Girl Blames Boys For Marriage Drop

Claims Eligible Young Men Can't Curb Their "Selfish Desire For Luxury"; Says Girls Would Trade Jobs To Be "Good Wife and Devoted Mother"

Dear Editor:

Mrs. Madigan's article "Luxuries Causing Marriage Slump" is so patently true that I feel she has missed out on a few points. I write you the opinion of the average Catholic girl between the ages of 18 and 21.

We know its hardships, as to the business world is no bed of roses. The reason we are drifting away from men is because they are not doing their duty. I don't intend to marry a man who is not a good provider. I want a man who is a good provider. I want a man who is a good provider. I want a man who is a good provider.

Many Eligible Men There are eligible young men in Rochester. I have seen them. I have seen them. I have seen them. I have seen them. I have seen them. I have seen them. I have seen them. I have seen them. I have seen them. I have seen them.

Pen Pals: The Stories Of Two Catholic Pictures

By SUSAN RUSSELL

My dear Girls: Following our little talk lately concerning the influence of Catholic pictures in Catholic homes I want to tell you two true stories. Here is the first one: I was visiting in a State penitentiary not long ago to interview a prisoner sent up for murder. Imagine my surprise as I went through the men's division to see on the walls of a cell a picture of the Good Shepherd. The one in which He is seeking the lost sheep. By permission of the warden I secured an interview with this man who after a day's work on the road came back at night to this little cell.

Through the Years The warden was nearby Susan Russell, he said, "if mothers could only know some of the things that warden do perhaps not be needed."

The second story comes from a room third floor back in a tenement house where an old Irish man whom he had asked for a home came down through the years to a prison cell to do its part in bringing back some Catholic mother's boy.
