O Boys and U R GIRLS

My Mother
*Oh, how she's waiting for me
That there's a ray of hope,
Who'll give me the beauty of
That angel faded my mother.*

*She has piloted my ship of life
She has surrounded me with
So I may pray easily
For her who with her hand
The grace of God is shining
In the twilight of her eyes
In the sure that when she calls her She'll go to Paradise.*

*So Virgin Mary, guide and guard
The Mother that I love
And now her place close to your throne
I'll soon be joining you.*

Spring will soon be in the air.
With flowers blooming everywhere.
The birds will sing their praises.
Because they, too, know spring is nigh.
All colors will change from gloomy
gray
To colors light and bright, and gay.
And the happiness in our hearts
will ring.
Because we know it will be spring.
RAMEL, FRANKA
Eighth Grade,
Corpus Christi School.

Oh! selfish little habits
Creeping one by one
Till the heart is uncleanly done.
Soon the mischief done.

I don't want to do it,
Dishes are a bore,
I don't care who hears me
If I slam the door.

But a guilty conscience
Is a safety key,
And if you'll but heed it
You'll agree with me.

Mother, let me do it,
Dishes are just fun,
She—Grandma dear is sleeping,
Yes the victory's won.

Generous little habits,
Big and bigger grow,
To all they bring a blessing,
Aren't you glad they so?

The Best Best-Seller

DALE CARNEGIE'S book "How to Win Friends and Influence People" leads the best sellers for non-fiction. "Gone With the Wind" heads the fiction.

Neither, however, begin to approach the number of savings bankbooks printed each year to satisfy the demands of the thrifty.

The more you put in, the more you take out. And it costs you nothing! Have you a bankbook among the best sellers you own?
