Along the Sports Horizon

By BILL LANG

From Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany, scene of the winter Olympics, to Washington, D. C., scene of the Georgetown explosion of the N.Y.U. basketball bubble rumbles the hated cry of racial intolerance in athletic competition.

Those individuals who raised their voices in protest against American participation in the Olympics are selling fragmentary bits of Olympic behavior and whipping them into scorching headlines to flout into the face of the American public with that "I told you so" gesture. But, apparently, this cry doesn't begin and end at the Olympics. Right here in our own United States comes a series of sinister changes in the wake of Georgetown's surprise basketball victory over the vaunted New York University boys at Washington the other night.

The Washington Square Bulletin, student publication at N.Y.U., calling for a definite break in athletic relations with Georgetown, editorialized thus: "The greatest race riot in the history of American athletics would have occurred had N.Y.U. beaten Georgetown. The crowd which filled the gym became absolutely insane in the last half. They were cursing, berating the 'Jousy New York gangsters' and absolutely set on taking Kleins' blood." Klein is one of the many Jewish stars on the N.Y.U. team.

Fortunately Coach Howard Cann of the New York Athletic Club came this rather tempered observation. "The crowd was noisy and partisan. What basketball crowd is not? I saw no danger. I will not break relations or take official notice of this underground editorial."

Now the hardest thing in the world is to accept a defeat gracefully. It is doubly difficult when that defeat happens to puncture a twenty game winning streak and comes at the hands of a team that has lost three of its four games. When things like that happen, the alibi brigade starts an immediate search for something or someone upon whom to hang the blame. If you ever made a detailed study of these alibi artists you'll find that they generally blame an accident to their own team, foul play on the part of the opposing team or the tactics of a foreign coach. Evidently N.Y.U. has seized upon the last item in this instance.

In the opinion of most sports writers, the Georgetown defeat definitely proves that the N.Y.U. quint essentially beat the Madison Square Garden team. This fact was further emphasized the night after the Georgetown game when an unheralded "Temple outfit" put them on the skids.

Tomorrow night the Violets face the supreme test on their own sprawling grounds when the Irish of Notre Dame invade the garden. Incidentally talking of racial prejudice, you never hear any protests from South Bend on the use of the Celtic lingo in relation to the Notre Dame team.

Who knows but that N.Y.U. may not even be accepted as a good Madison Square Garden team after the Notre Dame engagement?

K. C. CHAPTER HEADS MEET

Auburn—More than 75 grand knights, other officers and delegates from most of the 13 councils in the Central New York Chapter, Knights of Columbus, assembled at Auburn Council No. 207, K. of C. Home in Genesee Street for the annual mid-winter meeting Sunday afternoon. Presiding was John J. Leo of Auburn, chapter chairman and immediate-deputy.

Inability of Thomas E. Keene, veteran Syracuse University track coach, to attend the meeting, made it necessary to alter the program from Auburn. Fred Martin of Fulton, N. Y., was named as guest speaker and was unanimously detained because of the Boston A. A. games Saturday night in which his ace, Eddie O'Brien captured one of the feature events, the 400 yds. dash.

Prior to the meeting, the St. Alphonsus Shrine Club of Auburn, N. Y., conducted an investiture in the council rooms. Ten new members were accepted into the junior order of the Knights of Columbus. This program was carried out under the direction of Rev. F. G. Straub, pastor of St. Alphonsus Church.

Grand knights who presented reports at the meeting were Francis Cuddy of this city, E. T. Sweeney of Portland, Fred Martin of Fulton, Arthur J. Owen of Geneva, George G. Hahn of Waterloo, N. J., Finkler of Tully, Leonard C. Kutz of Syracuse, William J. Hamill of Seneca Falls, Rev. E. J. Ryan of Oswego, William J. Hanover of Canandaigua, Victor De Weaver of Newark and M. J. Leary of Ithaca. District deputies, who were guests of honor, included T. E. Wright of Syracuse, John M. Murray of Rulicott and Thomas E. Solin of Ithaca.

Behind the coming of George M. Trautman, president of the American Association, to speak at the annual smoker of St. Margaret Mary's church in New York in Columbus Civic Center Monday night is quite a story.

During the past few years, the Men's Club has established a city-wide reputation for bringing really important people in the world of sport to this city. Rochester has this organization to thank for visits from Coach Elmer Layden of Notre Dame, Manager Jon McCorty of the New York Yankees, Manager Frankie Frisch of the St. Louis Cardinals and others.

Before begging Trautman for this year's speaking engagement, George Bryant, general chairman of the smoker, went to Columbus to try to land Billy Southworth. Then he journeyed to Pittsburgh in an attempt to sign up the one and only "Honus" Wagner. There also was a trip to New York in an effort to induce Lou Gehrig, Mickey Cochran or Ray Blades to put in an appearance.

But somehow, George found baseball players scarce, and he's a little bit of a pessimist. He is still smiling on his efforts when Trautman consented to speak. The American Association president has served as director of athletics at Ohio State and is equally versed in stories of baseball and football lore. What's more, he's a real orator, they say.

Social Justice, Crime Talks Feature Holy Name Banquet At Blessed Sacrament Hall

Application of the Church's remedies for two major ills of the day, social injustice and crime, was urged upon more than 400 Holy Name men of Blessed Sacrament parish at the annual banquet held Monday evening in the newly renovated church hall on Oxford Street.

The principal speakers were Rev. Michael B. Groden, pastor of St. Vincent de Paul's Church, Canning and Joseph J. Duran, assistant United States Attorney and a graduate of Blessed Sacrament School. Charles E. Welch, news paperman, was toastmaster.

Using the wrong distribution of the wealth of the land as a vexing hindrance to continued prosperity, Father Groden declared the duty of Catholics men to seek a solution to this and other injustices which he pointed out have been urged by Pope Leo XIII and Pope Pius XI in their great Encyclicals on labor.

The speaker emphasized the necessity for reading, classifying and analyzing the Encyclicals on the Constitution of Labor and on the Reconstruction of the Social Order, and then to draw own conclusions.

The solution he said lies not in legislation nor government in business nor in a resurgence of the working class over the capitalist, but in assuming justice on both sides.

"Are we to leave it to the unscrupulous Communistic plan, the unworkable Socialist method, or are we to solve the problem through the Catholic Christian principles and those of the Constitution of the United States?" asked Father Groden.

Particularly did he call upon the youth to persevere in a vision of the future in which principles enunciated by the Church will be put into practical everyday life.

With educational advantages, at the same time, he urged the youth of the country, Bureau declared that the records show youth and in many cases educated youth to be the greatest offenders against the law.

He cited three prominent judges who declared their conviction that every child in the country every day should begin some religious training. He called upon the Holy Name men to lend their force to any movement for broader religious training to the young.

We as Catholics men should step together in the war on crime declared Mr. Duran. "Attempts made to take away from our children the reasonable right to be taught the truths of our religion work to prevent that and work towards the bringing of the youth to the point of no return."

The Rev. Francis E. Walsh, president of the Holy Name Club, presided at the speaker's table. The Rev. Thomas F. Connors, pastor, the Rev. Thomas J. Ryan, pastor, and the Rev. Thomas J. Ryan, pastor, were also present.

The Holy Name Club, 100 E. Main St., will be the host for the annual Holy Name Banquet on Saturday evening, Feb. 14, at 8:30 p. m. The dinner will be held at the Columbus Civic Center Building.
