N. C. C. W. Pledges New Loyalty To Church's Catholic Action Plan

Pledges Prayer In Reparation for Outrages Against God; Convention Thanks Papal Delegate For Guidance; Miss Yawman Re-elected

GALVESTON—(NC)—Renewing their pledge of loyalty and obedience to the entire program of Catholic Action enunciated in the Encyclicals of His Holiness Pope Pius XI, the delegates to the sixteenth annual convention of the National Council of Catholic Women here last week also pledged themselves "to offer special prayers during each day of the coming year in reparation for the outrages committed against God and for the intention of the restoration of the reign of Christ in the hearts of men and in the government of nations."

Thanking His Excellency the Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, Apostolic Delegate to the United States, for his message broadcast to the convention from Washington last Monday, another resolution says "it brought to the NCCW an even greater realization of the responsibility which rests upon it to share in the great program of Catholic Action, particularly as evidenced in the work of catechetical instruction."

Extending sympathy to the women and children of Mexico, particularly to Catholic parents, "during this critical period" and renewing the pledge "to give them our encouragement in the heroic efforts they are making to defend the essential and fundamental rights and liberties of the individual, the family, and especially of the parent," the NCCW appeals "to every American not to undertake or to underestimate the gravity of the menace which Mexico is today to the future progress and even to the present safety of the faith and culture in America."

Parent-Education Program
Still other resolutions pledged every possible assistance to affiliated groups "for the continuance and expansion of a sound Catholic parent-education movement, in order that each individual parent may be equipped to assume in truly Christian fashion the education of the little one entrusted by God to their care." voted "wholehearted cooperation to the Parent Education Movement" affirmed on "our loyalty to the Catholic educational ideal as embodied in the Catholic school" expressed awareness "that the future will make even greater demands on our efforts our generosity and our vigilance if we are to carry on the great work of Catholic education and pledged constant study of the

Student Orators

These three young women from the College of Our Lady of the Lake, San Antonio, appeared on the final program of the annual convention of the National Council of Catholic Women, held at Galveston. "Building a Nation" was the subject presented by the students, Catherine Murphy (top), Mary Alice Glickauf (center) and Alberta Beach.

EXILED PORTUGUESE NUNS FLEE SPAIN'S REDS TO LISBON

LONDON (NC)—Seven Portuguese Catholic nuns driven out of Portugal 27 years ago in Spain, have just returned to Lisbon. The government gave facilities for their return.

The tragedy of their homecoming is that they have lost the treasure of the Infant Jesus which St. Teresa of Avila always kept before her. It is thought that a precious old monasticism has been destroyed.

It is possible, too, that a hand of St. Teresa, the sixteenth century founder of more than 30 Carmels in Spain, has been lost.

News of the arrival of the Sisters in Lisbon was brought here by special correspondent of the "Universal" who met them there.

They came from Ronda. When the Reds arrived there the nuns lived in terror and the aged Mother spent a whole night on her knees in prayer.

Reds themselves brought the good news that the Portuguese Government had made arrangements for their return to Portugal. They were taken to Malaga, then on a British destroyer to Gibraltar.

The nuns burned their convent. The valued statue perished in the flames, and the monasticism may have gone also.

The fate of the relic—the hand of St. Teresa—is not known. The Rev. Mother gave it into the keeping of a pious couple. It would be safe to say that the relic was not destroyed, but the couple had been murdered.

A later message received here says that the relic may be safe. No further particulars are given.

Mrs. Madigan Says: Hobbies for Elderly Women Recommended

"Dear Mrs. Madigan: You have taken my flippant letter much more seriously than I meant. Really, I quite agree with you that the subject of marriage is important, and that in spite of the fact that, personally, I do not care a pin about the larger problem of whether the population of the world increases or decreases. But I do like marriage and motherhood and certainly wish that all who are desirous could be happily married and could enjoy the privilege of parenthood."

"Aside: My Catholic friends all happen to be married—except one who wishes to be a nun—and the children of my friends, like my own children, are far too young to cause me much worry about their marriages!"

"Perhaps I have little faith in the power of columns to do much about the problem of finding suitable mates for the lonely ones. Or, perhaps my letter was a job of another sort—that my problem might be discussed for a change!"

"As you point out, it is anything but easy to be a good woman, a good wife and mother, with the wisdom and patience and all the other things necessary for success in theory of life that is followed by those of us women who have married. And there is the vital problem—when someone has expressed in the words: 'Is there, after forty, any alternative to marriage—which we younger women should begin to solve long before the day when our youngest child has left home. And there are dozens of other topics, weighty and otherwise, which you have no doubt discussed in the past, but which I hope may be discussed in the future, also."

"If you have taken my letter for rudeness, I'm very sorry. Certainly it would be absurd for me to fear that my children had to choose between marriage and Catholicism—or that Catholic women really think of nothing else than trying to get married! So I will thank you for your answer to my letter and hope that if too many soulless are sent to you to pass on to me, that you won't feel I need the mail."

Your letter was not considered rude. It was a bit flippant in tone, but underneath the flippancy there seemed to be sincerity of thought and sincere thinking is still sufficiently rare to merit recognition regardless of flippancy of expression.

You bring up a problem that is very near to my heart. The situation is worse than you put it, for there are many women past forty who are not even interested in being married. I have known women who are physically attractive and whose children no longer need their physical ministrations. She cannot contribute much in the way of mental ministrations, for hers has been a sheltered life and her mind does not encompass the full life of modern life. The problems confronting her children daily in their contacts with a rough world. How many times I have heard her daughter say, "What is it to be a baby?" Well, it is not easy for every type of mind to develop a hobby late in life, so it is interesting to note that the younger generation of mothers is giving

Swiss Cantons Seize Rutherford Leaflets

LUCERNE, SWITZERLAND—(NC)—The authorities of various cantons in central Switzerland were recently confronted with considerable activity on the part of the so-called "Witnesses of Jehovah," a sect presided over by "Judge" Joseph P. Rutherford.

Leaflets carrying attacks against Christian churches were distributed in many villages, but then confiscated by the police on the ground that they are apt to disturb the religious peace.

The canton government of Lucerne had previously refused permission for a public meeting to be held in that city with Judge Rutherford as the speaker, but he later spoke in a private meeting.

His old audiences, missing him, have wondered about his disappearance. "Comedien," a theatrical magazine has just revealed his whereabouts. Syrral has entered a seminary, in a diocese in the Alps, and is studying for the priesthood. He is 45 years old.

Just a few months after an actress from the Comedie Francaise had entered the convent, another famous Parisian stage artist has become a religious. Mlle. Suzanne Delorme, who has not appeared publicly since last season, has entered a convent of the Dominicans near Grenoble. All last winter she played the role of a young girl who left with sorrow the convent where she had grown up in care of the Sisters. Each evening, her fellow actors report, she shed real tears after this scene.
