Constitution Essay Wins First Prize

GENEVA.—A clearly written and thoughtfully prepared essay on "The Constitution of the United States" won for Miss Avis Kepner, 97 Sherill Street, 18-year-old St. Francis de Sales High School student, the essay contest sponsored by the Geneva Kiwanis Club on the Constitution topic.

Announcement of the award, carrying a $10 cash prize was made on September 20 at the Kiwanis Club Constitution Day celebration.

Entered in the contest were students of both of Geneva's high schools. Judges were W. A. Gracely, E. T. Emmons and Arthur J. Cowan.

Appropriately setting forth the events leading to the adoption of the Constitution and outlining clearly provisions of the document, Miss Kepner's essay discussed the "newly framed" bundle of compromise which emerged from the basic law of the central government of the early colonies.

"The members writing this Constitution were far-sighted enough to provide that no individual or group of individuals should rule our country and turn us from a democracy to a kingdom or an autocratic form of government," the essay states.

The various amendments were carefully treated and Miss Kepner wrote:

"Our Constitution is recognized by all other Nations of the world. It is the truest form of a pure democratic document of this type. Ambassadors and ministers are sent to other nations as personal agents to defend the rights of our citizen in foreign lands."

In concluding her essay the prize winner stated:

"Because the men of Constitutional days had the courage and honesty to do what lay before them, we are able to live under this Constitution—life, plus hope and promise."

"They realized the fact that difficulties and problems would arise which could not be solved alone under the original Constitution. Time changes everything and Benjamin Franklin, Alexander Hamilton, James Madison, George Washington and James Wilson, the five great master minds of the Constitutional Convention, and a few others knew this from experience."

Hence they prepared the way for us a way not completely strewn with roses but a way where thorns often protruded. Serious situations have arisen many times and we always came out top after following our predecessors' advice and obeying the supreme law of the land the Constitution."

Members will meet in St. Joseph's Hall at 9:15 and will be escorted by the Ladies Auxiliaries of the Knights of St. John of Holy Family and St. Boniface churches, led by the "Helping Hand" Society.

Life of Madame Rose Lummis

By REVEREND RALPH J. MEYER

ARTICLE XIX

On the eve of the First Friday, confessions were heard for the town people, while the Holy Hour was held in the church. Early that morning the country wagons came through the snows of winter and the heat of summer from the long distant farms with their loads of produce. The confessions had risen at sunrise to enable the busy missionary to say his Mass and go to answer some other call many miles from Simcoe.

No wonder these were happy hours for Rose, and that her zeal triumphed over every obstacle illness pain and often intense weariness of soul and body. With increased spiritual opportunities for seeing humor in most things and also of drawing lessons from even the most absurd. Humor caught her own fancy and served up in simple fashion. It did duty for her, attracting them to greater things. She used to quote the tale of "the man so wondrous wise, who fell into a bramble bush and scratched out both his eyes," and his philosophy appealed to her.

And—

"With all his might and main, He jumped into the bramble bush and scratched them in again!"

Rose had set her feet firmly on the road, and there was no turning back. Every leaning to worldly things must be ignored, her beautiful hair was sacrificed without a pang, and the plain unattractive habit which she henceforth wore could not altogether hide her state of grace or charm of person.

DRAWN TO HER.

Rose had a tender spot in her heart for the Irish emigrant though indeed she saw them sometimes in not too favorable circumstances. While her heart was touched by their sufferings in the past, her practical nature had little sympathy with some easy-going shiftless specimens with whom her work brought her in contact.

Many of the most prosperous of the unhappy exiles driven across the Atlantic during the awful famine of the forties. By hard work in the alien land they had acquired farms and homesteads. But while they had fought the good fight, and even kept their faith, they had neither the time nor the knowledge to instruct their children. With a self-sacrificing spirit characteristic of these people in all that pertains to their duty, they drew in from the distant farms an hour before Mass each Sunday to give their children the opportunity of Rose's instructions and catechism classes. In this way parents and children were drawn to her and she to them.

News reached the cottage one morning that a number of Irish people had arrived at the railway station, and there was no one to receive and help them. It was a detachment from an emigrant ship sent out by the English Government. The emigrants were being distributed throughout Canada.

The tidings spread about the town, and English, Episcopalian,
