Catholic Charities (Continued from Page 9) So Hansel and Gretel meet the witch, who lures them to her gingerbread home. She is all ready to push them into the oven when the children turn the tables. It is a gingerbread witch when they finish with the witch gone her power ceases, and the gingerbread people come back to life.

Jack Perrella, who plays the father, is the one boy in the cast pretty brave, he is! The directors address the assembled group as "Mr. and Mrs. B." The witch is Matilda Zocari of Charles House. Originally cast was Cora Costanza of Genesee. Cora felt that Matilda would be better for the part and voluntarily relinquished it, saying that she had leave the other girl could handle it better.

"Something like that," says Ruth Ehmann, "is worth every bit of effort it is costing us to put on the opera. The cost of the children's dress have been extended. No matter whether or not 'Hansel and Gretel' is a hit it has been a success just because of what it has taught the children who have worked in it."
