Bishop To Bless Two Bells For St. Patrick's

Rite Sunday In Memory Of Deceased

Two new bells will soon swing from the towers of St Patrick's Church, announcing to the faithful of the parish the hours of church services

On Sunday evening, Dec 8, at 8 P M His Excellency, the Most Rev James E Kearney, Bishop of Rochester, will consecrate for use two bells one dedicated to the deceased priests and nuns who labored at St Patrick's, and the other to the deceased laity of the parish Rev Gerald T Brennan, pastor of St Bridget's Church, and Mr James P E Duffy will be sponsors for the bells

From the most primitive times bells have played their part in the drama of life Down through the ages "las campanas" have called their songs, from the oldest civilization to the present machine age.

Bells have been used in every walk of life and it was by the different methods of bell-ringing that people have known what events were taking place Births and marriages have they rung in deaths and victories have they rung out

Appeal to Imagination

To deprive a town of its bells was formerly considered a sign of degradation When Charles V subdued the warlike town of Ghent, Belgium he unslung the famous Roland bell which the natives loved in order to humble his captives. When Cromwell appeared before the gates of Cork, he ordered the bells of the town to be taken down and converted into artillery field pieces.

Bells appeal to the imagination When there have been bells there have always been legends and traditions connected with them. Down through the years, legends and stories of bells—deeds of charity and love, romantic deeds, deeds of blood and terror—have been rung in and out by the voice of the bells.

The first three centuries of the Christian era there is no historical evidence of bells being used for church services Of necessity the early Christians were obliged to keep their meeting place a secret because Christianity was an outlawed and persecuted religion. After the conversion of Constantine, the first Christian emperor, bells were introduced into church services

One of Sacramentals

By Roman Catholics, bells are considered one of the sacramentals of the Church which among others include the sign of the Cross, holy oils, candles incense, holy water. A sacramental is any object set apart and blessed by the Church to excite good thoughts, to increase devotion The Church teaches that sacramentals, if used in accordance with the mind of the Church, are the means of receiving grace to do good and avoid evil of protection of soul, and body and the remission of venial sin. It must be understood, however, that the effects of sacramentals are entirely dependent on the mercy of God who regards the prayer of the Church and the dispositions of those who use them. The Church for centuries has used outward signs and material objects to signify spiritual truths and processes.

In the blessing ceremony each bell receives a name, popularly called the "baptism of bells" but never formally recognized by the Church as a baptismal ceremony.

Ritual Outlined

The ceremony begins with the Bishop and the assistant priests reciting five psalms to ask divine aid. The Bishop then mixes salt with water, reciting prayers of exorcism in reference to phantoms and storms which threaten the peace of those who come to church to worship.

The bell is then washed inside and out, with prepared water and dried with towels to the recitation of six psalms. After the washing the bell is anointed with holy oils and is assigned to a patron saint with the prayer, "May this bell be hallowed and consecrated in the Name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost. In honor Saint there is mentioned the name of the bell) peace be to thee."

Finally the thurible with incense is placed under the bell, that smoke may fill the concavity, and the ceremony is concluded with the reading of a portion of the Gospel according to St Luke. In all essentials this ritual coincides with that used in Carolingian times dating probably from the days of Egbert of York, 750

The following inscription will appear on the new bells

Vivos, Voco
Mortuos, Plango
Fulgura, Frango
Canora, Aeris, Voce.
Quod, Immaculatae, Virgini, Mariae
Solemni, Ritu, Dedicarit
Antistes, Iacobus, E, Kearney
Die, VIII, Dec, A, D, MCMXL

Translated the inscription reads I call the living, I lament the dead, I break the lightning bolts by my singing voice of bronze which Bishop James E Kearney dedicated in solemn rite to the Immaculate Virgin, Mary on the 8th day of December, 1940 A D

Fourth Degree Urged To Back New Leader

A call to revive interest in the Patriotic Degree of the Knights of Columbus came from His Excellency, Bishop Kearney, principal speaker at a dinner honoring Cyril J Stitt the new Master of the Fifth District, Fourth Degree, at Odenbach's Banquet Room, Thursday night of last week.

"Times call for strengthening of the right forces in this country devoted to a patriotism based on moral values," His Excellency said. "The Knights of Columbus as an organization has a record for patriotism of which it is proud and the Fourth Degree has dedicated itself to the propagation of this phase of K of C work"

During the depression the tendency was to sacrifice tradition and cheapen literature, music, social gatherings, architecture and education. Unitarians were allowed to take charge of everything Things of the spirit were sacrificed.

"Measuring things in their utilitarian value isn't the best philosophy," the Bishop declared.

With their devotion to God the Fourth Degree Knights are now in a position to revive interest in patriotism with a spiritual background The Bishop called upon members throughout the diocese to get behind the new Master in reviving interest in the patriotic degree.

The Rt Rev Msgr. William M Hart, VG, termed the new Master who was a former schoolmate of his at S. Bridget's School, "an exemplary Catholic layman." Another tribute came from the Rev Joseph E Vogt faithful friar of Rochester Assembly

Mr Stitt who succeeds Frederick J Mass as head of the district expressed his thanks for the honor shown him. He urged members to co-operate in staging an exemplification of the Fourth Degree early next year

Presiding at the dinner was Norman A O'Brien faithful admiral who was presented with a handsome plaque by Faithful Navigator Herbert L Trimby in recognition of his services as presiding officer of the Assembly during the past year

Original Master in this territory, William T Connor and Mrs. Connor were honored, the occasion being Mr Connor's 80th birthday

Telegrams were received from State Deputy Hugh A. Doyle, New Rochelle Edward P. Snell, Waverly, Daniel Driscoll, Geneva, John T Nugent, Elmira, and Frank A Sutz, Corning

Members of the Assembly wearing sword and baldric attended a Memorial Mass for deceased Sir Knights on Sunday morning at Holy Cross Church The Mass was celebrated by Father Vogt who spoke to the Sir Knights on the true meaning of knighthood.

Holy Name Men Back Service Bureau Plan

Responding to a plea from the Rev Thomas F Carey, O P, Associate Editor of the Holy Name Journal who came here to explain operation of the newly organized Service Bureau and Parish plan, Rochester Deanery Section of the Rochester Diocesan Holy Name Union launched a campaign at its meeting Monday night in support of the Service Bureau.

Father Carey announced that the Holy Name Society is being extended to "all camps and naval bases in the country" and that the Holy Name medallion and prayerbook is being distributed to all Catholics in camp and the Holy Name Journal will be circulated among the men in the camp.

The meeting was opened with Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament in Holy Redeemer Church with the Rev A J Schneider, spiritual director of the Holy Name Society of Holy Redeemer Church officiating assisted by the Rev F William Stauder pastor and Diocesan Spiritual Director

Going to Holy Redeemer Hall, the men were welcomed by Father Stauder who recited a short history of the parish

Explains Bureau

Father Carey, who is one of the founders of the Blackfriars Guild, was introduced by President Frank E Wolfe. "The necessity for centralizing activity of the Holy Name Society throughout the country in the Service Bureau and the value of the Holy Name Journal in bringing nation-wide information to all Holy name members in the United States was emphasized by the noted Dominican priest.

To finance this Service Bureau he urged that circulation of the Holy Name Journal be built up at this time. The Service Bureau, he said, will publish monthly bulletins for distribution to spiritual directors and officers of Holy Name Societies both parochial and diocesan. This will provide a means of suggesting programs, both spiritual and social, as well as corporal works of mercy to the societies and will keep societies informed of what is taking place in other dioceses of the country.

Direct Campaign

Heading the campaign in the Rochester Diocese is H Edward Shlesinger with Lewis A Schur as co-chairman. The campaign, Mr Shlesinger announced, will be conducted among members of the Holy Name Society from Dec 3 to Dec 21

Question of the government making provision in permanent army camps for chapel facilities for men being called under the Selective Service Act of 1940 was brought before the meeting by Walter Maxwell of Corpus Christi Holy Name Society. The meeting voted that the Executive Committee should draft a letter to Representative Joseph O'Brien requesting that this matter be given consideration, as vast sums are being appropriated for building up morale and it was felt that the matter of religion should be given primary consideration.

IN ONE EAR

By ART KELLY

Son of Author Praises Radio Sherlock Holmes

Basil Rathbone and Nigel Bruce might well have been the models from which the late Sir Arthur Conan Doyle moulded the great fiction detective, Sherlock Holmes, and Dr Watson, the equally famous aide whose name through the years has become synonymous with faithful friendship and service.

This, in effect, was the opinion expressed by Denis Conan Doyle, son of Sir Arthur, after he paid his first visit recently to NBC's Hollywood Radio City and watched lanky Rathbone and rotund Bruce portray for radio listeners (WHAM — Sunday, 8:30 P M.) the characters so beloved by his father.

"Bruce and Rathbone," Doyle said, "resemble almost to perfection my father's conception of the characters. Nigel Bruce is Watson personified, and I repeat, Rathbone is absolutely admirable as Holmes.

"I only wish my father could have seen this program (by the way, it was 'The Problem of Thor Bridge'). I know he would have enjoyed it tremendously. My congratulations to Edith Meiser, too, for her excellent radio adaptation of the story, and to Tom McKnight for his direction."

Even this oral orchid from Conan Doyle's son, however, failed to relieve Basil Rathbone's biggest worry on the Sherlock Holmes series—whether he is doing Sherlock Holmes justice.

"I am humbly grateful for your praise," he said to Conan Doyle, "but I'm afraid I shall carry on with my worries. You see, I would hate ever to think I had attained perfection. It would be dreadfully dull, wouldn't it?"

Boxing Parade Hits New High Over NBC

A new high in the history of boxing broadcasts will be reached this month when the NBC Blue Network and WHAM carry descriptions of two major bouts in the space of eight days. Bill Stern and Sam Taub, scheduled to cover each event, expect to be a little "punchy" themselves after following so much concentrated and dying leather.

First on the Adam Hats parade will be the match between Ken Overlin, current holder of the middleweight championship, and Steve Belloise, rising young Bronx battler, in a 15-round return engagement for the title in Madison Square Garden, Friday, Dec. 13, at 10:00 P. M., EST. Belloise lost a close decision to Overlin in their first bout.

Principals in the second contest have not been named but the action will be in New York's Madison Square Garden, Friday, Dec 20 with a broadcast at 10:00 P. M EST.

Loyal To One Role

Arthur Hughes, who plays Bill Davidson in the WHAM program "Just Plain Bill," scoffs at the idea of some actors that playing the same role year after year is hazardous. In the same part continuously since 1932, Hughes is still as keen on it as ever and during the past two seasons turned down three prominent Broadway parts because their cast-of-thousand hours would have made his playing of Bill impossible.

"A stage play can become outmoded in two seasons," he explains. Political opinion changes, economics put a different slant on the dialogue, wars make certain vehicles inept and others which had talked previously, new-born hits. Radio is different in that the lines and action are not set and there is more flexibility for the writer and director. They can alter the series with the changing world, and that's very important."
