Unity Catholics' Great Need, Says English Prelate

"Such is the dark and dubious side of the present condition of the world. Every brighter aspect of things is brought to view by the recurrence of Christmas. The very fact that after all these centuries the birth of Jesus is celebrated by perhaps one-third of the human race that the eyes of some 500 millions of people turn towards the Holy Land 'Holy' because He was born and lived and died there, immensely comforting. On Christmas Day if not at all other times we realize many of us dimly but the elect souls intensely that salvation, not merely the eternal soul but the salvation of society and of all the races and nations of mankind, must come out of Bethlehem."

"The Prior added that the dogs at Grand St. Bernard weigh about 12 kilos (26 pounds) at one month and 20 to 22 kilos (44 to 55 pounds) at four months."

Modern Hannibal Visit Adds To Lore Concerning Alpine Hospice of Monks

"Perhaps it was a little wooden dog, said the Prior of Grand St. Bernard. Fosh said Mr. Richard Halliburton the author, "no dog nipped my elephant on the trail. The only dog in my entourage was a four-month-old St. Bernard puppy and he had a first class ticket for a pocket of the trench coat I wore when riding the elephant." Some time ago, Mr. Halliburton, a twentieth-century Hannibal, mounted on an elephant, began his march on Rome. All roads however do not lead to Rome as Mr. Halliburton discovered upon wind-Eternal City instead of in the Everyone was willing to concede that Mr. Halliburton, mounted on his elephant, did cross the Alps. It is his reason for abandoning a planned march on Rome that is called into question. When Mr. Halliburton turned his elephant's head towards Paris instead of Rome, a world-wide news service carried a story to the effect that his journey as nipped in the bud when his elephant was nipped on the heel by a "Bosh" said Mr. Halliburton, there was no dog-bite incident whatsoever at any point along the way." After telling of his climb up to Grand St. Bernard, Mr. Halliburton said "As guests of the Prior of the monastery, I spent two days at the monastery. On our departure down the Italian side of the Alps, the Prior presented me with a four-month-old St. Bernard puppy. This new addition to my entourage was carried in the pocket of my trench coat I wore when riding the dog."

The BUSINESS REVIEW

Halloran Firm Is Noted For Considerate Service

Serving a community of this size for so many years has given Henry D. Halloran & Sons, funeral directors, a knowledge of performing simple services at low costs but still maintaining all the beauty of a more expensive service. Recent economic conditions demanded a medium-priced funeral service which Halloran's have continued. Mr. Halloran stated that the public is often misled by the lure of low price in funeral service, it is especially important that quality be considered for nowhere is the lack of grace and dignity more evident. "Thus," he continued, "it is our purpose to so plan the service as to best meet the demands of the bereaved. The same attentiveness, consideration and careful direction are applied to all regardless of what they can afford." The use of the funeral home of the firm is available at no extra charge. Located at 195 Plymouth Avenue South, Halloran's offers an ideal setting with beautiful furnishings for the final rites. Every care has been taken to make the funeral home as private as anyone's own. Established 65 years ago, Henry D. Halloran & Sons' firm in Rochester has made this firm a standard of mortuary service by which others are judged.
