The Photo-Engraving Finisher

The photo-engraver makes the plates from which pictures are printed. It is delicate work, involving the use of photographs, metal, acids, and hand tooling or finishing. The finisher's job is to take the plates after they have been through the photographic and acid-etching process and correct and refine the work until the plate is an actual duplicate of the original picture.

His tools are an assortment of long-bladed knives; or gravers, some as fine as a needle, others wide and curved. To use them properly, a long period of training and experience is necessary. Much of the work is done under powerful magnifying glasses.

The photo-engraving finishers are among the highest paid workmen in the business, but the amount received is not nearly so important as the amount saved. Plates are finished a little at a time. A good-sized savings account may be built by saving a little every pay-day. It is surprising how small sums mount up.

Along the Sports Horizon

By BILL LANG

You've heard a lot about that Notre Dame spirit.

But no matter what you've heard, you must see it expressed in collegiate competition to realize its full scope.

That's why this department hied itself through winter's snows to Syracuse the other twilight to get a glimpse of the current Notre Dame sensation—the 1935-36 basketball team.

The Ramblers rewarded the capacity crowd of some 3,000 jammed into Archibold Gym with the most dazzling display of basketball these parts have seen since Vic Hanson was in his heyday. The golden-garbed men from the west piled thrill upon thrill until the final gun barked with even the crusty-nerved sports writers hanging from the ropes.

I happened to be perched at the press table next to the very handsome and amiable Jim Decker, Syracuse University's director of public relations. Even he couldn't stand the pace and I'll warrant those forty minutes added a few silver threads to his grey-tinted hair.

If you should ask whom the turning point came in the game, I'd say between the halves.

Everything was rosy for the sun-kissed Orangemen up to that time. By dint of a great rally they had overcome an early Notre Dame lead and walked off the court at half time on the long end of a 27-26 score. The Syracuse boys actually thought they had the Ramblers on the run.

Then came the big mistake for Syracuse. The University band, after playing every conceivable march under the sun, suddenly broke out with the Notre Dame victory song just before the whistle started the final stanza.

The South Benders, never slow at taking a hint, promptly went out and won the ball game.

Before the game was fairly underway, a wide-eyed Syracuse partisan almost shouted across the gym:

"Look at this Johnny Moir. Why he's the greatest thing we've seen since Hanson." For your information, Syracusans reckon time by Hanson.

That just about expressed the opinion of everybody present. Try if you can to draw a dream picture of your conception of the perfect court performer. Set down the most rigid requirements. He must be a good shot, fast, strong on the defense, intelligent, cool under fire, a master of complex court strategies and an able team man.

Mix those ingredients together and you have Mr. Moir from Niagara Falls-way who has become the most potent Notre Dame scoring thunderbolt to roll across the basketball skies in many a year.

Jumping Johnny scored a total of eighteen points, two from the foul line and the rest from the field.

About the middle of the first half he showed his heels to the customers striking three times in less than two minutes to ring up six points. The first basket came on one of those back-to-the basket overhand flips. Moir netted the second with a brilliant burst of speed down the sidelines but the third topped them all.

Taking the ball on a center tap he literally ripped through the entire Orange defense with a side-step dribble to score.

On two occasions he actually took the ball away from Syracuse on a throw-in play. After Eddie Sonderman, the Rochester boy who played a whale of a game at center for the Orange, had outjumped the vaunted Nowak all evening, Moir went in in the final few minutes and somehow managed to grab the tap.

His escapades played no little part in shaking the equilibrium of the Syracuse men. No wonder eastern critics are hailing Johnny as the greatest court performer their aging eyes have ever seen.

Don't gather from this pro-Notre Dame chatter that Syracuse hasn't a good team. On the contrary the Orange can probably take the measure of nine out of every ten collegiate teams in the country.

The loss to the Ramblers was their first setback at Archbold Gym in nearly four years and it came only after the hardest kind of a tussle with one of the nation's best basketball bets.

Sonderman, towering six foot six is a powerhouse under the basket and his ability to convert missed foul shots into double deckers kept the Orange in the game. Simonitis is another sure-fire bet with Syracuse and goodness knows what would have happened to Notre Dame if he hadn't fouled himself out of the pastime.

Rochesterians will be interested to know that Bill Resch who jumped center for the Holy Apostles team in the Catholic tournaments of several years back is rated as one of the best Syracuse reserves.

Next to Moir, Ford and Wade seem to top the Notre Dame squad. Although Coach Keogan ranks Nowak as his ace, the giant center wasn't up to snuff in the Syracuse game. Or rather Sonderman was too much for him.

Too bad, they can't bring the Ramblers to the U of R Palestra. They'd certainly prove just what the doctor ordered for the filling court game. Unless I miss my guess that coming tilt between N. D. and N. Y. U. at New York should prove the basketball highlight of the year. Would that I could hop a rattler and order

"Let me out at Madison Square Garden."

In the preliminary the crowd got a glimpse of the current edition of the C B A team which stacked up against the Frosh. The brothers lost 33-22 although basketball writers told me the present team is the best they've had in ten years. Probably they've run out of Messners.

Bob Stewart, the Madison High Star, is a forward with the Frosh and his play has been so good thus far that he's heading straight for a first team berth next year so they say.

Back to bowling we find the Holy Redeemer boys increasing their Catholic League lead to six full games at the expense of the second place St Michael's outfit.

The H. R. A. A lads won two of the three contests last Friday night, contributing some fancy pinning. Herbie Scheuch massaged the wood for 618 while Joe Weber had 613 including a high game of 258. Nashburn of St. Michael's had 605.

St Boniface swept the series with Blessed Sacrament. Hank Utter topping the boys with 661. Charley Guerin had 603.

St Stanislaus won two from Mount Carmel thanks to Norm Schoenberger's excellent 661. Joe Incavo of Mount Carmel was right behind with 650. St. John's took Corpus Christi team into camp for two games. Ed Ford with 629 and Howie Denk with 613 furnished the fireworks.

There are two kinds of discontent in this world: the discontent that works, and the discontent that wrings its hands. The first gets what it wants, and the second loses what it has. There's no cure for the first but success; and there's no cure at all for the second.—Gordon Graham.

There is no doubt that Holy Redeemer has the basketball team in the league. They are rangy well built and can handle the ball. It is one of the best teams that has ever graced the league. Ruff and Borowski are especially good. All should see this team in operation to really appreciate their caliber. St Mary's, the latest team to not going to lay down on the job, however, they promise a real battle to the Aljo boys on Friday night.

Nazareth Hall has a team in two men. Adams and Poiran. Poiran is perhaps the most finished player in the league. His stamping ground is the C Y M A. With but two more players, the Hall would go places. They are game however, and battle fiercely until the finishing whistle.

CAMP STELLA MARIS: Saturday Jan 25 is the day of the big Pow-Wow. It will be held again at Mendon Park Ponds at the Log Cabin near where the Scouts are encamped every year for their Jamboree. The Counselors will be there to see to the K P work and also greet old timers. Chief Hanging Bells is said to be somewhere round this ver neighborhood and perhaps will put in an appearance. A good time is guaranteed to all. The campers are asked in their charity to pray for the soul of James Powers who died during the past week. Jimmy was a well known ramper who got the greatest amount of joy possible out of life at Camp. His cheerfulness and good fellowship will certainly be missed this summer.

Is basketball coming back in the East? Every day or two we read of the immense crowds watching the games of the N Y U St John's etc in New York. One good move was to get them away from their small college gyms and to bring them uptown where everyone can see the game. Notre Dame playing Syracuse brings one of the greatest basketball teams of the country to our very doors. We would like to see Notre Dame play N Y U at New York and then act as host to the New York team at South Bend. N Y U plays home most of the time which is a great advantage for any team. In general the Middle West has the best teams in the country. Auburn Catholic High has a well-balanced team and would have won against Aquinas if so many of their shots had not insisted upon jumping out of the basket. John Elvan their coach has done a nice piece of work and with only a limited number to choose from.

Dwight Morrow, former ambassador to Mexico once began a conversation with Father Parsons, editor of the 'America'. Before you begin Father Parsons I want you to understand that we will not even consider a solution of the Mexican question that involves a change of regime in Mexico. Very frank. As much as to say. We are behind that regime and we will not see it changed. And yet they say. We will not interfere in Mexico.

Machinery and industrialization have brought us to the lowest ebb of the so-called Century of Progress. The Brookings Institute answers that in 1929 at the height of prosperity, almost two-thirds of the families of the United States were below the minimum living wage. And what has it been during the last four years? Which is another way of saying that machinery and subdivision of labor has brought only misery and suffering to the many, money only to the few.

One would also like to see Father Coughlin's program more fundamental. As long as the majority of people do not even own the means of production land, etc they will be at the mercy of the capitalists. It is not only our money system that is defective but the drive of man. As long as you receive only wages you depend like a slave upon the man who pays you. You must fight back. It is claimed by some of the automobile manufacturers keep a line of men standing in front of their factories to remind those working within, that they are not necessary, that there are many more, etc.

Millions of dollars for evolution but not one cent for religion. Our Public Schools are teaching evolution that all religion arose from fear that the idea of right and wrong is man-made, that the test of truth is whether or not it is useful. Catholic schools who know and teach that these scientific fetishes are false and who teach real religion, encourage youth to be just to neighbor and to God to be pure, honest and upright citizens for the only motive that can withstand the hard knocks of the world get not one cent of Public money. Which of these two systems does the state more good? Some day the public will be shocked to hear that a murderer like Brasser will put the blame for his act where it belongs on the teachers. The teachers who told him that there is no moral responsibility for crime, that the sole criterion of right and wrong is its usefulness.

National Meeting In New York Called For Holy Name Society

New York—(NC)—In response to an invitation from His Eminence Patrick Cardinal Hayes, Archbishop of New York, the Holy Name Society will hold a national convention in this city in September. Representatives from all sections of the United States and Canada will attend what is expected to be the greatest religious convocation ever held in this city. The dates have been set for September 17 to 20, inclusive.

In extending a warm welcome to all spiritual directors and members of Holy Name Societies, Cardinal Hayes voiced high regard from the society, its aims and accomplishments. This was echoed by the Very Rev. Msgr. John H. Brady, Archdiocesan Director under whose direction the Archdiocesan Union is arranging to play host to the thousands of Holy Name men who will attend.

The Very Rev Thomas F Conlon O P National Director of the Holy Name Societies, has interviewed personally or by letter the spiritual leaders of the Holy Name movement and it is their unanimous belief, he said, that the country needs this spiritual meeting of men at this time.

Third Convention

This will be the third national convention of the Holy Name Society and the first in twelve years. It will be the first national convention to be held in New York City although the first branch in the United States was founded in New York and the national headquarters has always been there. The last great congress of the Society was held in 1924 in Washington.

The Holy Name Society fosters religious worship and is actively engaged in combatting blasphemy, perjury, cursing, swearing, profane language and all manner of obscene and indecent speech.

As a great spiritual militia, the Society is being counted upon as one of the bulwarks against communism and all theories which exalt State absolutism. The nation, therefore Father Conlon said, will look to this convention as an answer to those movements which kill all moral sense and destroy personal liberty.

It is only a convocation of this character that demonstrates the true breadth of the Holy Name Society," the National Director declared. "The Catholic man belongs to his parish society, but not to that alone. The parish societies have been grouped into Unions, usually one in every archdiocese or diocese. All form one great Society which is recognized by the Church as a Confraternity. This organization was especially recognized by the Holy See on September 18, 1917 when Pope Benedict XV appointed His Eminence Thomas Pius Cardinal Boggiani, O. P., as Cardinal Protector.

It is estimated that more than 2,500,000 men are members of the Holy Name Society in this country and it is expected that every parish unit and every Union will be represented at the convention.

Letter of Invitation

In a letter to Father Conlon extending the invitation of Cardinal Hayes, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Michael J. Lavelle, Vice General of the Archdiocese of New York, said:

"His Eminence has the highest possible regard and appreciation for the Holy Name Society. He realizes that it has been a powerful arm of the Church in promoting loyalty to the Lord, and all the other noble virtues among our men.

"He admires particularly the stress you fix upon observance of the Decalogue's Second Commandment. This promotes high respect for the Holy Name of Our Lord, and tends to eliminate all profanity. Profanity is sinful in itself. Besides, it is bad manners, bad breeding and vulgarity. It gives men false ideas of propriety. It intensifies bad temper. It gives much dissatisfaction and often produces lucky. Above all its avoidance develops a self-control, a strength against other temptations of life that is most valuable.

"You may assure your entire membership that no organization ever received a more hearty welcome than will be given the Holy Name Society by His Eminence, the clergy and the people of New York. We look forward to your Archdiocesan convention next September."

Our four carriers in Immaculate Conception Parish, Rochester should be highly commended for their efficient dependable and courteous service. Their names are Joseph Cloonan, James Collins, Thomas Mellen and William Scanlon.

Occasional requests for carrier draw sheets are being received despite many notices in this regard. We remind all concerned that we are keeping count of the number of papers required on all routes. That is one big reason for sending your stops starts and changes promptly.
