

Guild Holds Outdoor Meetings in New York

NEW YORK.—Bi-weekly meetings near the statue of Benjamin Franklin facing City Hall Park on Mondays and on Union Square on Fridays, were held by the Catholic Lay Apostles Guild of New York throughout May.

The aim of the Guild is to answer questions of those seeking information regarding Catholic doctrine and practices. For this reason, it was said the Guild has been compelled to decline a number of invitations to change the nature of the meetings and join with other Catholic organizations.

NEW GASOLINE STOPS KNOCK

Many motorists have discovered that high-compression motors tend to knock or ping when they are subjected to a long, hard pull. X-rays of the inside of a cylinder being powered with ordinary gasoline reveal that the fuel burns evenly only at the top of the cylinder and as it travels downward suddenly explodes all the remaining gas, thus causing an ill-timed pressure of approximately 1,000 pounds. It is this improperly timed explosion that the driver hears but frequently does not realize is materially shortening the life of his motor.

These discoveries increase the importance of an announcement made by Edward J. Doyle of Doyle-Gulf. Mr. Doyle, in discussing the new 80 Octane Aviation Grade Gulf-Gulf No-Nox Aviation Grade Gasoline, answers the demands of the motorist for power, speed, and uniform performance and at the same time enables him to push his car up the steepest hills without the slightest trace of a compression knock.

K. C. Choral Society Sings To Large Concert Audience

One of its largest audiences turned out Monday evening to hear the Knights of Columbus Choral Society in its 17th annual concert given in Columbus Auditorium.

The affair was first in a series to provide a $3,000 fund for the Seminary Library Fund.

With fifty trained voices, Professor Frederick C. Pohl, director, presented a program including old favorites and new selections in a virile, well-balanced presentation marked by the usual spirit.

Mrs. Loula Gates Bootes, a favorite soloist with the Choral Society, was received in her several numbers with vigorous applause and encouraged many times.

Accompanists were John J. Roguski for the chorus and Laura Wilbur Remington for Mrs. Bootes. A souvenir program was distributed with pictures of the officers of the Choral Society headed by President John O'Brien and committee members of the veteran singing society. Following the concert there was a reception with Ray Pagan in charge of music.
