COMMUNISM TEACHING IS BANNED IN SCHOOLS OF NATION'S CAPITAL

Washington—The Federal Government has taken a determined stand on the much-discussed teaching of communism in the schools of the District of Columbia.

A ruling just made public by the Comptroller-General McCarl specifies that teachers and other employees of the District of Columbia school system hereafter will not receive their salaries unless they certify they have not taught or advocated communism.

For the past several months a heated debate has raged in the Nation's Capital over the question of teaching communism in the public schools.

In the last session of Congress a rider, attached to the District of Columbia appropriation bill, provided that salaries would not be paid to teachers who taught or advocated communism.

The controversy is over the interpretation of the word "taught." The school officials have acted on the belief that the rider did not prohibit factual teaching of communism but was merely intended to prevent any praise or advocating of the communist theory of government.

It has been agreed upon by school officials that factual teaching was permissible under the terms of the rider. McCarl's ruling was designed to clarify the muddled situation.

School officials, however, insist that McCarl's ruling was not explicit enough on the control of factual teaching. Another ruling may be necessary to clear up the matter.
