

STUDENTS BEGIN DIOCESAN CRUISE

THE HOLY FATHER

Pope Pius XI

His Holiness, Pope Pius XI, gloriously reigning Supreme Pontiff of the Holy Roman Catholic Church, known as the "Pope of the Missions," and repeatedly indicating vigorous interest in the Catholic Press throughout the world.

Pope and Catholic Press

"Here is a field of apostolate worthy of all the solicitude and interest of good Catholics, of the members of Catholic Action. They can never cultivate the Catholic press enough, and according to the care which they will prepare, so will the beneficent fruits be abundant.

"Here then is a large field for apostolate activity, since the widespread reading of a good Press is a great good and the spread of the reading of a bad press is a great evil. Especially for this activity do we rely on the collaboration of the laity, and we are confident of the final result, because Catholic Action will revive the times of apostolic preaching in the world when St. Paul gave the laity the order of the day and recommended the Church to them."

Why a Catholic Newspaper?

Since the "end for which the Catholic Press in America strives is the same as the end for which the Catholic Church is striving," it is easily asserted that the need of Catholic newspapers is vital and that the satisfaction of this need is both a necessary condition for the full development of Catholic life and a vast field open to Catholic initiative and zeal for the spreading of Christ's Kingdom on earth.

The man who wishes to know what is the stand taken by the Church on questions which concern him, both as a citizen and as a Catholic, will find such knowledge in Catholic newspapers, since the primary purpose of the Catholic paper is to give just such detailed information and keep its readers in touch with the questions of the day in their bearing on Catholic life and thought.

A secondary purpose of the Catholic newspaper is to enlighten the Catholic public on the needs and activity of the Church in different parts of the world, thus widening the outlook and broadening the sympathies of its readers by making them realize that they belong to the Church, Catholic or universal, no matter of which can therefore be a matter of indifference to them.

The conditions of our modern world are such that the "printed word is a powerful weapon for good or evil. The stamp of authority for some—especially children—is to see something in print." Most people form their opinions from what they read in the newspapers. Catholic papers, then, which do not cater to the debased tastes of a public exploited by sensational news agencies, must win the enthusiastic support of our whole people, if the apostolate of the Catholic Press Month is to be exercised in the Catholic Press Crusade for the CATHOLIC PRESS.

Open Letter for Boys

Dear Jack:
You like a good, clean battle, don't you? How many times have you thrilled to that ninth inning rally which pulled the old ball game out of the fire?

And remember those gridiron classics won in the last quarter with a brilliant burst of speed?

Or how can you forget the tingling sensations which shot down your spine when a last long Steve put the basketball game on ice just before the gun barked the end of the game?

Unforgettable thrills, aren't they, Jack? Now that we've worked up the old fighting spirit, how would you like to hear about a new kind of battle which, after all, isn't so new.

Centuries ago the brave warriors of Europe went forth in battle array to wrest the Holy Land from the clutches of the infidels. They called them Crusaders and their glorious deeds form some of the most sparkling pages in all history.

Well, Jack, how would YOU like to be a modern Crusader—a twentieth century knight in armor? Your goal won't have to be the Holy Land. Right now it's in pretty safe hands. Your goal will be the spread of the Catholic press—helping this mighty force of the Catholic Church carry the doctrine of our holy religion into every Catholic home in the diocese.

Right here the Catholic press is typified by the CATHOLIC COURIER, our official diocesan weekly. As you probably know, the month of February has been set aside as Catholic PRESS MONTH during which we all strive to further the aims of our diocesan weekly.

We're inviting you Jack and every one of your school pals from the fifth grade through to the fourth year high to join us in this Students' Catholic Press Crusade beginning with a great rally at the Columbus Civic Center February 1 and continuing through to February 17.

You won't need a suit of armor like the ones worn by the knights of old. Your armor will be your blazing spirit to help us carry the Courier into 10,000 new homes in the diocese.

And you won't be alone in the job. About 15,000 crusaders will join you in this drive extending not only through Rochester and Monroe County but throughout the entire diocese.

Now that you know the goal naturally you want to know about the rewards.

We'd say your best reward will be in the knowledge and satisfaction that you've done a noble work in a mighty cause. We can't measure the extent of that kind of reward.

But aside from that we're ready to offer generous cash prizes for every subscription you turn in. For a year's subscription for instance you'll get forty cents. Let's assume you'll sign up ten new subscribers. That's $4 for you.

With spring just around the corner and the baseball season with it, you can use that money to buy a new glove, spiked shoes, or a catcher's mitt. And how about a new tennis racket or a few golf clubs? Those are just a few ideas. You probably have a place reserved for that check. We'll have it for you as soon as you finish the campaign.

That, briefly, is the general idea of this Crusade. We want you to JOIN and we want you to WIN. What's more we want YOU to show us just how brightly burns the Catholic spirit in our boys of today.

So go to it now. Line up your prospects and sign them on the dotted line. Your archbishop is watching, your pastor is watching, your sister is watching, your parents are watching and we're watching.

You won't fail us, will you? Just go forward like those Crusaders of old with their rally call of "God wills it." With that spirit you'll be among the first to go "over the top."

Sincerely yours
THE COURIER EDITORS

Enter Poster Contest!

In connection with the Students' Catholic Press Crusade, a contest is being held for posters which best represent and advertise the Crusade. All students in the 5th to 8th grades of elementary schools and all High School students are invited to submit posters in the contest.

The contest is under way now, and the students are urged to make up their posters as soon as possible to permit display of their work before the Crusade ends.

Although it is a modern Crusade, the theme of the old Crusades into the Holy Land should be remembered. Full details of the contest are in possession of the school principals.

Special School Victory Prize

As a reward for the greatest average number of subscriptions to the STUDENT'S CATHOLIC PRESS CRUSADE, the CATHOLIC COURIER will present a special statue of St. Francis de Sales, patron of the Catholic Press. The statue stands 3 ft. in height and is a reminder of the missionary work of St. Francis de Sales, ordaine was sent to the French Chablais, whose citizens trusted Calvinism. When fused to assist to his sent them printed leaf were so forcful that a Calvinist turned to the Church. For this reason the father proclaimed him the Catholic Press.
