So in the future, unless you have a serious problem that absolutely necessitates personal advice, pleas word your letter, or present your problem in such a manner that it may be answered in the column Rest assured that your name will not be published, and that any facts that you state which might reveal your identity will be deleted pefore publication.

And please, I beg of you, do not write in asking for the names and addresses of contributors to the column. In many instances it is quite a temptation to supply this information, especially when the two persons are shown to be close neighbors; but, very little reflection will convince you that this would be a very dangerous thing to do unless both parties were personally known to me. Unscrupulous people can and for that matter have made use of columns of this type in attempting to carry out questionable, and even nefarious, plans. HOW TO ORGANIZE
