The Fringed Gentian

October's loveliest flower, so wondrous blue,
Whose eyelids, softly fringed, still hold the dew
Of frosty autumn nights,
Yet smiles anew
When morn the hilltop lights.

Thou mislead me, by thy celestial dye,
Of our most Virgin Lady's heavenly eye;

So meekly-hid
Beneath its fringed lid,
With pity wet
For man, with ill-beset.

For love of her I lay thee on her shrine;
Make my sweet duty to her, flow'ret mine;
And beg that eye, for Jesus' sake, to turn

On all who sigh and mourn
In frosty vales and drear;
O Lady dear, accept and hear!
