19—Do You Remember—32

Three years ago, on July 31st, 1932, the tenth modern revival of the ancient Olympic Games was officially opened by the Vice President of the United States, in Los Angeles, California, at Exposition Park.

More than 2,000 athletes, both men and women, representing thirty-nine countries, took part in the various games and competitions which lasted for sixteen days. The American team, as in all other Olympiads, came away victorious.

The trained athlete soon learns that races are won through stamina and reserve power that give him strength to make the final sprint that wins. The race of life is no different. Reserves are needed to carry you through to your goal.
