All Schools Need Religion

Evils Cited Of Secularization

WASHINGTON—(INC)—An appeal to the American people to make a very thorough study of the effects of the secularization of their schools, begun a century ago, "lest the schools they support continue to decline as means of individual and social betterment," is made by the National Catholic Educational Association in a resolution it adopted at its thirty-sixth annual convention at the Catholic University of America, ending Friday.

The Association declares that the elimination from the American educational field of "the knowledge and love of God" the result of a compromise adopted a century ago by men of narrow vision and little experience has deprived American Democracy of "the only power that can eventually sustain and preserve it."

This resolution came as the climax to a number of brilliant addresses in which were outlined the steps by which Catholic schools in the United States will inaugurate their crusade of education for Christian Democracy and in which it was set forth that the claims of American Catholics for just participation in whatever plans the Government makes for the advancement of education have gained ground with the passage of time.

Thanks for Easter Message

The Association offered "the homage of our loyalty and loving obedience" to His Holiness Pope Pius XII. Thanking the Sovereign Pontiff for his Easter message the Association said: "we realize how responsible are we who are called to teach children and youth for the preservation of those virtues from which spring the order sought on earth and only which alone can bring peace to the world."

Noting that "to foster the Christian concept of citizenship the Bishops of the United States have charged the Catholic University to compile a more comprehensive series of graded texts for all educational levels—texts that will build an enlightened, conscientious citizenship," the N.C.E.A. declared itself "in hearty accord with a fundamental, the great educational project as one deserving the active support and co-operation of all Catholic educators."

Father Duffy Chosen

The Most Rev. John P. Peterson, Bishop of Manchester, accepted the Association's invitation to serve as its President General for another term. Named as chairman of the School Superintendence Department was the Rev. John M. Duffy, Superintendent of Schools, Diocese of Rochester.

Further legislation to the effect that the Association, on the golden jubilee year of the Association, shall institute in its name the Catholic educational endeavor in the United States. The University belongs to all of us in a very particular way," the resolution said, "its success are the interests of Catholic education."

The Association also stated Georgetown University is about to observe its 150th anniversary. The N.C.E.A. lauded the noble and glorious record of this, the first Catholic institution of higher learning to be established in the United States.

Back Literature Drive

Pledging itself to co-operate with the Bishops of the country by supporting the National Organization for Decency in Literature, the N.C.E.A. directed attention to the fact that "the mind of youth in building its life ideal is influenced in a very special way by the kind of reading it engages in," and that today a veritable flood of

Bishop's Tribute

His Excellency, Bishop Kearney on hearing of the death of the following statement in tribute to Monsignor Brophy:

He was one of the outstanding pastors of the diocese. In passing the diocese loses one of its remaining figures. He was a fine priest, a staunch friend, a zealous servant and a man of deep personal piety. During all of his years of service in this diocese he will be remembered by a large group of admirers and friends both Catholic and non-Catholic. We feel we have sustained a great loss in his death.

Monsignor Brophy who was born in Shortsville, son of John and Matilda Healey Brophy on October 24, 1867, would have been 72 on his next birthday.

'Spain Should Work for Peace'

Pius XII Urges Reconstruction

VATICAN CITY—Employing fluent Spanish and speaking from his study in the Vatican, His Holiness Pope Pius XII Sunday broadcast to the people of Spain a warm exhortation that they in close spiritual union dedicate themselves to that work of reconstruction which God and their country expect of them.

The Holy Father extended paternal congratulations to his beloved children of Catholic Spain for the peace and victory granted them by God and so much desired by Pope Pius XI. He expressed his firm confidence that this peace will be what his predecessor so ardently longed for: it to be a herald that is of a future of tranquility in order and of honor in prosperity.

The Sovereign Pontiff pointed out how the designs of Divine Providence have once again manifested themselves in the heroic Spanish nation. Spain was chosen by God to be the principal instrument for the evangelization of the New World. His Holiness said and now as an impregnable bulwark of the Catholic Faith it has given to the present-day materialistic atheism of our age the highest proof that the eternal values of religion and the spirit stand above all things.

Defense of Ideals

This Spain has done, the Holy Father said, through the generous uprising of the healthy part of the Spanish people in the defense of the ideals of faith and of Christian civilization and through their victorious resistance with the help of God against the assaulting forces of the enemies of Christ.
