Stuttgart Will Have 22 Catholic Churches

Stuttgart, Germany (C. C. T.)—The capital city of Württemberg will soon start construction on its twenty-second Catholic church, although there are only 250,000 Catholics among a total population of 420,000 souls. After the completion of the church, there will be one church for every 18,000 Catholics in this city.

Progress of Church in U. S. Marked by Variety of Problems Valiantly Met in Past Year

The progress of the church in the United States during the past year has been marked by a variety of problems which have been valiantly met.

Catholic Action Statement

Following the General Meeting of the Bishops the following statement was made public: The National Catholic Welfare Conference in the General Meeting at Washington, November 14, 1935, called attention to the fact that the Catholic population of the United States is increasing rapidly.

The Catholic population of the United States was 22,500,000 in 1935. This was an increase of 1,000,000 over 1934. The number of Catholics in the United States is expected to reach 25,000,000 by 1940.

The United States continued to give impressive testimony of its progress in the past year. The church has been able to meet the needs of the growing population.

When the Most Rev. Angelo G. C. Vanni, Cardinal Archbishop of New York, visited the United States, he delivered a national radio broadcast on the subject of Catholic Action.

The Cardinal's address was a landmark in the history of Catholic Action in the United States. He stressed the need for a more active role for the church in society.

In September, in a letter to the Most Rev. Hugh C. Boyle, Bishop of Pittsburgh and Episcopal Chairman of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, the Cardinal expressed his earnest desire that all who labor in the sacred cause of Catholic journalism in the United States be represented at the World Catholic Press Exhibition to be held in Vatican City in 1936.

G. K. Won Poetry Prize As Student, Then Forgot It

London (C. C. T.)—G. K. Chesterton, the English poet and journalist, won the poetry prize as a student at the University of London. He forgot to claim it until many years later.

Chesterton's poem, "The Ballad of the Fool," won the prize. He was a student at the University of London in 1890.

He forgot to claim the prize until 1900, when he was already a well-known writer. The prize was then awarded to him.

The prize was a gold medal and a sum of money. Chesterton was very surprised when he received it.

He had written the poem as a student and had never thought of it again. The prize was a surprise for him.

Broadcasting Situation

The Federal Communications Commission recommended to Congress at the beginning of 1935 that at this time no steps be taken to allocate a fixed percentage of broadcast facilities to particular types of non-profit radio programs as had been vigorously advocated in 1931.

As the Commonwealth of the Philippines came into being toward the close of 1935, inaugurating a 10-year period at the end of which the islands will become entirely independent of the United States, the inhabitants of the islands began preparations for the Thirtieth International Eucharistic Congress, to be held in Manila from February 3 to 7, 1937.

A large part in the successful preparation for the establishment of the Commonwealth was credited to Frank Murphy, Governor General of the United States in the course of 1935. Frank W. Stearns, prominent Boston merchant who gained national prominence as political sponsor to the late President "Clem" Hoover, "Richie" Rich, noted author and former United States Ambassador to Italy, and Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior and former Senator from New Mexico.

The work of the Catholic Press Association in the course of 1935 was reported and American Catholic editors laid plans for representation in the World Press Exhibition to be held at Vatican City in 1936.

Not only did the Catholic Press Association consider one of the most important events in all parts of the world in 1935, but it also was able to correct a considerable number of erroneous statements and reports concerning the Church and its doctrinal dissemination from other quarters.

The Catholic Conference on Industrial Problems held conferences in Harrisburg, Buffalo, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Denver and Syracuse, in which the presence of the Catholic press was a notable feature.

A radio appeal broadcast by the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, pastor of the Shrine of the Little Flower at Royal Oak, Mich., and founder of the National Union for Social Justice, was declared to have been largely responsible for the Senate's rejection last January of a proposal that the United States adhere to the League of Nations.

Seventy-five thousand telegrams poured in upon United States Senators within 24 hours after Father Coughlin, addressing members of the National Union for Social Justice by radio, urged them to reject the League of Nations.
