Coming of Monster

By OWEN FRANCIS DUDLEY

there? He has faded? A second shell burst with a sharp detonation, nearer to the crossroads. The angel has spread wide his wings, shielding the Cavalry. Lucifer is interested. "So that is why you are here? He assumes amusement: "Is it worth while?" His voice is suddenly metallic and hard.

In Petrograd, on a night in April, 1917, a man and woman entered the restaurant of a hotel. The few people seated at the white-clothed tables, were talking in low, excited whispers, and glancing towards the lengths of window facing the street. Figures were passing feverishly outside, beneath a blaze of artificial light.

The man and woman looked about, chose the window side and found a table. The woman sat down, opened a handbag and examined herself in a small mirror. She was good-looking, with the broad face of a Russian. Her eyes, however, showed an angry light, and the mirror was trembling in her hand.

The man after giving an order to a waiter took his place opposite removed his cap and wiped his forehead. He was flushed, and his clothes had a disordered appearance. On his right temple there was a discolored swelling for a moment neither of them spoke. Then the woman released herself, barely suppressing her voice. "You fool! Why did you do it?" The man replied more quietly. "I would do it again."

GOD AND YOUR CHILD

THE CASE OF FRANKIE

Frankie is by nature a sweet and loving baby. He is barely two years old and tries bravely to do the handiwork of physical delicacy to imitate his intense black-eyed sister, who is two years his senior.

So much the better. We have had enough God - Who does nothing for Russia. The people will be starving. This Government of imbeciles! They do nothing! There is nothing in the Army. Soon there will be riots against us, against the bourgeoisie!

What would you have done? How could you show your appreciation and yet save the flower? Across the fields in that great white house, where the light burns in one of the rooms, a daughter watches the long night through, leaning the place of the mother dead since this girl was little more than a child.

Her Mother's Place When illness came and death threatened, this woman left him, and the daughter, like a little shadow, came to him to take her own mother's place and help him with his fight against death.

WHAT DO YOU KNOW ANSWERS (Questions on Page 4)

1. Levi Silliman Ives. 2. A wealthy Israelite and a disciple of Christ. He requested from Pilate the body of Jesus and with the help of Nicodemus placed it in the tomb.

3. The householder is evidently meant for Christ as head of the Kingdom to do as He sees fit with his gifts; to give those who cannot find work to do as much as those who are more fortunate, to bless those who have no strength for faith as much as those to whom it comes easily.

4. The Master. (N.C.W.C. FEATURES) replied with vehemence: "I would spit in his face the son of Satan!" He returned to his table, and sat down with eyes gleaming.

Mrs. Russell Says: Girls Bear Crosses With Light of Faith

By SUSAN RUSSELL

My dear Girls: It is curious how thoughts that come all uninvited, silently recall so many things we have forgotten. The other night I was in the little town of Happy Valley, up in the Appalachians, with the most gorgeous scenery imaginable.

It looked as if there were no trouble or sorrow, in the whole place. And yet, there in that little white house with the green shutters, an only daughter is a mental and physical wreck, the result of an illness years ago. Her mother even more to his mother's heart than his loving disposition - though one could help but be deeply in love with so sweet a child.

There are many stories written here on the hills, some sad, some wonderful - stories of life perhaps to be found everywhere. But what impresses me most is the fact that God is not blamed for what has been brought about by human frailty, nor do they cease to believe in God because of misfortune.

When illness came and death threatened, this woman left him, and the daughter, like a little shadow, came to him to take her own mother's place and help him with his fight against death.

PEN PALS

By SUSAN RUSSELL

Dear Pals: This week we have to say a final goodbye to the repose of the soul of the father of one of our Pen Pals, the Rev. Fr. ... This week seems to hold a great deal of shadow, but there are bright spots, for two of our Pen Pals are now well enough to return home after several years in Spain.
