Mexico Church 'News' Inaccurate
Reports by N. C. W. C. Writer Show

It is not known whether the many Catholic churches have been opened to the public since the federal decree was issued. The decree, which was issued by the Mexican government, states that all Catholic churches in Mexico must be open to the public and that no church can be closed for any reason.

Statement is "Inaccurate"
When questioned specifically by a correspondent for an American newspaper on the accuracy of the statement that the President had ordered the closing of churches, the Minister of Education, Dr. Jose de la Cruz, stated that the statement was "inaccurate."

Disunion Complicated
The closing of churches has complicated the disunion of the Catholic Church in Mexico. The government has asked the Minister of Education to order the reopening of churches, but the Catholic hierarchy has refused to do so.
