Along the Sports Horizon

By BILL LANG

The baseball all is sounding again. It comes from the Rev. Gerald C. Lambert who is calling an organization meeting of all parties interested in the formation of a Catholic League for this Tuesday evening, March 31 at the Columbus Club.

Organized during the stormy days of 1932, the Catholic League has grown from a "depression baby" into a lusty youngster during the past six years. Now, on the brink of the seventh season, it represents a very integral part in inter-parish activity during the year.

Several of the parishes represented in Catholic League competition in former years have signed their readiness for another season. They include the championship Holy Rosary aggregation, holder of the title since 1932, Holy Family, champions in 1930 and 1931, and strong challengers in the league.

The sunniest news to come from the sunny south this far is not the signing of the Dean brothers, but rather the promise of an over-odder break for Harry Eggleston, who happens to be of all things an umpire.

Harry, one of the mainstays of the Catholic League staff for several years, managed to go south with the Red Wings to umpire exhibition games. It happens that the Red Wings played several National League teams to date and Harry has had opportunities to try out his wares on the major leaguers.

To single out the outstanding sports performance of the week is just about the easiest job in the world. It belongs to Niagara University, winners of the Section XI title in the Olympic basketball competition.

The Purple Tossers, once under the tutelage of "Billy" McCarthy, managed to get to the New York State title in the metropolitan critics' agreed that the Nixkers but for court glory would end there.

They certainly believe in keeping up their appearance in the Catholic League. Nexting but two victories in which the 1935-1936 season beyond any mathematical doubt Holy Redeemer's proceeded to drop three straight games in St. Boniface.

IF Holy Redeemer's wins two of the remaining six games and St. Michael's wins all six, Holy Redeemer's takes the pennant by a single game. We are proceeding with plans to engrave the Holy Redeemer name on the CATHOLIC COURIER trophy but you must admit that such a gesture is bound to make everybody a bit jittery.
