Published by CATHOLIC COURIER and JOURNAL, N. Y. 30 Chestnut St. Rochester, N. Y.

The CATHOLIC COURIER has my most enthusiastic approval... It is a magnificent work of Catholic action in every degree...

By The Will of God

The closing phrase of the President's Inaugural Address must appeal to every true American... When so many countries lie today under the heel of the dictator, it is well to realize that our country still affords to men the freedom that God gave them.

Selected

The animal psychologist who picked me up in his car let me jump him about his subject... He said that I was a very nervous man, more or less start with worry...

What Hath God Wrought!

None so blind as he that will not see. There is no picture more clearly painted on history's canvass than the improvement in society brought about by the work of Christ and His Church.

Five Years Ago--

Leaving the challenges hurled by the CATHOLIC COURIER in regular and extra editions unanswered, Mrs. Thomas N. Hepburn, high priestess of birth control in the United States, left Rochester after a feeble attempt to ridicule her opposition.

Our Catholic Labor College

One of the important institutions in the Diocese is the Catholic Labor College. It has been working long enough to make its name felt. The opening of the second semester Monday at its rooms in St. Ann's was accompanied by an impressive gathering.

history of American labor, the Philosophy of Labor, are the subjects taught. Dr. Aaron Abell of Nazareth College, Rev. Francis Burns of St. Bernard's Seminary, Rev. George Vogt, Mr. Edward Murphy are among those who make up the faculty.

Thou Canst Make Me Clean

The words of the leper to Jesus indicated the deep faith he had in the power of Our Lord. He was afflicted with a loathsome disease, an incurable disease. But all human laws gave way before the power of the Wonder-Worker of Galilee.

The same faith is shown by the patient when he approaches the Lord for pardon of sin in the Sacrament of Penance. He says to the Lord: "If Thou wilt, Thou canst make me clean." He fulfills the conditions set by Christ for the remission of sin.

Along The Way

The animal psychologist who picked me up in his car let me jump him about his subject... He said that I was a very nervous man, more or less start with worry...

Quote--End Quote

"It seems odd that an overstuffed chair becomes softer and softer, the novels read in them an ever more uncomfortable."--Euphemias Vaz-Russler Wyatt (The Commonwealth)

Sursum Corda

Sursum Corda means "Lift up your hearts." It is a call to the faithful to lift their hearts to God in prayer and devotion.

Two Resolutions

Two resolutions, one condemning the proposed Child Labor Amendment and the other urging the passage of the proposed bill to permit school buses to be used by children attending parochial schools, were unanimously passed at the January meeting of the Holy Name Society of St. Mary's Church, Auburn.

Invitation To Learning (III)

By REV. BENEDICT EHMANN. For the last two weeks this column has presented the Catholic Digest's list of Catholic classics. Library Signpost. If you will keep this separate mailing card in your file you will always have a check-list to guide you in your trips to the Public Library or to the Catholic Evidence Library. Between the two libraries, you ought to be able to get any title on this list.

Old Customs

By REV. DANIEL A. LORD, S.J. No doubt about it, the rising tide of indignation on the subject of drinking is a powerful one. And it is not coming from reformers and politicians with any intent to grind it in, but from decent, law-abiding people and their husbands, who are being wrecked. It is coming from Alcoholics Anonymous, that amazing group of ex-drinkers who are working to save themselves from the gutter.

Diocesan Recordings

Catholics in countries where they have been persecuted have had the opportunity to express their faith in the pages of the Catholic Press. The significance of this work is being realized in every corner of the world.

"Written in the Stars"

By REV. JAMES M. GILLIS, C.S.P., Editor, The Catholic World. When I see evidence that some people, even as late as this in the history of thought and experience believe in astrology, I am reminded of a mind of G. K. C. who said and said: "They tell us that such and such things cannot be believed in this day; nonsense! anything can be believed in any day."
