

IN ONE EARE

By ART KELLY

In years past radio was a simple thing. Transmitters were small and radio receivers were simple enough to be fixed with a screw driver and a pair of pliers. In fact, in days long forgotten tubes for receivers could be named on your fingers. Now look at a tube catalog and count the types of tubes available for receivers alone. This same situation applies to the business of radio. The technical side of radio is rushing along at such a swift pace that announcements come out regarding mechanical and electrical advances without the general public having time to catch up.

This was brought to my attention last week when John Long, WJAM's Technical Supervisor, returned from a trip to New York. From his briefcase he extracted a long strip of orange paper covered with black printing and fine line drawings. I looked on in wonder while he explained that this was the technical side of radio in the laboratory of WOR, Newark, N. J. While radio broadcasting, as we know it, moves along its highly developed way, with another phase of radio is growing up right under our noses. Through the use of facilities it will be possible to have a newspaper printed right in your own home. I wouldn't attempt to describe the possibilities of this new phase of radio until I had a re-print of a bit of copy used on the WOR facilities. "Is It For The Home—At the present time a receiver such as the one which reproduced these lines is about $125. However, under mass production, it is expected that the price will drop to $35 or less. And the device is no more complicated than the average all wave receiver found today in most American homes."

Rush Hughes, NBC commentator, is truly the "Marconi of the Microphone." He has traveled approximately 10,000 miles within two months and has broadcast from sixteen cities throughout the two future World's Fairs. His pen has put his work in the presentation of his Red Network program which he calls his "Highwire."

Well—after much ado the Holywood Radio City studios of NBC are being completed. An American flag and a blue NBC pennant were run up over the new skyscraper on June 15 denoting that construction crews have topped the new structure.

If you're an admirer of Horace Heidt and his Brigadiers you will be interested in this bit of gossip. Horace and his famous group will go on tour this summer and will visit many of the leading cities of the United States. The group doesn't say whether or not Rochester will be on the route but fans of "sweet swing" are hoping.

If you're a baseball fan here is a story for your consideration. Baseball's greatest show—the All-Star Game—will be on the air next Wednesday afternoon at 11:30 o'clock. In case you are not familiar with the All-Star Game, here is the info. Each season this special event brings together the best players in the National and American Leagues in a battle for major league supremacy. The broadcast, originating at Gray Field, Cincinnati, will be on the air over the NBC-Blue network. Tom Manning of WTAM and Red Barber of WLW will handle the play-by-play description.

Walter Winchell is now among the many away on vacation. His Sunday night spot is currently being filled by Ben Grauer with a novel program titled "Winchelliana." During the quarter hour Ben will ask questions based on information that has appeared in Winchell's column. First broadcast will be July 3.

Time marches on—and with it comes many changes. In fact even the time of the March of Time has been changed. During past months the famous news program has been heard over WJAM on Thursday nights at seven. Starting July 3, the program will move to Friday night and the new time will be 8:30 p.m. With the time change also comes a new sponsor. The producer will again be the sponsor.

Dick Toole, deep-voiced gentleman newly heard on WJAM, is a special announcer filling in the vacant spots in WJAM's announcing schedule left by departing announcer. Dick has worked many times on the "Troopers" show and has handled many outside programs for the station.

General announcing break on the air this week. The first program after WJAM after 7:30 p.m. will be the "Fall Fair" show. This show will be broadcast on the air over the NBC-Blue network. The program will be on the air over the NBC-Blue network. Tom Manning of WTAM and Red Barber of WLW will handle the play-by-play description.

452 Awarded Diplomas At Three High Schools

First graduates of the three city Catholic High Schools to receive their diplomas and awards from the hand of the Most Rev. James E. Kearney, Bishop of Rochester were the graduates of Nazareth Academy, St. Michael's and Mercy High Schools on Monday evening, June 27, 1938.

The ceremony was presided over by the Bishop of St. Joseph. Bishop Talks to Graduates. What the graduates have learned in their four years under the guidance of the good sisters they can now put into practice as they go forth into the world, the Bishop said in the commencement address. He warned the girls that the real test of loyalty to their religion and their school will come when opposition presents itself.

The graduates were presented to the Bishop by the Rev. Daniel B. O'Rourke, instructor in religion at the Academy. "Youth Priests' Formation" was the Valuedictory theme spoken by Dolores P. Swanson and "Voices of Today," the Salutatory of Cecilia R. Wegman.

The a capella chorus sang "In Te Domine Speravi" and Alma Mater, "We Salute Thee." The guest conductor was Mr. George Minges. 235 Graduates at Aquinas. To the 225 graduates of Aquinas Institute the Bishop brought the admonition that they be intelligent Christians consistent in the practice of their religion and an enthusiasm for it as are the followers of Communism for their false philosophy.

Citing the growing belief that education in order to be effective must be revolutionary and must answer the philosophy of our parents, the Bishop said: "Aquinas has not allowed any of its professors to play false with the parents who sent you here to school."

He said the boys were the latest champions of what we call Catholic Action. Their education has been obtained from a system motivated by the definite philosophy of religion as taught by the priests and nuns of Christ.

Robert J. Edelman in the Valuedictory declared that the real cause of the depression dates back to the last half of the 19th century. He said man has made and will make countless inventions, but does not know how to utilize and control them because God has been pushed aside.

The commencement was the first held under the administration of the Baillian Fathers at Aquinas. The Rev. John H. O'Loane, C.S.B., principal, presented the graduates who were attired in tassels.

Before a large audience of relatives and friends, 81 graduates of Mercy High School were conferred diplomas and awards by His Excellency, the Most Rev. James E. Kearney, Bishop of Rochester in impressive exercises in the Columbus Civic Centre Auditorium, Friday evening, June 24.

The graduates, dressed in white caps and gowns, marched to the stage to the music of the Processional "Festal March," written by a Sister of Mercy.

Congratulating the parents because the students had achieved success and because they had given their daughters such a type of education, the Bishop continued: "Today boys and girls are graduating and going to the battle we call life. But a graduate like this differs in two ways, first in relation to God and second, in relation to their country."

"Since each girl," he said, "has learned her habits in the shadow of the Sanctuary, as a graduate she knows she has been trained to know patriotism is not a personal whim, but a solemn moral obligation."

Regretting the fact that a great many schools send out graduates who would not as students pledge allegiance to the flag, the Bishop said: "We pledge to our country there will not be a single diploma awarded in a Catholic school but to a 'dyed-in-the-soul' patriot, one who knows patriotism is an obligation."

A recitation, "The Long White Road," was given by Katherine Lechleitner. The Class poem, "Behold Thy Hand, O Lord," was given by Rose Lamark. Another recitation, "Creed for Kingsness," was given by Dorothy Morgan. The Class was presented by the Rev. Patrick J. Smyth, Chaplain of the school.

National Prize Won by Squires

AUBURN, N. Y.—Second place in the International Best Circle Contest, conducted by the Knights of Columbus Supreme Council Boy Life Bureau was won by the Auburn Circle. It was announced here this week.

The contest is an annual feature and is participated in by thousands of Catholic boys of high school age who comprise the Columbian Squires. More than 250 Circles throughout the United States and Canada were entered and 25 Circles in 30 states and three Canadian Provinces were eligible for the Honor Roll.

First place was won by the Alton, Pa. Circle and third place by the Atchison, Kansas, Circle.

One of the conditions of eligibility for the contest was the requirement that every communication at least once a month by every member.

Comments speak in a report on the contest. In a report on the contest, the boys of the Auburn Circle, since the inception of the city, public health work has served 3,000 free meals and distributed 9,000 ration of bread and 2,000 of milk.

Geneva Knights Honor Hoffman

GENEVA—About 100 members of the Geneva Council of the Knights of Columbus attended the 1938-39 annual given in tribute to retiring Grand Knight Henry Hoffman on Thursday evening, June 23, at the K. of C. home.

Sergeant Charles Curtin of the New York State Police was the guest speaker and combined with a stirring talk of highway safety responsibility, a well-developed pathos that "it can happen here," referring to present European political conditions.

The program was opened with the invocation by Rev. Edward K. Ball after which "America" was sung by the group. Group singing of several popular songs was heard by Tom Casey during the dinner. James Lynch acted as piano accompanist and Clifford W. Mooney also entertained with several original songs.

Included in the speaking program were Toastmaster Sergeant Dan Murphy of the Geneva Police Department; George Handland, Willis Lynch, Past Grand Knights, Grand Knight-elect Cornelius Tansy; Mayor Charles F. Nider, and District Deputy Bernard Matthews of Waterloo.

K. C. Team in 2 to 1 Win Over Syracuse

GENEVA—The Knights of Columbus softball team of this city notched a close 2-1 victory over the Benedict Manufacturing Company's team of East Syracuse on Sunday, June 19 in a fast game played in less than 90 minutes.

Marino and Lander shared the pitching duty for the "Knights," yielding but two hits between them, while Geneva collected but three from Jarvis, Syracuse twirler.

"Midge" Cowan collected two of the K. of C.'s hits and Polino's long drive in the final inning detected the game in favor of the Genevans.

Devotion of France

ALL BY HIMSELF

London Two English scientists, Graham Rowley and Raymond Tracy, in an account of their expedition to Baffin Island and the Melville peninsula, declare that Father Basil, the Oblate missionary who has been at Igloolik for five years, is undoubtedly "the most isolated and the most solitary white man in the world."
