Oyster Catholics By Magr. P. M. H. Wynhoven Editor-in-Chief Catholic Action of the South

Henry Beckett, one of our well-known secular journalists, recently had this to say about the reading mind of the American people...

"To be strengthened by his Spirit with might unto the inward man, that Christ may dwell by faith in your hearts..."

When we fail to find today Catholics "strengthened by his Spirit with might unto the inward man..."

The intellectuality of some of these intellectuals and much mental indigestion they read incessantly and everything they can lay their hands on...

Poor fools! They are nothing but intellectual oysters, too lazy to move, but taking in, absorbing, everything, without mental masti-

Religion Has Definite Place In Every Military Division

By Capt. Clarence A. Hycraft U. S. Army Reserves What happens to religion when a soldier goes to war or to a peace time training camp?

Religion is not forgotten in the army. There is something about a Mass in military surroundings that brings out a greater desire to get closer to the higher things of life...

Yes, the army goes to Mass. Speaking from three years on duty with the Civilian Conservation Corps there are innumerable cases of Catholics coming back to their religion after shirking for months and even years...

The army chaplains job does not end with his religious services. He is the personal adviser to all in the army or other services. There are two Catholic chaplains on duty at this C.T.M.C. encampment...

child who just finished his Catechism and made his first Communion, we can make very little impression on the unbelieving world. Still it is expected by God, especially of Catholics who have the mentality and the education...

Faith Stories For Little Ones

THE BLEEDING CRUCIFIX It is related in the life of St. Francis Borgia that a certain Spanish gentleman, who was addicted to the sin of impurity, was stricken in the flower of his age by a mortal distemper...

St. Francis having heard of the circumstance, was inspired by a holy zeal to make every effort to bring him to a sense of his condition and move him to repentance. Before going to visit him, he first went and threw himself at the foot of the crucifix...

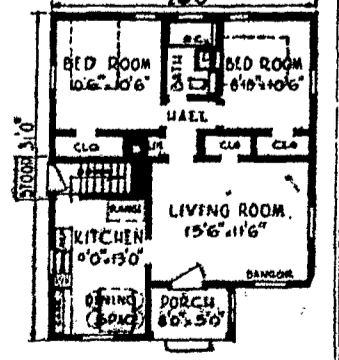

St. Francis returned home, and again throwing himself before the crucifix, earnestly implored our Divine Lord to soften the hardened heart of the sinner. "Return to him," replied Jesus, "and take with thee the crucifix. Can he resist the sight of a God dead on the cross for his salvation?"

Also the hardened sinner still remained insensible to the voice of Divine grace. Having cast one look upon the crucifix, he turned to the wall and died in despair.

LIFE OF ST. FRANCIS BORGIA In order, my dear children, that we may preserve our souls from the detestable stain of impurity, it is necessary that we should keep a constant guard over our senses - that is, over our eyes, our tongue, our ears, etc. - which are as it were the doors by which the unclean spirit enters into our hearts...

Relief Problem There is about to be brought home to Americans a repercussion of the European conflict that they probably have not anticipated. It is the complex problem of relief. Already there has been held in New York a meeting attended by a half-hundred persons, most of them nationally-prominent persons representing internationally-famous organizations...
