Till We Meet Again

With this issue, the CATHOLIC COURIER'S student supplement suspends publication for the summer months.

During the past seven weeks, we have tried to interest and entertain our school children just as much as they have interested and entertained us with their valuable contributions to this page.

This supplement was started to assemble the news of our schools and to give our children the opportunity to express their journalistic ability.

Next fall we hope to bring you bigger and better students' supplements perfectly attuned to the spirit of our parental schools.

We will spend part of the time during the summer months planning this project.

As the thrilling vista of summer vacation opens before you, students and books can be conveniently forgotten for several months.

And so, children, enjoy your all-summer vacation and please be careful to avoid any and all accidents until we meet again.

THE EDITORS.
