Fremin Unit Elects Leader, Lists Play

Miss Rita Conley has been elected by the students of Nazareth College as head of the Fremin Mission Unit for the year 1940-1941. Miss Conley has held several offices in the college Mission Unit during her college career, including that of treasurer and Secretary.

Rita Conley

The Unit has been steadily expanding for the past two years, and is planning an extensive program for the coming year, Miss Conley announced today. The new leader is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Conley of Burlington Avenue.

The Mission Unit has been active this year in many fields, and its funds for the foreign and domestic missions are rapidly increasing.

In addition to the usual fund raising projects, the year's Mission staff has included many other activities, the latest of which is their forthcoming play, "Far Horizons," to be given next Wednesday evening, April 24, at the Nazareth Academy Auditorium in Lake Avenue.

The play, written by Sister M. Paulette, of the Sociology Department of the College, concerns the activities of a group of mission-minded college students, and their successful efforts to aid a lone missionary in China.

The cast is headed by Mary Bemish, Frances Harligan, Elinor Asay, Wilma Keuning, Rita Conley and many others, familiar to audiences attending Nazareth's plays. The play is under the direction of Miss Marion O'Neil, of the College Dramatic department.

The male characters in the cast, Laurie, Howard Sullivan; Mr. March, Arthur Principe, Professor Bhaer, Phillip Appleby, and Mr. Brooke, Carl Streb are to be the same in both performances.

Introducing the cast to the audience will be twenty Senior Thespians who will participate in an original song and polka dance. Among the dancers are: Jeanne Gronoll, Bette Mulcahy, Mary Conley, Lillian Gilmartin, Florence Dietrich, Fern Schwan, Rita Smith, Marion Oriel, Betty Hauder, Verna Fouquet, Cecilia Mertens, Gene Ringwood, Betty May, Rita Hall, Betty Fontana, Mary Bonafede, Murralyn Saunders, Merilyn Moulds, Marjorie Kuhn and Mary Indiano.

New Honors Won By 'Mercedes'

Mercedes, semi-annual magazine of Our Lady of Mercy High School, scored first place honors at the 16th annual publications competition sponsored by the Columbia Scholastic Press Association.

In commenting on the publication, the judges stated, "You preserve a fine wholesome production." Out of a possible score of 1,000 points, this year's publication merited 873 points.

Because of the outstanding and attractive make-up the Mercedes has been selected for All-Columbian Honors; and, together with seven other publications entered in the private school division, will go to make-up a "mythical composite publication." Each of the eight magazines were awarded this outstanding honor because of some distinctive merit.

'SPIRITUAL GODMOTHERS' ORGANIZED BY NUN

ST. CLOUD, Minn.—A movement to enlist "spiritual godmothers" who will keep in contact by correspondence with Indian children on Northern Minnesota reservations has been inaugurated by Sister Laura, of St. Wendelinus' Parochial School, Luxemburg, Minn.

Sister Laura, who spent some time on the Indian Missions, says that after leaving school Indian boys and girls need someone to take an interest in them. She found out that a great deal can be accomplished by correspondence, and she has today an organization of women and girls who write to young Indians whom they have adopted as spiritual children. Catechism lessons, spiritual letters and poems are sent to the correspondents.

When man dies he carries in his clutched hands only that which he has given away.

FAMOUS WRITER COMPLETES BOOK ON MOTHER SETON

NEW YORK.—Mother Elizabeth Seton, whose Beatification Cause is now in process, is the subject of a new volume by Katherine Burton, just published here by Longmans, Green and Company.

Written by the author of "Sorrow Builders Bridge," a biography of Mother Lathrop, daughter of Nathaniel Hawthorne, the biography of Mother Seton, entitled "His Dear Persuasion," is described in the current Newsletter of the Catholic Book Club as "particularly adapted to the modern temper of mind." The book, says the Newsletter review, seems certain "to please not only" Mrs. Burton's "accustomed readers, but also the many who, hitherto, may have admired Elizabeth Bayley Seton without knowing much about her." "Here, it may be," adds the review, "these latter will discover why she is so frequently instanced as an outstanding exponent of sanctity in America."

Mrs. Burton is a convert and a prolific writer of books, articles and magazine fiction.

Life of St. Martha Held Ideal of Hospitality

The life of St. Martha, sister of Lazarus and Mary Magdalen, was traversed in the "Call to Youth" radio program of the National Council of Catholic Women by Miss Adelaide De Bethune, prominent Catholic artist in New York.

Describing Martha's great generosity to the poor and later to the Saviour and His disciples, Miss De Bethune said St. Martha is today inviting "us all in the beautiful mansion of her Christlike hospitality" and to be "gladly and generously hospitable towards all rich or poor, friend or stranger as toward the Master Himself, Whom she recognized."

Miss De Bethune told how Martha probably "caught on" before her brother, Lazarus, to the fact that Christ was no mere political leader concerned with national freedom, but that "the young Leader's movement was more than a political party," when He talked with her concerning God and the redemption of man.

It was Martha, she said, who opened her mansion in the country to Our Lord so as to provide Him with the necessities of life, she having heard that He and His followers "had often had to go without dinner or without a place to sleep, simply because they had come unknown into a city or because the population had been hostile."

She also arranged with friends in different parts of the country to provide the Saviour and His associates with food and shelter when He was in their respective parts of the country, the speaker said.

The "Call to Youth" is broadcast over the Red Network of the National Broadcasting Company and is sponsored by the NCCW Youth Committee.

A Queenly Talk

MOMMY DEAR'S EXAMPLE

By JOSIE ELLIOTT

(Issued by the National Kindergarten Association, 8 West 40th St. New York City)

"Mommy dear, tell me a story—something you did when you were a little girl." Janie climbed into the sleepy-hollow chair with her mother, her bright blue eyes eager with interest and anticipation. "Something you really and truly did, Mommy."

"Well, dear, are you quite sure you will not be fast asleep before I have finished?" asked Mrs. Tiffany, as she gently stroked the curly locks of her little daughter.

Her thoughts flow back to the time when she too wanted to hear true stories from her mother, principally about things that happened when the Yankees invaded the South. No, she had no war story for Janie. Her story began:

"One day, when I was about your size, I walked into the dining room just before lunchtime. 'Mother, may I have a biscuit? I asked.

"Your grandmother turned and selected the lightest, fluffiest one on the plate and handed it to me, saying, 'Will you have butter or jelly, dear?'

"'No, just the biscuit, please.'

"This had happened so often, during the past week or two, that my mother's interest was aroused. She watched me go into the vegetable garden and take my seat by a row of young onions that were just a few inches high, tender and pungent. I would pull up one at a time, remove the outer leaves, and proceed to eat the tender shoots with my biscuit. As soon as the biscuit had vanished I was ready to resume my play. No, I was not hungry at luncheon!"

Mrs. Tiffany smiled and sighed. "It seems but yesterday that I was a child, back in the old home," she murmured to herself. Janie was almost asleep.

Nothing more was thought of Mommy dear's story until a few days later.

"Mommy, dear," came from little Janie, "may Baby Ruth and I go to see Grandmother? We will come home the minute you telephone for us."

Mrs. Tiffany readily consented, for it was a daily occurrence to go to Grandmother's. The very sight of the home made the children hungry, for there was always something good waiting for them. "Just tell your grandmother I'll be over a little later," she said.

But when Mrs. Tiffany entered the beloved living room of her old home, her mother was sitting erect in the ladder-back chair, her eyes snapping with indignation. Two little girls sat opposite her, eyes lowered, fingers twisting the sashes of their dresses.

"Daughter," Grandmother announced, speaking with unsmiling lips, as she arose and moved toward the outer door, "just see what Janie and Ruth have done. My little spring onions! Pulled up by the roots! Rows and rows of them!"

Mommy dear smiled, but with genuine chagrin. Janie and Ruth had followed in her footsteps much too realistically. Thereafter, her true stories were chosen with much greater discretion.

Catholic Women's Protest Halts Offensive Play

TAMPA, Fla. — Following protests initiated by the St. Augustine Diocesan Council of Catholic Women, a production of "Family Portrait," described as a play dealing with the life of Christ, was cancelled here.

With the announcement that the Little Theater of this city planned a production of the play, all affiliations of the Diocesan Council of Catholic Women and individuals who are members of the Little Theater were asked to write letters protesting the play.

"Family Portrait" is said to be an offensive satire on all religion and a distortion of facts concerning Our Lord and the Blessed Mother.

ELBOW ROOM

With Spring comes short-sleeved dresses, bringing arms and elbows into front-line prominence. If you've been neglecting your elbows during the long, Winter 'cover up' season, they've probably rewarded you by turning gravish and coarse. But don't despair. A little attention will make them white and smooth again. Here is a wonderful elbow treatment, recommended by Helena Rubinstein, to make those neglected members as soft and clear as your complexion. Pour a few beauty grains on a stiff-bristled hand brush and rub your elbows vigorously. These wonderful little grains smooth and bleach the coarsened discolored area, leaving it several shades whiter than before. Then as a softening treatment, apply rich pasteurized face cream, smoothing it in with circular strokes. Before going out, place a little dab of rouge on each elbow and powder over it. This makes the elbows look young and rosy and keeps them attractive throughout the day or evening.
