Along the Sports Horizon

By BILL LANG

Ten years ago this week, a half dozen high school boys walked down Main Street in the midnight gloom, tenms welling in their eyes. A few minutes before news of the bitterest tragedy in their young lives had winged its way across the wires from the floor of Loyola University gymnasium where their alma mater was battling for national basketball glory in the third annual national Catholic interscholastic tournament.

These boys had been part of a milling crowd of court-crazed fans which blocked Main Street anxiously awaiting news flashes of that final game between Aquinas and Xavier of Louisville for the national crown.

Entering the last quarter Aquinas held a three-point lead. Then came the final flash which burned itself into the memories of those boys: Louisville 16, Aquinas 14. The crowd melted away like snow under the heat of a midday sun. The boys who hoped and prayed for that vaunted title were left alone in their youthful sorrow.

At this very moment on that same Loyola University gym floor, the thirteenth annual national Catholic tournament is under way.

Thirty-two teams from nineteen states are battling for that crown which slipped from Aquinas' grasp by the narrowest of margins on that fateful March night ten long years ago.

And peculiarly enough the eyes of the nation are focused on that same Xavier team from Louisville, again acting in the role of champions defending the title they won last year. This year the Kentucky boys have averaged better than thirty points throughout the season.

Aquinas isn't represented although the school boasts of its best basketball team since that mighty 1925-1926 aggregation. With fifteen wins in sixteen starts, Our Lady of Victory of Lackawanna is at the tournament as the western New York champion.

St. Mary's of Dunkirk also is carrying the colors of New York State.

This year's entry list is classed as the most representative in six years including a large representation from the central states, ten eastern quints, four southern and five from west of the Mississippi River.

A hot pre-tourney favorite is the quint from St. Joseph's at Huntington, West Virginia. Averaging thirty-three points a game, these boys have won 28 consecutive games this year after finishing last season with 30 in a row, a record of forty-three consecutive victories.

Florida is sending up its St. Paul team from Jacksonville, state champions for three years with a record of 837 points in 28 games this season. Spalding Institute of Peoria, Ill. an Aquinas rival of the olden days, is carrying the title of state champions of Illinois into the fray.

On its record St. Francis of Council Bluffs, Iowa, has one of the best teams with 1128 points in 28 games, or an average of more than 43 points a game.

The Indian sensations from St. Francis Mission, St. Francis S. D. are back, boasting of a 37 points-per-game average. Other outstanding teams include St. Mary's of Wilderburg, Ohio; St. Mary's of Anderson, Indiana state champions, Catholic High of Baton Rouge, La., Cathedral High of Springfield, Mass., with twenty-three straight wins; St. John's Academy of Jamestown, N. D. first team from that state to compete in the tourney; Aquinas of La Crosse Wisconsin, and Columbia Academy of Dubuque, Iowa State champions.

The Loyola tourney has long since been recognized as the outstanding national conference of top notch scholastic teams. Year after year the best teams in the nation have been pitted against each other with results that have thrilled the sporting world. This year, more than ever, looks like the "tops" in outstanding national competition.

Perhaps, too, the day will soon dawn when another Aquinas team takes the floor in an attempt to bring that national crown to Rochester.

The Catholic baseball question is agitating the widest discussion at present. Shall the Catholic Baseball League of Rochester continue to function as in the past or shall it be disbanded?

Many of the players are in favor of disbanding the league. Others are in favor of continuing it. Still others are in favor of a compromise.

Managers and players who have been out of contact with the league for several years are making inquiries as to possible plans for the season, etc.

The four time champions from Holy Rosary are just waiting the word to go.

Cathedral and Immaculate Conception, the teams which furnished the champs with their strongest opposition last year also are ready to step into the swim again.

Clem Bayer of C.Y.M.A. came forth with the announcement this week that he will field a team, if and when.

Augie Maier, a past president of the league, called in to say that he sees possibilities of an entry from Our Lady of Perpetual Help if certain conditions are met.

It probably wouldn't require a great amount of persuading to stir up the baseball fires in that hotbed of softball, Dutchtown where the Holy Family team holds forth.

The general conclusion seems to be that any definite action should await the outcome of a conference of responsible members of the clergy and laity to discuss the softball policy in Catholic sporting circles. If and when such a conference will be held remains to be seen.

Meanwhile plans are being pushed to give Rochester what may prove to be an overdose of softball before September rolls around.

Practically every league in existance last season has reorganized. One circuit will play night games exclusively under the Kodak Park A.A.U. The Blast Side League has cast out its first call.

The prize ball players are being catechized up with reckless abandon and any youngster possessing special ability in the softball game can secure himself of sports clothes for the summer season by judicious affiliations with the various teams.

The Catholic Bowling League pennant chase is down to the wire.

With a lead of seven games Holy Redeemer's swept the series with St. Stanislaus last week to add another game to their margin over St. Michael's with only three games left to be rolled. St Michael's lost one to Mt. Carmel.

It figures up this way: to win the pennant by one game, St Michael's must win those remaining nine games while H.R.A.A. loses every game. If the league leaders win two games and lose seven while St. Michael's win all nine, H.R.A.A. wins the pennant by one game.

In the other matches of the week, St. Boniface won three from Corpus Christi and the St. John's boys took the Blessed Sacrament team into camp three times.

Only three 600 totals were turned in by the boys. Herb Scheuch had 632 and Weber 618 on the H.R.A.A. team while Tony Jackman of Blessed Sacrament had 607 including a high game of 235.

Holding a lead of eight and one-half games, St Boniface Commandery finished the Knights of St. John League season a winner by a wide margin.

St. Mauritius finished second, St. Eustace, third; District Commandery, fourth; Cathedral-St. Michael's, fifth, and Ss. Peter & Paul's-St. Bernard's, sixth.

Joe Heinle took down individual honors with 189.01 with Johnny Wolter's 181 a second. W. Dick's 266 game was high for the year while his three game total of 691 also was high.

The champs ended the season by losing two of three games to St. Eustace with Joe Heinle spilling the wood for 612. Jake Hall had 632 for the champs. Cathedral-St. Michael's won three from Ss. Peter and Paul's while St. Mauritius took two from the District Commandery.

I hope that the bad breaks this year will not deter the league officers from reorganizing for the 1936-1937 season. The Knights of St. John League has come to mean quite a bit in the Catholic sporting cycle in Rochester.

Boys Their Interests

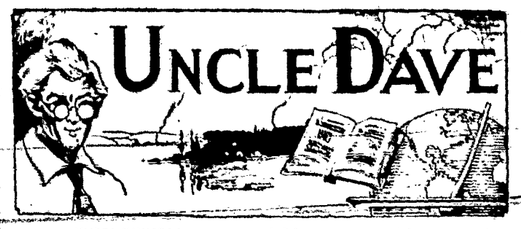
EXTRA! EXTRA! Get your blanks for the Parent Education Meet to be held during Easter Week! It was big last year this year it will be bigger. See the trick dives and stunts! Enter your school in the contest and see if your can not carry off the baton! The Pennant is now held by Our Lady of Good Counsel parish. It has been there for two years. Will anyone take it away from them? No one is to enter the meet.

And then the Baseball League! This opens the last week in April or the first week of May. Get ready now. Don't wait and beg for time the last minute. See the pastor now to determine whether you are going into the League. The entry fee is $10.00 which is used to run the League, pay for stationery, pay umpires, and send the winning team to Camp Stella Maris for one week. Get your pitchers warmed up over the Easter vacation. Don't forget that those first few games are important. Word comes from St. Monica's that they have been in training for weeks trying to get a winning combination on that battery. They seem determined to keep that pennant another year.

While some parishes only partake in one sport in the Parochial Leagues we would like to see them in all the sports. At times they lack numbers of skilled players but we hope they do not only play to win. Serious consideration is being given to a request to publish the number of available boys in the different schools that partake in the Leagues. Schools with large registrations have a much better chance of course to win; this should be taken into consideration when horrors are given out.

We wish to thank the park officials for the splendid cooperation given in connection with the Parochial Track Meet. Indeed we have always found the Park and Playground authorities more than anxious to cooperate with the Baseball, Track, etc. Leagues. Returns from the Track Meet will come in too late to be published this week. From appearances we are going to have a well attended meet.

We constantly hear accusations that certain Catholic speakers are Communists or are advancing Communistic ideas. To those accusing, we ask two questions. Have you ever read the subject? Secondly. Do you know your own mother the Catholic Church was founded by One who reorged the rich Pharisees and priests and befriended the Magdalens and outcasts? Do you know that the Church converted the Roman world by her befriending and fighting for the poor? Don't surrender to the enemy the glory of the Christian Church love for the poor and unfortunate.



WHY BEGIN?

Character development begins in our first years and continues throughout life. The secret of character is the formation of good habits which by their very existence exclude bad habits. It is in our earlier years when we are not set in our ways and when we are susceptible to various influences that pay upon us that we form modes of conduct and thought that tend more and more to become fixed and therefore habitual.

Good habits exclude their opposites, bad habits, just as bad habits if we allow them to take hold of us have the effect of excluding good habits.

Life is a continual process of self development. As we succeed in forming good habits industriousness, reliability, truthfulness, patience, and so forth it becomes increasingly easier to go on from one success to another just as, if we allow ourselves to drift along, we form habits of aimlessness that tend to perpetuate themselves so that we go from one failure to another. This is expressed in the old sayings, so deeply true that nothing succeeds like success and nothing fails like failure.

Of course the process of forming good habits is not an easy one. But neither can it be said that the process of forming bad habits is easy. For in the latter case our sense of not doing our best plagues us constantly with dissatisfaction and unhappiness. The more we drift the more dissatisfied we become, until or unless we reach a point where we no longer care, and that indeed would be a hopeless state.

On the other hand, good habits give us a sense of self-mastery, of self-respect, a zest for living that carries us along to further achievement. Life becomes wonderfully worthwhile. A quiet happiness pervades our being. Why then, should anyone lack the little energy and initiative that is needed to start one's self in the right road, since good habits bring in their train so many blessings?

Let us take the habit of drinking—a bad habit. It is a matter of common observation, I think, that children almost without exception loathe the taste of alcohol, whether it be in the form of beer, wine, brandy or whisky. A taste for alcoholic drinks must be acquired by repeated experience. Sometimes the taste is never acquired and though such a person may drink in later years it is probably true that he will never become a habitual drunkard. On the other hand it is generally true, I think, that most of us have a ready facility for acquiring a taste for liquor.

Now people drink for various reasons. Any person who drinks more than moderately does so because of some maladjustment, some sense of failure or unhappiness and his immoderate drinking is the very thing that will undermine his physical constitution and his mental faculties and so increase his misery. One begun the habit of immoderate drinking is like a snowball—it gathers momentum undermining resistance and self-respect.

Charles Lamb the English essayist, was a victim of immoderate drinking and he cried out against it. "Oh, if I wish could transport me back to those days of youth, when a draught from the next clear spring could slake my thirst. How gladly would I return to thee, pure element! the drink of children and childlike, holy hermit!"

If one cannot be abstemious about drinking, one should not drink at all. G. K. Chesterton has said somewhere that he should fear greatly to abuse wine, since wine is a gift of God. Charles Lamb said that he was unable to find a middle ground between total abstinence and excess. It was either one or the other. There are doubtless many like him, and for such a one the stern command to self is: Drink not. On the other hand, for the young man who has neither formed the taste nor the habit of drinking it is better that he never do so. It is so easy, under such circumstances, to refrain. Why begin?

Catholic School of Law Announces Summer School

Washington—(NC)—Georgetown University Law School will conduct summer sessions this year for the first time in its history, the Rev. Francis E. Lucey, S. J. Regent, has announced.

There are to be two terms of six and one-half weeks each. The first term will extend from June 10 to July 24 and the second from July 27 to September 9.

Naturally, Catholicism and Communism have doctrines very much alike. Each professes to love the poor and to administer to their wants. The Reds want to rid only the body of the White; want to rid both soul and body. But let us Christians not forget that unless a man has his body cared for he cannot even begin to think of his soul. Further that caring for his body means obtaining a living wage. And if the Church does not come out and positively fight for the living wage (not just write or talk about it) the poor think that the Christian Church has abandoned them.

St. Joseph is the model for several workers. He started at home by teaching Jesus (a type of Christ) to be subject to the rest of the world. Then he was silent. The Scriptures record not a single word spoken by him. These two qualities qualify him as patron of all social reformers. Our Lord added something to the same effect when He said: Physician, heal thyself."

We hope all who can will attend the Social Action Commission to be given at Nazareth on April 1st.

American Question, Not Alone Catholic Central Verein Hear Of Child Labor Amendment

The Catholic Central Verein of America Rochester Branch at its regular monthly meeting last Monday afternoon discussed the recently formed so called Catholic Committee for the Ratification of the Federal Child Labor Amendment.

During the discussion it was pointed out that the "Hearst press" (Record) in opposition to the following bills: Senate Bill Int 1144 which would in effect provide for trial marriages in the State of New York; Senate Bill Int 1013 giving to Boards of Education the power to require minors from sixteen to seventeen years of age who are not employed to attend part time day instruction.

The Branch went on record in favor of Assembly Bill Int 1695 and Assembly Bill Int 1737 which provide that transportation facilities be afforded equally to all children of school age in the school districts.

The Branch also made arrangement for attendance at the mass meeting to be held on Syracuse March 22. Charles T. Trott, president of the New York State Branch of the Catholic Central Verein of America and also of the Rochester Branch announced that a delegation from the Rochester Branch of the Catholic Central Verein of America and also of the National Catholic Women's Union will attend the mass meeting.

An interesting report of the meeting of the St Peter Claver Society held in the Columbus Civic Centre was given by William J. Fuenfer.

Daniels Leads Diplomats on Another 'Good Will' Tour of Mexican Ruins

New Haven—(NC)—The life of a press and the faith that prevails in diplomatic circles is just one long round of picking up and dropping off—dispatch from Mexico City, March 5 reports.

On the invitation of President Lazaro Cardenas the full diplomatic corps accredited to Mexico left today on a special train for Port Vera Cruz where they will travel by steamer to the State of Yucatan to spend several days visiting the famous Chichen-Itza archeological ruins. They will then go to other Southern States.

Daniels Is Cheer Leader

"The President's aim is to entertain more distinguished visitors than Ambassador Josephus Daniels was the leader of the group which left here thirteen days ago."

When the party gets back to Mexico City, Ambassador Daniels will pay off for the joy ride by making a speech in which he will say, roughly: We return deeply impressed by the policy and ample vision that are beginning to give rest for the social injustice and the economic development of the country. It will be our pleasure to report to our governments that we have seen the result of progress and the faith that prevails in diplomatic circles."

STUDENTS OF MANY COLLEGES ATTEND PEACE CONFERENCE

Washington (NC) Catholic students from 21 universities and colleges in the East participated in a Student Peace Conference at Trinity College Saturday. The Conference was sponsored by the International Relations Club of the college and was held in accordance with the Catholic Association for International Peace. It was one of a series of mid-week meetings of a similar type. The Rev. Dr. Donald A. Maclean of the Catholic University of America, director of the clubs was in charge of the program.

The session opened with an address of welcome to the delegates by Miss Isabel Harmon president of the International Relations Club and was followed by brief speeches by students on the causes of world peace.

Niagara Dramatists To Present Play In Waterbury, Conn.

Niagara Falls—Niagara University's touring dramatists will pass the 1,000 mile mark next weekend when they travel to Waterbury, Conn. to present "The First Legion" three act drama on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings, March 19-21. To date this season the Niagara players have given performances of the drama in Niagara Falls, Buffalo and Syracuse.

This year's vehicle "The First Legion" by Emmet Lavery is one of the few spiritual dramas on stage circles today and springs from the pen of its author a Fordham Law School graduate after he noticed the scarcity of such plays on the stage. The play lays bare actual life in a religious community house throbbing with the uncertainties, difficulties, doubts and experiences the members might be expected to encounter before achieving peace. Man's eternal battle with inherent weaknesses are vividly portrayed in a story that combines interest, pathos, tragedy, humor. Recently enacted on Broadway, the play scored a tremendous hit and earned the laudable comments of such critics as Arthur Ruhl and Bernard Sobel.

Lavery weaves his story around the complex life of nine religious members, the house doctor and a young boy, with the community house of the religious providing the setting for the scenes. The highlights of the play revolve around pseudo and actual miracles and their effect on several members of the community who were experiencing mental and spiritual conflict. The climax caps a play interesting and powerful throughout the various acts.

St. Bona Aids K. C. Membership Drive

St. Bonaventure, N. Y. (Special)—The start of the new membership campaign by the Knights of Columbus throughout the country, Sunday, March 15, brought out the importance of St. Bonaventure College in the work of the councils in the surrounding districts.

Father Thomas Plassmann, O. F. M. president of the college, was the principal speaker at a communion breakfast of Council 338, Olean, N. Y., March 15 at which time he outlined Catholic Action. The college continued to service the Knights the same afternoon as the Rev. Celestine Smith, O. F. M. of the faculty spoke on the [illegible] radio station WHDL. Other members of the faculty including the Very Rev. Conrad O'Leary, O.F.M., in speaking of the various activities of local councils and calling attention to the [illegible] have been most prominent. Since 1931, this institution of [illegible] St. Bonaventure College has received the recognition and thanks of the Supreme Knight Martin Carmody and of many of the local officials in the order for the contribution of speakers to the cause of the Knights.

ANTI-SEMITIC REPORT FALSE

Vienna—(NC) Newspaper reports that an anti-Semitic campaign is being supported by certain groups of Catholics in Vienna are false. The reports, evidently maliciously inspired by opponents of the Catholic Church in this country perhaps have as their basis a privately-published pamphlet which appeared in this city the year two along a program of "social justice" and containing one sentence opposing Jewish influence."
