. More than our 'patriotic principles are here involved. Or rather, our citizenship influenced by our moral obligation to justice and charity calls upon us to act.

"The Association urges Catholics in the United States to place their trust in God, to pray earnestly that the world not load itself again into the moral and physical shambles of war, and to study diligently and work faithfully for the peace of the world.

"The Association urges Catholics to extend Catholic Action and the knowledge of Catholic principles in order to banish enmity, to create a true love of Peace and a willingness to peace throughout the United States. It urges also active co-operation with organizations of general membership where there is clearly no danger of any misunderstanding of the principles of the Catholic faith.

"It commends particularly the reports that have thus far come from its Committees and invites Catholic organizations and individuals to use these reports as a basis of study and discussion.

"It recommends also two steps that can well be taken by Catholic organizations. One is to have frequent lectures and addresses at organization meetings on topics in the field of international relations. A second is to create groups for the study of international relations."

The pamphlet also tells the history of the C. A. I. P., its aims, its plan of committee work, activities through its various committees, membership requirements and the activities of study groups. It lists the publications of the C. A. I. P. which are now available.

1,000 Will Attend Laymen's Retreat At Notre Dame U.

Notre Dame, Ind.—(NCWC)—More than 1,000 Catholic laymen are expected to withdraw from worldly distractions to attend the 17th Annual Laymen's Retreat on the University of Notre Dame campus from the first to the fourth of August.

In addition to individual Catholics from all sections of the country, 17 Notre Dame alumni clubs in the Mid-West will send groups to the retreat.

Exercises are conducted by members of the Holy Cross Mission band and most of them are held outdoors before a replica of the Grotto of Lourdes. The Rev. Patrick H. Dolan, C. S. C., is retreat master.

Priest Who Won Fame For Flood Relief Dies

Indianapolis — (NCWC) — The Rev. Joseph F. Weber, pastor of the Church of the Assumption who, because of his great civic work and his heroism, particularly at a time when Indianapolis was cut off by a flood in 1913, was known as "the Mayor of West Indianapolis," died Saturday night at the age of 70 years.

At the time of the 1913 flood, Father Weber lent every possible aid to the stricken citizens of his community. In his church, situated on high ground, he housed 300 of the flood sufferers for more than a week. Then, when the flood waters subsided, Father Weber donned overalls and helped to clean up the debris in the houses of the sufferers. He was the friend of the poor of all creeds and colors.

St. Bernadette Film Produced in France; Tells Her Life Story

Nevers, France (NCWC) A "filmed biography" of Bernadette Soubirous, showing her ascension from a humble shepherd girl of Lourdes to a Saint of the universal church, has just been completed, and will be shown throughout France beginning this month.

Parts of the film were made at Lourdes, where Bernadette is pictured tending her sheep; others were taken, by special permission of Bishop Patrick Flynn, in Nevers within the convent where the Pyrenean Saint spent the final years of her life. Indeed, the Sisters of Nevers, for the first time in their century-old history, became "film actresses" for several days, so that the atmosphere of the film could be as authentic as possible.

The story of Bernadette's life is unfolded with a charming sobriety; all attempt at theatricalism has been barred; and since Bernadette alone saw the Virgin, the latter nowhere appears in the film. Bernadette is played by a youthful French girl whose name will never be revealed, she played this role neither for money nor publicity, simply for love.

The film ends with some incomparable visions of Lourdes during an international pilgrimage. The nightly torchlight parade, with the basilica illuminated with floodlights, is an impressive spectacle that those who view the film will have difficulty in forgetting.

Poetry of Catholic Journalist Published

Dubuque (NCWC) — "Selected Poems" by Anthony F. Klinker, state editor of the Catholic Daily Tribune, and Poet Laureate of Iowa of the Poet Laureate League of America, has made its appearance. The volume contains unpublished poems as well as some that have appeared in Catholic and secular magazines, newspapers and poetry journals.

The final proof of modesty is to have a cigarette lighter that works and not brag about it.—Rock Island Argus.

Father DePincier, Noted Journalist Observes Jubilee

Chicago — (NCWC) — The Rev. Jerome DePinclar, O. S. M., distinguished figure in the field of Catholic journalism in the United States, observed the twenty-fifth anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood here Sunday.

Father DePinclar is Vice-Provincial of the Servite Fathers of the American Province, Editor of The Mother of Sorrows magazine, and chairman of the Circulation Maintenance Committee of the Catholic Press Association of the United States.

Preaching the sermon at Father DePinclar's jubilee Mass in the Church of Our Lady of Sorrows here Sunday morning, the Rev. Dr. Edward Lodge Curran, President of the International Catholic Truth Society, warned against the dangers of Communism and said "there will be no return to prosperity in America until there is first of all and last of all a return to God." The Catholic Church, he added, "is ready to lead this American nation back to God. She has the ideals, the truths of Our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. She has the method, that code of Christ's morality on the basis of which she brought civilization to Western Europe nearly twenty centuries ago. She has the leadership, priests of the form and substance, the idealism and energy, the sacrifice and service of Father DePinclar."

"As long as the Catholic Church produces priests of the very mold and woof of the humanity and spirituality of Father DePinclar, Dr. Curran added, she need not fear her future status in America."

Saying that he knows of Father DePinclar's work in the C. T. S., Dr. Curran added: "I know how much his judgment and prudence are counted on in the annual conventions of the Catholic Press Association. There is no more able and intelligent Catholic editor in America and no more valuable member of the Catholic Press Association than the reverend jubilarian whose climax of 25 years today is but the prelude and to 25 golden years to come."

19---Do You Remember---20

Fifteen years ago today — July 20th, 1920, the famous Irish sportsman, Sir Thomas Lipton, came closer to winning the coveted America's cup than in any of his many attempts. The beloved sailor in his "Shamrock IV" won the first two races of the series. However, the American boat "Resolute" managed to overcome the lead, win the series, and retain once more the yachting trophy for the United States.

Sir Thomas stated, "If the good wishes I have received from all over the world insure success, the ambition in my life would be achieved."

Sir Thomas Lipton's will to win won for him the admiration of the world. The desire to win and to succeed is in us all.
