Materialism In Schools Seen Imperiling Nation

By JOHN H. VINCENT
NEW YORK—(N. C.)—War and other evils of the modern world can be eliminated only when men reject materialism and concentrate on spiritual and moral values, the Most Rev. Francis J. Spellman, Archbishop of New York, said here Thursday last week, in welcoming the delegates to the ninth biennial convention of the National Catholic Alumni Federation.

Archbishop Spellman presided at the formal opening of the convention, a Pontifical Mass at St. Patrick's Cathedral. The Mass was celebrated by the Most Rev. James E. Kearney, Bishop of Rochester. In attendance were more than 500 delegates representing over 100,000 Catholic college alumni.

Archbishop Beckman Scores European War As 'Unjust'

DETROIT.—(NC)—Branding the current European struggle as "a most unjust and un-Christian" war, the Most Rev. Francis J. Beckman, Archbishop of Dubuque, vigorously asserted Sunday that "under no circumstances may we lend comfort to either party in the conflict."

Speaking on the regular Sunday broadcast of the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, pastor of the Shrine of the Little Flower at Royal Oak, Mich., Archbishop Beckman intimated his remarks "A Plea for Christianity and Americanism."

Referring to his previous utterance against the lifting of the arms embargo, the Archbishop of Dubuque said he was motivated in "under no circumstances may we lend comfort to either party in the conflict."

"The present war is, not, in my well-advised opinion, a just war, much less a 'holy war,'" Archbishop Beckman asserted. "It is propagandized as such by the sinister forces of international Communism."

He wished to say, the Archbishop continued, that "We Catholics are not by any stretch of the imagination, in sympathy with Hitlerism." He added that "we cannot as Christians be in sympathy with an international godless group which has provoked and is endeavoring to sustain this war."

"The sciences of destruction—destruction of man and man's happiness seems at times, and especially at the present time, to run ahead of science that makes for human well-being, understanding, health and happiness. I pray that the delegates to this convention will consider and accentuate, not alone the duties and responsibilities of man to his fellow man, but also the relationship between man and God."

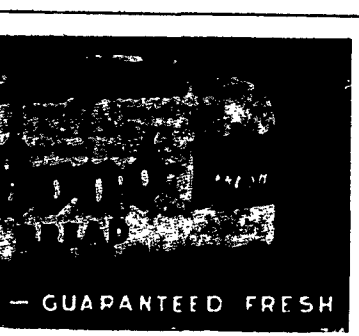

The Mass was a Votive Mass of the Holy Ghost. Bishop Kearney was assisted by the Very Rev. John F. O'Hara, C.S.C., President of Notre Dame, as assistant priest; the Rev. Charles J. Deane, S.J., Secretary-General of Fordham University, deacon; and the Rev. T. Lawson Riggs, Catholic Chaplain at Yale University, subdeacon. The Scholas Cantorum of the Liturgical Arts Society, directed by Dr. Beckett Gibbs, sang the Mass.

The educational theories of the so-called John Dewey group at Teachers College, Columbia University, were assailed as "atheistic" and "un-American" by speakers at various sessions. The principal attacks were made by Thomas E. Woodlock, contributing editor of the Wall Street Journal and former Federal Interstate Commerce Commissioner, the Rev. Geoffrey O'Connell, author of "Nationalism in American Education," and the Rev. W. Edmund Fitzgerald, S.J., of Boston College.

Mr. Woodlock charged Dr. Dewey and his associates are disseminating educational theories incompatible with the fundamental tenets on which American liberties are founded. His principal thesis was that the danger of "totalitarianism in the clothing of democracy" is inherent in the present American secular educational system which bars God from the classroom.

"It is not an ironical and paradoxical absurdity," he asked, "that our public primary education carefully eliminates from its curriculum all information as to the one thing upon which our whole theory of government and our elemental liberties depend namely religion?"

Has No Logical Defense
"The result is that a boy or a girl whose education is wholly confined to our public school system is unable to offer a logical defense of the very first principles upon which the loyalty professed by him or her to our flag is founded. Find sense or reason in that if you can. I can not."
