U. S. HIERARCHY RECORD . . VEREIN STUDY COURSE

Study Course To Be Conducted By Central Verein In Minnesota

ST. LOUIS — A two-day social study course will be conducted at New Ulm, Minn., on Aug. 28-29, immediately following the 85th annual convention of the Catholic Central Verein of America, it is announced. The course is being arranged by the Central Bureau here, headquarters of the C. V.

At least four lectures, each followed by an open forum, will be presented. The speakers will be Most Rev Aloisius J Muench, Bishop of Fargo, N.D., Rev. Martin A. Shirber, O.S.B., of St. John's University, Collegeville, Minn., L. S. Herron, editor of The Nebraska Union Farmer, of Omaha, and a representative of the National Farm Chemurgic Council, with headquarters in Columbus, O. Chairman of the meetings will be F P Kenkel, KSG., director of the Central Bureau.

The lectures and discussions will center chiefly about rural problems. The course will be the first gathering of Catholics to consider the question of chemurgy, the science intended to discover industrial uses for farm products. Other subjects scheduled for discussion are the corporative system, co-operation and credit unions.

The sessions will be open to Catholics and non-Catholics alike; the course is not restricted to laymen, as priests and women are also invited to attend.

The Central Verein, through the Central Bureau, was the first Catholic organization to arrange study courses of this nature in the country. As far back as 1909 such events were conducted, and in the early twenties each annual convention of the C.V. was followed by a social study course.

Those wishing to attend the New Ulm course may make reservations by writing the Central Bureau, 3835 Westminster Place, St. Louis, Mo The registration fee, covering every expense of the course, is $5.

'Life' Article On Birth Control Scored

In a second letter to Life, Father McGlynn said acknowledgment of his first epistle leaves his question unanswered Noting that "Life disclaims the responsibility of deciding the morality of contraception," Father McGlynn added "it is not Life's province to say whether contraception is right or wrong, but Life says that contraception is all right.

"Even apart from this one statement, Life is responsible for the whole article, which unmistakably approves contraception for its alleged therapeutic and economic benefits. And while Life may not care to discuss morality neither would Life care to recommend on any grounds a practice of probable moral turpitude Hence Life is responsible for affirming the moral rectitude of contraception, at least implicitly, and, therefore, subject to criticism on that score."

"I did not accuse Life of regarding birth control as a substitute for economic reform," Father McGlynn added, "but Life, by your reply justifies birth control as immediately necessary for the economic relief of 'one-third of a nation.' "The whole point is" Father McGlynn continued, "that contraception is not at our disposal if it is morally wrong. Besides, where family limitation is necessary, self control can be effective without resorting to artificial birth control, accompanied as it is with serious mental, physical and social dangers of which competent physicians are well aware (an allusion to which was noticeably absent from Life)."

Daily Masses Aboard

Each priest on board celebrated daily Mass at one of the four public and two private altars. The Masses said at the public altars were attended by hundreds of Catholic passengers, and many of the non-Catholic passengers.

By special dispensation, some of the Masses were started as early as two hours before dawn in order to permit each priest to say Mass. From that time on Mass was said almost continuously until noon.

One of the private altars was that of a group of twenty-four Jesuit priests aboard the Manhattan. Not all of these priests could use the altar, so some had to the other altars. The Jesuits, however, permitted three Greek Uniate priests to con-celebrate Mass each day on their altar

Mrs. Taylor was visibly affected by the news of Italy's declaration of war against England and France, which she had heard over the ship's radio She was in tears when reporters asked her for a statement.

'Too Crushed To Talk'

"I can't say anything," she sobbed. "Please excuse me. I'm too crushed to talk. We had hoped against hope it wouldn't happens."

Prominent clergymen who arrived on the Manhattan included the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Francesco Lardone, Professor of Canon Law at the Catholic University of America, Washington, D. C.; the Very Rev. Msgr. Allen J. Babcock, vice-rector of the North American College at Rome; and the Very Rev. Msgr. Charles E. Fitzgerald, spiritual director of the North American College at Rome. (Msgr. Fitzgerald has relatives in Rochester.)

Papal Delegate Lauds New 'Dictionary Of American Hierarchy'

NEW YORK. — "A book which both sets forth an important historical record and evidences deferential regard for distinguished personages who have merited well of God and country cannot but be well received, and indeed welcomed with special acclaim." Thus does His Excellency the Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, Apostolic Delegate to the United States, write in his introduction to the "Dictionary of the American Hierarchy," by the Rev Dr Joseph B Code of the Catholic University of America, which has just been published here by Longmans, Green and Company.

The volume contains biographical sketches of all members of the American Hierarchy, living and dead, and eleven appendices giving a chronological list according to date of appointment, a necrology, the episcopal lineage of the American Hierarchy, titular Sees, foreign born members, members of religious Orders in the Hierarchy, American Sees with their occupants, converts in the Hierarchy, Cardinals in the Hierarchy, Apostolic Delegates to the United States, and Roman Pontiffs since the establishment of the American Hierarchy.

Valuable Information

Describing the volume Archbishop Cicognani says "Dr. Code has collected the information which relates to all the Bishops of the country" adding that "his work will be useful to the clergy and to the American Catholic people." "It has great scientific merit, too," the Apostolic Delegate adds, "and will be of value to students. A number of the Bishops spoken of in this volume are held in common estimation as worthy to receive the honors of the altar. Some may be canonized in the not far distant future.

"Already the processes are under way which look toward the accomplishment of that design with regard to Bishop John Nepomucene Neumann of Philadelphia, Bishop Joseph Rosati of St. Louis, Bishop Mathias Loras of Dubuque, and Bishop Frederic Baraga, Vicar Apostolic of Upper Michigan.

"Many of the Bishops have attained distinction in the sacred sciences and in letters. All dedicated their lives to serve God, the Church and the nation, with fervent and beneficent zeal."

Archbishop Cicognani reemphasizes the dignity of the Episcopacy as "the chosen ones of God, the successors of the Apostles," and its close adhesion to the See of Peter

"The names of these churchmen" says His Excellency, "are linked with a long list of works of religion piety, charity, and Christian culture such as churches, seminaries, schools, hospitals and orphanages. The simple information on this point set forth in the book of Doctor Code gives a splendid impression of the charitable endeavor developed in this nation by the Catholic episcopate. Theirs is an activity never interrupted and always on the increase. It is one which is of advantage not to Catholics alone, but in general to all those localities where these institutions have arisen. They are benefits bestowed upon the nation, indications of a civic and religious progress, and they call forth the gratitude of every class of citizens and general admiration as well."

Hundreds of Co-Workers

"With the Bishops and their works of religion" the Apostolic Delegate continues "there are associated the names of hundreds of co-laborers and distinguished benefactors. Before all others must be mentioned the priests, both of the diocesan and of the regular clergy, and the members of the religious institutes of women. By their self-denial, their generosity, and their spirit of sacrifice they have worked diligently for the religious, moral, and spiritual benefits of their fellowmen.

"The Catholic laity of America has cooperated magnificently with its ecclesiastical leaders, and has given an example of Christian development which is the marvel of the world. The people generally made use of the authority, the wisdom, and the experience of their Bishops for their own spiritual advancement and for the better understanding and fulfillment of their duties."

Asserting that "the importance of a complete information about the Bishops of the United States is altogether special," the Apostolic Delegate notes that "this year we celebrate the sesquicentennial of the American Hierarchy," says that "by a particular disposition of Divine Providence this nation after acquiring its liberty and independence began at about the same time the series of its Presidents and of its Bishops," and briefly tells of the development of the Church in this country.

Pope Lauds N.C.C.W. For Work

WASHINGTON.—The desire of His Holiness Pope Pius XII to lend "the high encouragement of his recognition and blessing" to the work of the National Council of Catholic Women, is expressed by His Eminence Luigi Cardinal Maglione, Papal Secretary of State, in a letter to the Most Rev. Joseph F. Rummel, Archbishop of New Orleans and Episcopal Chairman of the Department of Lay Organizations of the National Catholic Welfare Conference.

Acknowledging with "much pleasure" the receipt of a copy of the Proceedings of the Nineteenth Annual Convention of the National Council of Catholic Women, forwarded by Archbishop Rummel, Cardinal Maglione said:

"This report has had the close attention of His Holiness and its perusal has given him great satisfaction. He is keenly sensible of the immense value of the work for God and for the Church which is being done by the Catholic women of the United States under the direction of Your Excellency as Episcopal Chairman, and he desires to lend to this work the high encouragement of his recognition and blessing. To Your Excellency, therefore, in the first place, and to the officers and members of this well-deserving organization, he imparts, as a pledge of enduring grace in your apostolate, his paternal Apostolic Benediction."

Priest Administers Five Sacraments Within 48 Hours

NEW BERN, N. C.—Administration of five Sacraments in 48 hours is the record just achieved by a missionary of North Carolina.

The Rev. W. Sullivan O'Byrne, in charge of the New Bern Mission, received a phone call one night that one of his catechumens was serious ill. He drove 90 miles to the home of the sick man, baptized him and administered Extreme Unction. The next day, Saturday, he gave Holy Communion and that evening heard confessions. The following day he administered the Sacrament of Matrimony, thus administering all the Sacraments within the power of a priest.

PUBLIC SCHOOL PUPILS GET RELIGIOUS STUDY CREDIT

FALL RIVER, Mass.—Beginning next fall, the Durfee High School will release the pupils in its three upper grades one hour each week for the purpose of attending religious instruction classes, and will credit each pupil with one point a year for the completion of such a course of instruction.

This course of action was set after the School Committee unanimously adopted a report of the Religious Education Committee, which said it had inquired into "the possibility and desirability of co-operation with church groups for the giving of moral and religious instruction to the pupils in the public schools," and that the sentiment of the committee was favorable to the undertaking. The committee proposed that "the plan should provide for a broad approach from the standpoint of the public schools, leaving all the details of the instruction to be given to the church authorities concerned."

50TH GRANDCHILD BORN ON COUPLE'S GOLDEN JUBILEE

ALLENTON, Wis.—The fiftieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Hefter, life-long residents here, was marked by the birth of their fiftieth grandchild. The newest grandchild is the nineteenth child born to Mr. and Mrs. John Hug.

Mr. and Mrs. Hefter began the observance of their jubilee by renewing their marriage vows in the Church of SS. Peter and Paul in Nenno, Wis., where they were married a half-century ago.

Columns of space are devoted to the jubilee by the Milwaukee Journal in which a feature writer points out hat among all of the Hefters' descendants "there has never been a 'black sheep.'" "They didn't say it, but I learned that there has never been a divorce in their family," the writer adds. "There has never been a scandal in the family. There has never been an old maid or a bachelor. No one of the children or grandchildren has ever wed outside the family faith."
