Eternity's Interlude

The arena and the dome of the airplanes, the screaming of shells and the rattle of bomb shells mark Europe's November Eve as an interlude to death. Today even the most hardened cynic can deny the only certainty of life, the ever imminent possibility of death. Holy Mother, the Church has not needed the advent of the most devastating conflict in history to realize this truth. She has preached it for over 1900 years, urging Her loyal sons and daughters to be prepared for the "Reaper." Now that the world acknowledges the fact also, let us hope Catholics will consider this November as eternity's interlude, a time for stock-taking and preparation. A time also when the interlude has passed and who helps and in many cases forgotten and at God's threshold needs but a little aid from their friends to enter into His Presence. May we suggest that a most appreciated way of remembering those who have passed to their eternal reward would be a membership in the Society for the Propagation of the Faith. The Holy Sacrifice of the Mass is offered 1500 times every year for those who are enrolled. Assume those loved ones that they will not be forgotten. Enroll the individual in this highly and richly indulgenced Pontifical Society.

Halloween in Harlem

The Rev. Michael G. Dowling, CSSR in his article "Nurses are People," recounts an incident which bears retelling at this time.

"One Halloween afternoon, he writes, 'two nuns were walking through Harlem. One was very tall, very straight and rather severe looking. Suddenly they became aware of childish voices behind them. "Man, oh man!" said one voice, "that's the best costume I seen today." "Th, man!" said another, "he's go up and see what they look like in front!" The tall nun became aware of a small figure at her side and she looked down into a pair of startled white eyes in a small black face. When their eyes made contact, the young Negro gulped and in an awestruck whisper said, "Hello, Mrs. God." And in spite of her severity the tall one broke into a parody of unbridled laughter in the streets of Harlem."

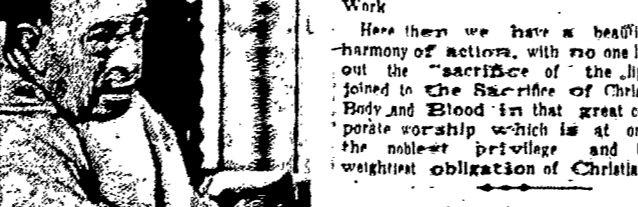

Music In Worship Discussed

Billy sang Gregorian Chant and modern hymns. Gregorian Chant is a Latin song which has its origin in the East. It is the most ancient form of music which has been handed down to us. It is a simple, beautiful, and powerful form of music. It is a music which is not only heard in the church but also in the home. It is a music which is not only heard in the church but also in the home. It is a music which is not only heard in the church but also in the home.

The Proper of the Mass: Introit, Gradual, Offertory and Communion will always be sung by a special choir. These are more difficult and more solemn than the congregational singing, except perhaps in religious houses. But here again, the choir ought not to be far removed in some distant loft but down with the congregation in a chancel enclosure, vested in cassock and surplice, for they are in close relation with the sanctuary they are not there as performers on a display but as participants in a holy action. No prima donna there! No operatic tenors but simple, unbleaded and marshalled true reverence for the service of God's great work.

GIRL SCOUTS' NEWS

All the members of Girl Scout Troops of this parish received Holy Communion at the 9 o'clock Mass last Sunday in observance of Girl Scout Week.

In their green uniforms and berets with contrasting yellow keffiyehs, the scouts made an impressive sight as they walked in the Communion rail.

Uniforms will be worn to school all this week as part of the program.

The Girl Scouts have become more and more active in parish activities and are learning the full significance of what it means to be a real scout.

HOLY NAME BREAKFAST

Great interest is being shown in the forthcoming Communion Breakfast on Nov. 10. This is the regular Communion Sunday for the Holy Name Society and it is inviting all the men of the parish to join in the reception of the sacraments.

A guest speaker will be present at the breakfast. As yet it has not been decided definitely who the speaker will be because the committee has several fine choices to draw from.

Tickets may be obtained from any office of the Society as well as from others on Sunday. Because it will be necessary to plan on a definite number at the breakfast, it will be appreciated if those who are planning to attend can obtain their tickets as soon as possible.
