British King, Queen Seventeenth Cousins, Noted Abbot Finds

LONDON—King George of England and his Queen are cousins, is the interesting disclosure made by Abbot Hunter, Blis, O.S.B., noted antiquarian.

They are seventeenth cousins, it is true, but cousins just the same. King George, says the Abbot, descends in right line through Mary Queen of Scots, James VI and I, and the Gaelpha, from Robert III, King of Scots (1315-1390).

Robert's sister, Jean, was married in 1370 to Sir John Lyon of Glamis, whose grandson was created Lord Glamis, in 1440, the direct ancestor of Lady Elizabeth Angela Marguerite Lyon, who is now Queen Elizabeth.

Select Motto For Schenectady Sessions From Encyclical

With Charles T. Trott of this city, State President, presiding over sessions of the Central Verein, and Mrs. Mary Filser Lohr, New York, State President, conducting the Catholic Women's Union sessions, the state convention of both organizations will be held in Schenectady over Labor Day weekend, September 4, 5 and 6.

It will be the 40th annual meeting of the New York State Branch, Catholic Central Verein of America and the 18th annual convention of the Catholic Women's Union of New York.

Motto From Encyclical
Motto chosen for the convention "Let there be a united front for the infusion of social justice and the sentiment of Christian love into the social-economic order" has been taken from the recent Papal Encyclical on Atheistic Communism.

Arrangements are being made to have Mayor Robert W. Baxter of Schenectady greet delegates at the joint opening session on Sunday. Headquarters will be at Hotel Van Dyke, 1000 State St. and a Mission and Charity Aid Exhibit will be featured.

Editorial to speak
Speakers listed for Monday are in the program: Dr. Earl E. Cummings, professor of economics at Union College Schenectady, a national authority on the labor problem and in the afternoon, the Rev. John J. Collins, a member of the editorial staff of "The Evangelist," Albany diocesan weekly. Father Collins spoke here at the Catholic Conference on Industrial Problems last November.

A conference-type mass meeting for Catholic Women's Union delegates will be held at headquarters at which the Rev. Francis J. Ruchler, director of the Catholic South Organization of St. Joseph's Academy, will present details who will talk on the C.Y.O.'s aims and ideals, its training for citizenship and leadership and its relationship to and preparation for the work of the two organizations.

The Most Rev. Edmund F. Gibbons, D.D., Bishop of Albany, will preside at Solemn High Mass on Sunday morning at which the Rev. Peter B. Duffes, O.S.M., of St. Francis Monastery, New York, will preach the sermon. Church services including the Eucharistic service on Sunday evening and requiem for deceased members on Monday morning will be held in St. Joseph's Church.

A pilgrimage of women delegates to Auriesville, Shrine of North American Martyrs, will be held Sunday afternoon following Sunday evening church services. There will be social gathering in the Hillman Hall. During the convention Knights of St. John will have open-house in their clubrooms.

Peter J. M. Clute of Schenectady, general secretary of the State Branch and chairman of the State Legislative Committee, will present a detailed report of the work of the committee on Monday.

Laud Card. Gibbons' Aid To Laborers

Fifty Organizations Pay Tribute At Capital Rites

WASHINGTON—Tribute was paid James Cardinal Gibbons by the Knights of Columbus and 50 other organizations and his contributions to the betterment of relations between capital and labor lauded at exercises here Sunday observing the one hundred and third anniversary of the great prelate's birth.

The rites were held at the memorial statue of Cardinal Gibbons in front of Sacred Heart Church here. Wreaths were placed at the foot of the statue by the representatives of 57 societies and the State of Maryland.

In the principal tribute paid to the prelate, Dr. John R. Fitzpatrick, Dean of the Columbus University Law School, here, appealed to Catholic employers throughout the country "to lead the way toward an intelligent solution of the current strife between capital and labor" through the application of the Christian labor principles enunciated so clearly and so often by an illustrious American—James Cardinal Gibbons.

Nation-wide broadcast
Dr. Fitzpatrick's address was broadcast over a nation-wide hookup in which 17 stations participated.

The Rev. Dr. Joseph Christopher, professor of English at the Catholic University of America, delivering the invocation, called attention to Cardinal Gibbons' words "the integrator of American Catholicism to Europe." Dr. Christopher cited the Cardinal's belief that "the Constitution of the United States is the greatest instrument of spiritual liberty the world has ever known from the hand of man."

Walter J. Platt, State Deputy of the Knights of Columbus, who sponsored the exercises, presided at the ceremonies. In his tribute he declared that the Cardinal's teachings "made it his life's work to interpret Catholicism and American institutions to his fellow citizens outside the borders." "That he was called to America in the prime and respect which Catholicism, new and old, has in the United States."

Governor George W. Westcott
One of the wreaths placed at the feet of the Cardinal statue was that of Governor George W. Westcott of Maryland.

The benediction was given by the Rev. Joseph M. Moran, pastor of St. Thomas the Apostle Church and the Rev. Dr. John J. Moran, pastor of St. Thomas the Apostle Church in the Baltimore Archdiocese Holy Name Union.

Dr. Fitzpatrick in his address, said that while the Cardinal was an apostle of the Christian faith, he was also a social reformer. He pointed to the Cardinal's social teachings as a model for the working man and his employer.

POPE REPORTED 'NOT TOO WELL'

VATICAN CITY—While His Holiness Pope Pius XI is passing the summer at Castel Gandolfo, the newspapers, especially foreign ones, are carrying contrasting accounts of his health. Some say his condition is alarming, others that his health is excellent. The truth lies midway. The Pope is really not too well.

Nevertheless, His Holiness with an exceptional strength of will, continues his customary occupations, reads much, continually receives his many collaborators and twice a week admits to a select audience about 2,000 persons. He addresses some opportune words to them and sometimes even gives discourses of particular importance.

Certainly, however, the time has passed when one might see the white figure of the Pope pass from one reception-room to another giving each one present his hand to kiss and finally blessing from the center of the room all the devoutly in which to prove his support of such a project.

BACK TALK

You point to the Christian Science Monitor as an example these problems solved. I point to the Christian Science Monitor as proof that these problems can be solved. The paper as it stands is not the solution in itself.

I doubt if we could pattern a Catholic daily after the Monitor. Circulation surveys in large cities show that Catholics are predominant buyers of most dailies. By this very fact they have shown their preference for a livelier type of journalism than that practiced by the Monitor. In other words, a Catholic daily must have more popular appeal than the Monitor.

If I were a pessimist I would flatly state that a denominational newspaper could not survive in the daily press field and point to the Monitor as the exception proving the rule. But despite conclusions you already have drawn I am not pessimistic on the subject of a Catholic daily—merely cautious.

Well, you ask, how can the Catholic reading public prove to the Catholic press of today that it wants a daily?

The answer is obvious—by supporting the weekly press.

We of the Catholic press, working in a limited field, are trying to make the Catholic weekly as interesting, instructive and appealing as our subject matter will allow.

We are firmly convinced that while the Catholic public has shown an increasing interest in the fortunes of the Catholic press, there is plenty of room for expansion of that attitude.

When that near-saturation point of support is reached, then we will seriously consider a Catholic daily.
